RIVAL FACTIONS RAGE OVER BILLS TO LOWER RENTS

BLOWS BARELY AVOIDED

LATTER MAKE CONCESSIONS

Will Accept Lockwood Measure Provided Amendments Are Made Regarding Leases and Taxes.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 23.—For five hours this afternoon and evening landlords and tenants, through their spokesmen, appearing before the Senate and Assembly Cities Committees at the public hearing on the anti-rent profiteering bills, were engaged in verbal combat which frequently seemed on the verge of physical encounter. At times the Assembly chamber was a veritable bear garden.

The oldest legislator at the Capitol does not remember a committee hearing where feeling ran so high or turbulence and disorder were so marked. On occasions for ten minutes at a time a hundred infuriated advocates of the rent bills, representing the tenant class, were on their feet hurling imprecations at speakers for the landlords. Two spokesmen for the landlords and real estate owners were driven from the floor by the hisses, hoots, catcalls, and prolonged groans of the tenant representatives, of whom approximately 600 had come from New York.

The landlords and real estate owners were on hand in almost equal numbers, and on at least two occasions made a demonstration which kept the Chamber in a turmoil for several minutes. The first occurred while Senator Henry G. Shackno of the Bronx, speaking in favor of the bills, asserted that there was not an honest landlord in New York City; the other when President F. H. La Guardia of the New York Board of Aldermen, paraphrasing the Marc Antony funeral oration, stated that he had come to Albany "not to praise the landlord, but to bury him."

Five Municipal Court Judges from New York City pleaded earnestly for favorable action on certain bills in the rent relief series which would vest the Judges with discretionary power to determine the reasonableness of rents charged or sought by landlords, and, under certain conditions, to grant stays to tenants in summary dispossess proceedings.

The Central Federated Union and the New York State Federation of Labor sent large delegations, led by Presidents Edward I. Hanna and James P. Holland, to urge the enactment of the bills.

Landlords Want Amendments.

Of the 600 spokesmen and demonstrants for the tenants a majority were from the Bronx where the situation is said to be more acute than in the other boroughs. The Bronx delegation was headed by former Justice John Boyle, Jr., of the Municipal Court and Alfred B. Simonds. Mayor Hylan sent a telegram regretting that he could not attend and sent as his representatives David Hirshfield, Commissioner of Accounts and Arthur J. W. Hilley, who is Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering.

The landlords and real estate operators were represented by large delegations from the United Real Estate Owners' Association and the Real Estate Board, headed by President Stewart Browne of the former and Edward P. Boyle Secretary and Alexander C. McNulty, counsel of the latter organization.

The real estate interests, attacked the entire series of nine bills drafted and introduced by the Joint Legislative Housing Committee of which Senator Charles C. Lockwood of Kings is Chairman. They asserted the measures were false in principle and probably unconstitutional, but finally expressed their willingness to accept them as temporary relief measures, if they were amended to embody the following provisions:

1. Exemptions of all buildings except dwelling houses from the plan of regulation and control.

2—A clearer definition of "tenancy" so as to render existing leases immune from changes or invalidation through the proposed legislation.

3—Monthly tenancy to be construed as an "unwritten lease" running for one year, during which period there must be no dispossess proceedings by the landlords, nor any increase of rent, with termination of tenancy at the end of the year only upon sixty days' notice by landlord or tenant as the case might be.

There were more than a score of speakers for both sides. After Senator Robert B. Mullan of Monroe, Chairman of the Senate Cities Committee, who presided, had called the hearing to order, Senator Lockwood explained briefly the provisions of the measures framed by his committee, while Justice Frederick Spiegelberg, as Chairman of a committee of Municipal Court Judges, urged the landlords and real estate men to accept the program as necessary in the existing emergency.

"They are emergency measures and

Public, It Is Expected, Must Pay at Least the Additional $96,000,000 Given Miners.

WILSON WARNS OPERATORS

Calls on Mine Owners and Workers to Negotiate on Basis of Majority Award.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—President Wilson, with a strong warning against any attempt at profiteering, ordered today the termination on April 1 of the Government's control over bituminous coal prices and at the same time asked the operators and miners to negotiate a new working agreement, based on the majority report of his strike settlement commission. This will permit partial absorption in coal prices of the 27 per cent. increase in wages, allowed by the commission and which is estimated at $200,000,000.

The Coal Commission's majority and minority reports were inclosed in the President's letter to the operators and miners, but the President assumed, he said, that both groups, as previously agreed, would consider the majority report binding. He inclosed the minority report, he said, merely as information for their use in negotiating their working agreement.

No date had been decided tonight for the conference of operators and miners to arrange the new contract, which the President urges should be done at once to place the industry once more on a sound basis, but prompt action was forecast.

John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers of America, said tonight that he was dissatisfied with the award in so far as it does not cover reforms asked by the miners, but said that he would accept it.

"The affirmation of the majority report," said Mr. Lewis, "will be keenly disappointing to the mine workers, ignoring as it does, many vital reforms for which they ask consideration. Furthermore, the majority commissioners usurp the authority now vested in them presuming to render decision upon questions which were not raised by the operators prior to the formation of the commission and which of consequence were not included in the original matters of difference between miners and operators.

"Nevertheless, the miners are ready and willing to respond to the President's suggestion to participate in a joint conference in the hope that a new agreement can be concluded."

No statement could be obtained from the operators tonight, nor could any idea of when the Scale Committee intends to come to Washington for a meeting with the miners.

Adds $60,000,000 in Wages.

The wage increase of 27 per cent. recommended by the majority report, which the President calls the award, absorbs the 14 per cent. increase allowed in the strike settlement and means a still further annual increase, it is said, of $96,000,000 and a total of $200,000,000 since October, 1919. To have shortened the working day one hour, as recommended by the labor representative on the commission, would cost an additional $100,000,000, according to the majority report. Secretary Wilson before the strike urged an increase of 31.6 per cent., and Dr. Garfield, former Fuel Administrator, an increase of 14 per cent.

The executive order removes the price restrictions placed upon coal at the end of last October, with the exception of the control of export coal through the Tidewater Coal Exchange. The exchange was not long ago empowered by the President to control all export coal, the evident idea being to prevent operators from sending coal out of the United States at a higher price than they obtain for domestic supply.

Both the majority award and the minority report accept as a basis an increase in wages to tonnage workers of 24 cents over the wages in effect on Oct. 31, 1919. As to day laborers and monthly men, except trappers and other

His Organizers Look for 6,000 to 8,000 in Full Returns of Presidential Primary.

LOWDEN RUNNING SECOND

WOOD'S RIVALS ASSAILED

Special to The New York Times.

MITCHELL, S. D., Wednesday, March 24.—With returns from yesterday's Presidential primary from districts polling a large part of the total vote, General Leonard Wood is leading by 3,159, according to figures received by the Republican State Committee here up to a late hour.

The vote stands:

Wood	20,467
Lowden	17,228
Total	53,147

It is estimated that the remaining precincts will poll about 15,000 votes. Most of these precincts are in the region west of the Missouri River, largely in the Black Hills. The Wood managers in the hills wire that his majority there will be 2,500 to 3,000 votes.

The managers of the organizations backing Governor Lowden and Senator Johnson refuse to concede that General Wood has won and maintain that later returns will reverse the early result.

The Democratic vote, which has not been tabulated, is said to be the smallest ever cast in the State. The total Republican vote is estimated at about 65,000.

Chairman King made the following statement to THE NEW YORK TIMES:

"Leonard Wood will carry South Dakota by about 8,000 plurality in an exceptionally light vote, due in large part to bad country roads. Wood's lead was reduced by Democrats entering the Republican primaries and voting for Lowden or Johnson, as well as the opposition to him of the Non-Partisan League, the pacifists and Germans, the latter voting three to one against him in strong German counties. The Black Hills have been swept by Wood.

"We have heard from the opposition strongholds and are now waiting to hear from our own strongholds west of the Missouri."

"We have carried Sioux Falls, Brookings and Watertown," said Mr. King, "but have lost Aberdeen by a few votes to Lowden.

"General Wood has had to contend with the bitterest opposition ever directed against a candidate in the history of this State, and if he has won, as I sincerely believe he has, it will be due to his own sterling worth and his personal appeal to the electorate in these last eight days. Before he came into the State I frankly admit I was very skeptical as to the outcome.

"Our first return from the German county of Hutchinson is the vote of the town of Freeman, which went 153 for Johnson, 48 for Lowden and only 6 for General Wood, which proves our pre-election assertion that General Wood would poll a negligible vote, in the German sections, due to the enmity of those people toward Governor Norbeck, who had some of the men arrested for failing to live up to their citizenship obligations while this country was at war."

Some Surprises in the Vote.

The first return received after the polls closed at 5 o'clock this afternoon was that of the First Ward of the city of Mitchell. The final and complete vote of the city was Wood 856, Lowden 753 and Johnson 471.

Mitchell was followed by Watertown, the seat of Codington County, the first two wards to report from that city giving Wood 400, Lowden 313 and Johnson 316 votes.

The first big setback for the Wood supporters came from Lincoln County, in the southeastern section of the State, which returned a Johnson majority of nearly 500 votes over the combined votes of Wood and Lowden. This was one

Colt Hears Wilson May Resubmit Treaty; Flood to Move for New One With Germany

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 23.—Senator Le Baron B. Colt, one of the "mild reservationists" in the Senate, told the Woman's Republican Club of Rhode Island this afternoon that he believed that the treaty "is only temporarily laid aside as far as the United States is concerned, and it must eventually be ratified."

President Wilson, he said, had several possible courses open to him, now that the treaty has been returned to him. One of them was to resubmit it to the Senate.

"I have had some intimations from certain of my Democratic friends that he may send it back," he added.

Senator Colt attacked the proposal to have Congress declare the war at an end.

"It would be easy enough to adopt a resolution declaring peace," he said. "But that would not accomplish anything. Peace has to be made. Terms have to be agreed upon. The common sense thing to do is to stay with our associates and to make with the common enemy the peace they make.

"If we permanently stay out of the League of Nations, instead of having the bulk of the world with us, we shall have forty-five nations in the League all allied against us. Our Monroe Doctrine will be gone, for the South American countries are going into the League. Our world leadership will be gone."

RICHMOND, Va., March 23.—Representative Flood, Democrat, of Virginia, former Chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, announced here tonight that he would introduce in the House, probably tomorrow, a joint resolution authorizing President Wilson to prepare a new Treaty of Peace with Germany.

Allies Offer League Sanction to an Independent Armenia

PARIS, March 23.—The Supreme Council in London recently decided to offer the protection of the League of Nations to an independent Armenia, which would comprise Russian Armenia and certain of the territories taken from Turkey. Armenia would not have an outlet to the sea, but would use the international Port of Batum.

The Temps, commenting on the action of the council, says that the only objection to this solution is the question of the authority which would be vested in the League of Nations in case it should be called upon to command respect for the independence of Armenia. No satisfactory statement on this subject has been made up to the present, the newspaper adds.

BLISS CONTRADICTS SIMS TESTIMONY

OPPOSED IT IN WAR COUNCIL

WASHINGTON, March 23.—The controversy started by Rear Admiral Sims's criticism of the Navy Department's conduct of its war activities was broadened tonight by the entry of the War Department to deny some of the Admiral's statements regarding the land forces.

General Tasker H. Bliss, American representative in the Supreme War Council, not only denied categorically that he had recommended the brigading of United States troops with foreign armies, as testified by Admiral Sims, but declared that "the truth is exactly the reverse."

General Bliss made his denial in a letter to Secretary Baker, who transmitted it, together with a copy of the original order assigning General Pershing to command the forces overseas, to Secretary Daniels. He in turn sent both on to Chairman Hale of the Senate Naval Sub-Committee, at the same time making all the correspondence public.

"Not only at no time did I make any recommendation for the brigading of American troops with the British Army," General Bliss wrote, "but the truth is exactly the reverse. The only times that I ever came in contact with Admiral Sims in Europe were while I was in London with the American Mission (the so-called House Mission) between the 8th and 23d of November, 1917. During that entire time the idea of brigading or amalgamating American troops with foreign armies had not, so far as I know, entered the head of any one, nor did I ever make such a suggestion, much less a recommendation."

Permanent Fusion "Intolerable."

General Bliss said that he told the Supreme War Council that such a thing as the permanent amalgamation of American units with the British or French would be "intolerable to American sentiment," which led the presiding officer, M. Clemenceau, to declare that "this point was settled," and nothing was heard thereafter on the subject.

The General also said that all British military and political men, during his visit to London with the House mission, urged the sending of complete American divisions for the purpose of having in Europe an American National Army. He said he had informed them that this country hoped to have in France twelve complete divisions by June 1, 1918, and was told that that effort must be doubled. French military men later made the same demand.

"The idea of 'brigading' complete divisions with other troops is an absurdity," General Bliss wrote. "During the battle our divisions were at times used to meet an emergency in connection with either British or French divisions, but in the same way French divisions were used with our troops. At no time during the American mission's visit to Europe did I hear even the slightest suggestion that our troops should be brigaded, either in large or small bodies, with foreign troops. Nor did I ever make such a suggestion, much less a recommendation.

Held Control Even in Emergency.

"The first suggestion as to the temporary use of any American troops with those of our allies was made at the time when they apprehended the near approach of the German drive of March 21. In the very crisis of the battle the military representatives recommended that the American Government send to Europe American infantry and machine-gun units; that the use, in principle, of those units with allied troops be permitted.

"Before acting on it I took this recommendation to you and General Pershing at the latter's house, where you dictated to the President an approval of the recommendation, based upon 'the present emergency,' but making it perfectly clear that the training and use of these troops was to be in the discretion of the American Commander in Chief."

In General Pershing's original orders as Commander-in-Chief of the American Expeditionary Forces it was specifically provided that American troops were to operate as individual units.

Rear Admiral Sims's statement on Monday concerning General Bliss's alleged recommendation was made in discussion by the Admiral of the most ef-

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Nomination and election to office of trade union officials as a part of the American Federation of Labor's "national non-partisan campaign" is urged in letters sent out to 1,000 central labor unions by the headquarters of the organization in this city.

The letter, which is signed by Samuel Gompers, Frank Morrison and James O'Connell, Campaign Executive Committee, directs the affiliation of all local committees for campaign work, and declares that the campaign places "an obligation upon us to perpetuate our liberty as working men and women and all citizens of our country." The letter reads:

"The meetings of March 22 have been held as suggested and our A. F. of L. non-partisan political campaign has been put forward with tremendous enthusiasm. Our brothers all over the land have entered into this movement in a magnificent spirit of co-operation. We believe every man and woman of the labor movement will be ready to volunteer when called upon. With this object we are sending a letter to each local union in your city requesting co-operation in this work with your central body by the selection of a committee of three.

"Our central bodies and our local non-partisan political committees have a great opportunity in the primaries. Here a smashing effort can be made to nominate members of trade unions for elective office.

"Where these brothers are candidates in the primaries our central bodies and nonpartisan political committees should endeavor to give every assistance possible to aid them to victory, regardless of party.

"In communities where this plan cannot be made successful our brothers should exhaust all their resources to defeat every enemy of labor.

"This is a duty we owe to ourselves, an obligation upon us to perpetuate our liberty as working men and women and all citizens of our country.

"By all means, endeavor to secure co-operation of sympathetic farmers and farm organizations, and appeal to all other liberty-loving citizens for support.

"We urge each worker to use the ballot to advance the principles for which labor stands. Then there will be question in the future as to the power of all the people to achieve their just demands."

EMPORIA, Kan., March 23.—Denunciation of Governor Henry J. Allen and of the Kansas Industrial Relations Court was made at the closing session today of the special conference of representatives of the Kansas Federation of Labor.

Resolutions were adopted pledging labor and farmers to defeat in the coming election all those in favor of the retention of the Industrial court law.

President Sends Nomination to Senate—Appointment Is Received with Satisfaction.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—President Wilson today sent to the Senate the nomination of Henry Morgenthau of New York, who was formerly Ambassador to Turkey, to be Ambassador to Mexico.

The appointment of Mr. Morgenthau was received with satisfaction in official and diplomatic circles, where it was interpreted as meaning that the President felt that the Mexican situation will require during the coming year the services of a man of proved capacity as the successor to former Ambassador Henry P. Fletcher, who had wide experience and showed ability in the foreign service.

The post of Ambassador to Mexico has been vacant since the resignation of Mr. Fletcher was accepted, more than a month ago. The Embassy at Mexico City, however, has not been in charge of an Ambassador for about a year, since the assignment of Ambassador Fletcher to special work for which his services were required by the State Department at Washington.

Luettwitz and Trotha Are Placed Under Arrest; Ludendorff Reported to Have Fled to Denmark

BERLIN, March 23 (Associated Press).—Major General von Luettwitz, the military commander in the Kapp revolt, has been placed under arrest, it is officially announced. Admiral von Trotha, Chief of the Admiralty, has also been arrested.

There is no definite news of Kapp's whereabouts. It is supposed he is on his estate in East Prussia.

Some of the ringleaders in the Kapp revolution against whom proceedings have begun for high treason have disappeared. They include, in addition to Dr. Kapp himself, von Jagow, Major Pabst, Colonel Bauer, Dr. Shiele and ex-Attorney Broderek.

Baron von Falkenhausen, a former Assistant Secretary of State, and Councilor Doye have been added to the list of those to be prosecuted.

BERLIN, March 23.—I learn from a reliable source that Ludendorff has fled to Denmark.

When Kapp had been two days in Wilhelmstrasse Ludendorff advised him the Junker militarist régime could not possibly continue, but the General is said to have played a very considerable part in hatching the plot which had such dire results. I am informed in official circles that an order is being prepared for the General's arrest.

LEAGUE PREPARES TO SUCCOR EUROPE

COMMITTEE DRAFTS PLAN

H. P. Davison Says Millions Face Death and That Typhus Threatens to Spread West.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 23.—The League of Nations, at the request of the Red Cross, is preparing to rescue Central Europe from the clutches of disease and hunger, which threaten the lives of millions in Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Austria, Rumania and Jugo-slavia, and indirectly the safety of the rest of Europe. Typhus is spreading across the middle of the continent and is making its way westward. More than 250,000 cases are reported in Poland alone.

At a luncheon today of French newspaper men to English and American correspondents H. P. Davison, of the American Red Cross, speaking in the name of the League of Red Cross Societies, in which thirty nations are represented, asked that all possible publicity be given to the urgency of the task, without the accomplishment of which he said world peace could not be restored. More important than treaties and votes of Parliament, he said, is the mark of mercy to aid so many millions, whose misery is a cancer in Europe.

The Executive Council of the League of Nations has named a committee to formulate a plan of action, and the Governments composing the League will be asked to supply funds and materials.

Mr. Davison emphasized that this task could not be accomplished by the Red Cross alone, nor by any other voluntary organization or group of them. He said the Red Cross had tried and failed to meet the situation. Governmental aid he declared was essential.

"Treaties or no treaties," said Mr. Davison, "peace will not come to the world until Central Europe is cleaned up. Millions are going to die there. It is too late to save millions, but there are millions which can be saved. What will save them is the aroused public opinion of the world, voiced through the Governments of nations."

Mr. Davison explained that the Red Cross had turned to the League of Nations as the best organization to take the lead in this work. He showed some embarrassment at questions by English and French journalists about America siding in the League's work.

At the Red Cross meeting just ended in Geneva representatives of twenty-seven nations adopted a plan to call upon the League of Nations as the greatest existing society of Governments to relieve the misery in Europe by furnishing food and transportation, while the Red Cross would supply doctors, nurses and medical supplies and administer the relief.

He said that despite technicalities he felt sure the American people would take their full share.

"Doesn't this show that America should join the League?" asked a British correspondent.

"It does," said Mr. Davison, "and any one who can achieve that result has my best support."

"America will aid," he continued. "All nations will aid when they know the situation, and we must show them that it is. The world does not realize that millions are dying through disease and lack of food. We of the Red Cross have tried and failed to meet the situation. We are not big enough. It is a task for all the world, and America will find a way to help.

"We tried to put a cordon across Europe against typhus and we failed. It went right by us. Who can tell where it will stop? There are 2,000,000 refugees from those countries knocking at your gates. What are you going to do about that?"

Mr. Davison said the work must be above politics, and that all the nations must join in a spirit of mercy. He said offers of aid were coming from many sources in the South American republics, and that organizations in Africa even were anxious to help.

It was his opinion that the Governments should supply the food and the transportation and their moral backing. He promised the Red Cross would recruit nurses and doctors and do the administration work. A worldwide publicity campaign will be conducted to place the situation before the peoples of all the nations.

PARIS NOW ADMITS SPARTACIDE PERIL

FEAR OF JUNKER TURNCOATS

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 22.—It is beginning to be apparent, even to the French nationalist press, that there is an executive directing force behind the proletariat movement in Germany. It is now stated here that the Communist organization in the Ruhr district is so efficient that its troops are well trained, disciplined and commanded by pro-Communist ex-officers of the imperial army, and that perfect order is being maintained and the municipal services are functioning normally. In Berlin the Communists, encouraged by Ebert's concessions, are gradually getting full control of the proletarian elements at the expense of the less thorough-going factions, whose attempts at compromise serve only to weaken their position.

In fact, as a Socialist writer, Paul Louis, expresses it, "the German revolution is proceeding according to schedule. Its advance, which appears spasmodic as events give it impetus, is really regular and continuous. There is a steady flow forward, almost without momentary ebbs backward."

The situation today has justified my assertion, based on definite information, in a dispatch sent at the beginning of last week, that the German Communists have a powerful central executive with its plans carefully laid and its aim nothing less than the establishment of a proletariat dictatorship in Germany in close relation, if not in actual alliance, with the Moscow Bolsheviki.

The French nationalist press is coming slowly to the same conclusion, and the effect would be ludicrous were the matter less serious. The very newspapers that a week ago were inveighing against the militarism of von Kapp and backing the general strike to beat him have now discovered that the proletarian movement is equally disconcerting.

"The Temps refers anxiously to the alleged tendency of the Communists to devote themselves, if successful, to obtaining modifications of the Treaty of Versailles and asks how it happens that ex-regular officers are at the head of the Communist movement in the Ruhr Valley. If the situation develops further along the same lines the day is near when the Temps will declare that the real plotters against France are not the militarists, but the Communists, and demand allied aid for the former against the latter. In other words, they will have swung back from "better the Bolshevik than the boche," to "better the boche than the Bolshevik," and once more boxed the compass around which the French attitude toward Germany has revolved since the armistice.

But by the time the Communists have won the victory, if they do win it, it may be too late for the Allies to save Ebert, as they were unable to save Kerensky. Already the French Socialists are raising the same cry of "Hands off the revolution!" which they raised about Russia. Before the Allies can make up their minds to intervene the Communists may be firmly established in the saddle. That the French will have small reason to be gratified by that event is probable enough. Obviously Germany and Russia together will be a formidable combination, and one of the first measures of the proletariat dictatorship is likely to be the repudiation of internal and external debts, according to the Marxian principles of making money of no account.

In Berlin six weeks ago I asked several of the most competent allied observers

STRIKE IS CALLED OFF

RED ARMY MOVES ON WESEL

LONDON, March 23.—The Bauer Government has come to terms with the extremists at the cost of sweeping concessions, according to a Copenhagen dispatch to The London Times.

A purely Socialist Cabinet is to be formed which will try to re-establish order and hold general elections.

The Reichswehr troops will be immediately withdrawn and Berlin workmen's guards formed.

The general strike will be stopped, but instantly resumed if the Government is unable to effectuate the stipulated conditions.

The foregoing agreement was reached this afternoon between Secretary Bauer and the trade union leaders and was followed by a split in the Independents, the smaller part of whom joined the Communists.

Strike Is Declared Off.

BERLIN, March 23 (Associated Press).—The strike committee has unanimously proclaimed the strike ended. Work will be resumed tomorrow.

President Ebert today decreed the abolition of drumhead courts martial in Greater Berlin, expressing confidence that order would not be further disturbed.

In Berlin the situation is tranquil except for a few unimportant collisions in the northeastern quarters, where the lack of provisions is badly felt. There is no indication of further trouble. Traffic was resumed on the elevated and underground roads tonight.

The National Assembly will meet on Thursday afternoon, and in preparation for this session all the parties are holding continuous meetings.

The retirement of Gustav Noske as Minister of Defense came after a stubborn attempt by his party supporters among the coalition bloc to retain him in office in opposition to the pressure of the Berlin party and labor leaders and the clamor of the Independents. His resignation was first tendered to President Ebert on Friday at Stuttgart and was at that time not accepted.

When the Ebert-Bauer Government returned to Berlin on Sunday the futility of trying to hold Noske in power was promptly discovered, and the man who had so long been a red rag to the Independents and radicals has now been cast aside.

The denunciation of Herr Noske within the ranks of his own party is only one of the numerous manifestations of impatience with the Bauer Cabinet exhibited in the last few days. Noske being censured because of obtuseness in letting himself be "hoodwinked" while the reactionary elements were influencing the army administration, and his failure to have the notorious Baltic troops, especially Erhardt's brigade, garrisoned elsewhere than outside of Berlin, where they were within easy marching distance of Wilhelmstrasse. He is also charged with keeping around him men who were not overzealous in informing him of the strength of the reactionary influences within the army.

RED ARMY DRIVES TO REACH HOLLAND

COBLENZ, March 23 (Associated Press).—Heavy fighting has been going on since noon before Wesel, on the lower right bank of the Rhine, where the Reds have attempted to wipe out the stand of the Reichswehr. The Reds are trying to get through communication with Holland in order to secure foodstuffs.

Troop movements to surround the Reman area are in progress.

It is reported that in a Spartacus attack on the post office at Dortmund this morning sixty employes and officers were killed.

In Thuringia, the Soviet Government is said to have appointed a Foreign Minister and to be printing Bolshevist money.

COPENHAGEN, March 23.—Regarding the situation at Wesel a special Berlin dispatch says that 4,000 regulars within the fortress are besieged by 8,000 Spartacides. The troops are using heavy guns. But have nevertheless failed to break the siege.

Düsseldorf dispatches say that work has been resumed in all the factories there.

Battle May Be Decisive.

LONDON, March 23.—The Bolshevist wave, the Rotterdam correspondent of The London Times says, is flowing over the greater part of Germany. General Watter, commander of the Government forces in West Germany, has to face the attacks of the great Red armies concentrated near Münster and Wesel, and may have to fight a battle decisive for Germany's future.

It appears that the Ebert Government is offering great concessions to the Spartacides in order to save the situation, which is endangered not only in the west, but in the east, where Kapp's troops are still under arms. It is believed that General Ludendorff is still active behind the Kapplists.

The latest reports show that President Ebert's position is unstable.

Describing last week's events at Essen, Reuter's Berlin correspondent says that at noon on Friday the Spartacides served an ultimatum on the police commander that they would bombard the Town Hall unless the police surrendered within half an hour. The Spartacides placed trench motars and 10.5 centimetre guns round the hall. Capitulation with all honors was eventually agreed to.

Relying on the agreement a detachment of police left the building, whereupon they were suddenly surrounded in a narrow street and forced by a heavy fire from the houses to lay down their arms. They were then driven by the infuriated mob with blows from rifle butts into prison.

Other detachments were exterminated without pity. Only a few of the police who happened to be without uniform escaped.

Conditions Like Russia.

ROTTERDAM, March 22 (Associated Press)—The conditions in the Rhine provinces, where virtually every town is in the hands of the workmen, rapidly are approaching a duplication of the conditions prevailing in Soviet Russia, according to The Rotterdamsche Courant's correspondents in Essen and Dortmund. The first step following the proclamation of Soviet republics was the opening of prisons and freeing not only political prisoners but also common prisoners. Coming closely upon the heels of this order was an invitation to the bourgeoisie to surrender all their arms. Emphasis was laid on this by announcement that failure to comply would entail prosecution by the revolutionary tribunal.

The correspondents say that the hardest task of a Soviet Government would be to maintain rationing; that failure in this respect would not be improbable, owing to the existing scarcity of foodstuffs, and that a compromise with Berlin would be necessary. They assert that only enough food is in sight for a week's rations and that the supply of potatoes will last only a few days. The hope of the Soviet Government, they assert, is to get food in exchange for coal from Holland.

The Soviet councils have taken the strictest measures against looting, say the correspondents, but they are requisitioning provisions and other commodities without pay.

Most of the other newspapers and a dispatch from the Wolff Bureau, the semi-official German news agency, declare that the Soviet towns are absolutely under Soviet censorship. The sale of alcoholic drinks is prohibited and nobody is allowed on the streets between 10 o'clock in the evening and 5 o'clock in the morning.

These dispatches declare that the Socialists have lost all influence. They are outnumbered by the Communists and Independents. They seem to be co-operating with the Bolshevikl, and are willing to accept a dictatorship of the proletariat.

50,000 Men in Red Advance.

ESSEN, Germany, March 23.—The local Executive Council announced today that the entire industrial region hereabouts was in the hands of the revolutionary workmen and that a Red army of 50,000 men was victoriously advancing on Wesel, where "the last remnants of the regular troops" were concentrated.

The Ruhr Echo announces that the left wing of the Red army's front stretches from Dinslaken, twenty-four miles from Düsseldorf, through Holten, to Dorsten, thirty-five miles southwest of Münster. Violent fighting is still proceeding on this front. Dorsten and Valsum have been taken by the Reds, together with 300 prisoners, the newspaper adds. A general advance is in progress toward Wesel.

In the vicinity of Haltern an armored train on the way to the industrial region from Münster was halted by the blowing up of a stretch of roadbed.

The general military situation, it is declared, is favorable to the revolutionaries.

A second announcement by the Executive Council said that the revolutionary workmen on Saturday captured five cannon, six mine throwers, 3,000 rifles, 30,000 cartridges, 200 horses and much baggage. In the taking of Dorsten the Reds captured 300 Reichswehr, the announcement added.

BERLIN, March 23 (Associated Press.)—Order has not yet been re-established at Nordhausen, Saxony, and the situation at Sondershausen and Coburg is worse. The demand for disarmament of volunteers in those places having been rejected, the extremists have armed themselves.

Latest dispatches from Halle say that after very stubborn fighting the troops are masters of the situation. The workmen retired to the environs of Halle. Passenger traffic to Berlin was resumed today.

Minister of Posts Giesberts and General Braun, Chief of Staff of the Reichswehr, have gone to the Ruhr region with instructions to negotiate with the workers there.

Quiet has been completely restored in Wilhelmshaven, Wismar and Rostock, and there is no further apprehension of the return of the Soviets.

The situation in Saxony at Zwickau and Chemnitz, as well as in Thuringia, remains undecided. Leipsic is reported to be generally quiet. The revolting forces have begun to disarm, and the commanding General has lasted a proclamation threatening extreme measures against further attempts at disorder.

A message from Meiningen says that regulars have been withdrawn and a committee of action has taken over the executive power at Coburg. The fortress has been occupied by regulars.

Peasants Cut Off Food.

BERNE, March 23.—More than 300 persons have been killed in the fighting at Elberfeld, in the Ruhr region near the occupied zone, and in the neighborhood of that city, according to today's advices from western Germany. The Communists took about 600 of the Reichswehr prisoner at Elberfeld and 200 additional at another point.

Famine is declared to be threatening Bochum, Dortmund, Düsseldorf and Elberfeld, because the peasants are refusing to deliver food to the Communists. Encounters already have occurred between peasants and patrols of Communists which were out in the country requisitioning supplies.

The hospitals at Elberfeld are full of wounded soldiers and civilians as the result of the fighting in that neighborhood.

Deny Soviet Aims.

PARIS, March 23.—A French manufacturer who returned yesterday from Duisburg, in the Ruhr district southwest of Essen, reported that he had found himself able to buy and to have delivered in twenty-four hours two tank cars and that he had no trouble in making railroad connections to France. He said the revolutionary troops in that region were for the most part ex-soldiers, commanded by non-commissioned officers, and that they declared their object was not to establish Soviets, but to re-establish order so that work might be resumed in the manufacturing district.

EVERY GERMAN TOWN NOW AN ARMED CAMP

BERLIN, March 22.—With Governments of different types and colors in each town of Germany, and each town cut off from its neighbors and not knowing whether or not those neighbors, anxious to extend their particular control, are planning an attack, fear has spread throughout the country. This would only be natural among a people where warlike preparation was universal and where a willingness to kill in the name of any or whatever authority in control happens to give the order, is recognized.

In Germany, as elsewhere, it is the man with the gun who gives the orders—only in Germany it would appear that this axiom of might is more generally understood than it is in countries more ideally inclined.

Each town became an armed camp, rifles, pistols, potato mashers, bombs, and even old sabres dating as far back as 1780, appeared wherever adherents and eager volunteers were ready to be sworn in and to carry arms.

In some places control was disputed between two or more parties, and in these instances there was serious street fighting, with family against family and brother against brother. It was as though all of them had become frenzied and in their ignorance looked upon each other as a possible enemy.

In a one-hour motor ride out of Cologne I encountered the first Soviet authorities on the edge of the manufacturing town of Lennep. It was a veritable wild mob that charged over the top of the hill to meet the motor. There were boys and old men among them. Some of them carried two rifles. Almost all of them had bombs hanging from their belts. They crowded around the car, climbing upon the running boards and fenders. One wildly cheering youngster of 12 climbed on top of the car and shouted in his unintelligible exuberance.

My traveling bag and typewriter case were rifled in a jiffy. One man with grimy hands examined my passport, bearing an Ebert Government visé under a Paris date. He laughed at it and declared the Ebert Government was no more. The proletariat was in command, the Communists had taken over dozens of towns throughout Germany, and the success of the workers was spreading.

Erzberger Arrives in Amsterdam.

LONDON, March 23.—Matthias Erzberger, the former German Finance Minister and Vice Chancellor, has arrived at Amsterdam, according to a Rotterdam dispatch to The London Times.

LUST FOR REVENGE RAGED IN BERLIN

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN (via Nauen), March 23.—The Government is already beginning to eliminate traitorous elements from the officers' corps. All those officers of the Berlin garrison who shortly before the Kapp revolution assembled their men for the movement against the Government have been notified of their dismissal without pension, it being assumed that Parliament will approve this action if necessary.

The dismissed officers are mostly of the lower ranks and younger men, the older ones in many cases having wisely avoided taking an active part in the revolution.

The Government had written assurance of loyalty from all generals and commanding colonels, and many loyalty refused to take orders from von Kapp. These will be retained, while most of the others have been, or will be, immediately replaced by members of the Republican Military Leaders' League.

The hatred of the people against officers has in many cases taken on most atrocious forms. Hideous stories are circulating which cannot be verified because the authorities refuse information. However, THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent is informed that eight officers who were riding in an automobile were cruelly murdered by a mob in Schoenberg. The rioters stopped the car at a railway crossing. Before the officers realized their peril and could draw their revolvers they were overpowered by a great crowd, thrown on the tracks, trampled and kicked to death, some having their limbs torn from their bodies. Not one escaped.

At Wilmersdorf one young officer who was chased along the streets finally managed to reach a house where the widow of a brother officer lived. He begged her to supply him with civilian clothes, but the widow, not having any, conducted him to a retired major's flat next door, where he obtained the garments and was enabled to escape over the roofs of adjoining houses.

Meanwhile the mob furiously clamored for entrance at the door, which had been shut and barricaded. It tried battering ram tactics and threw heavy stones through the windows, shouting that every person within would be killed unless the young officer was surrendered.

There was no possibility of placating the mob, which finally forced its way into the house, which it found completely deserted, all the frightened residents having followed the officer over the roofs.

In many cases entirely innocent persons have suffered from this lust for revenge. For example, all the private hospitals in the western part of Berlin where wealthy patients, especially officers, are under treatment had to be left without attendance for more than four days.

One can realize what this means only when it is known that the supplies of water, gas and electricity were almost entirely shut off, or at any rate reduced to a minimum.

But even the public hospitals, with their thousands of patients, fared almost as badly, because the nurses, having been told that von Kapp would reintroduce the twelve-hour workday, joined the strike. In the Rummelsburg Orphan Asylum 800 children were almost entirely deserted and would have perished if some benevolent suburbanites had not volunteered their services. Even so, the asylum's morgue is full of little dead bodies.

BERLIN, March 22.—The Government's Secret Service men have ascertained that while Kapp and Lüttwitz are hidden some place in Pomerania, most of the minor conspirators are still in Berlin, their hiding places being known and watched in the hope of thus finding out the exact whereabouts of the chief conspirators. Some army officers have been arrested for aiding Kapp's escape.

The Secret Service men have also discovered that certain members of high financial circles and mine owners contributed freely toward the Kapp funds, and though they may have refused to listen to the details they knew the ultimate aim.

Communists knew of the coming monarchist push nearly four weeks ago, but instead of informing their Independent Socialist brethren they communicated with Moscow, with the result that Radek was immediately ordered back to Germany. Radek arrived in Berlin nearly a whole week before Kapp established himself in Wilhelmstrasse, and immediately set to work preparing for a Bolshevist rising, which was to follow Kapp's downfall. He is said to have had a large amount of Bolshevist money sent from Holland to the Ruhr district, where it was likely to work more decisive results than in any other part of Germany. Radek is still in Berlin, but successfully evades all efforts to spot him.

General von Seeckt is negotiating with the leaders of the Baltic troops to use them against the Bolsheviki in the Ruhr district, the Government tacitly consenting, glad to get rid of them at least temporarily. There are, however, difficulties, the Baltic troops making exorbitant demands, while some of the troops in the Ruhr district refuse to fight shoulder to shoulder with traitors.

LERSNER SAYS TREATY CAUSES RED TERROR

Must Be Revised to Let Germany Get to Work, Declares Former Agent at Paris.

BERLIN, March 23.—"Spartacism will persist in Germany until the Versailles treaty is revised and the German people can go to work again," said Baron von Lersner, the German representative in Paris, who signed the protocol and made the treaty effective in January, then refused to accept the list of war criminals handed to him by Premier Millerand.

"We have thousands of men workless in Germany and when demobilization is carried out we will have thousands more. These masses of idle and unemployed form breeding spots for Bolshevism and Spartacism. We must have a mass of unemployed until the barriers are raised and we receive credits for raw materials from the outside world.

"The blockade still exists to all intents and purposes. The reparations clauses in the treaty must be ameliorated and we must be permitted to obtain the necessities and to resume our commercial life.

"We must have shipping, too. Hundreds of thousands of tons seized by the Allies are lying idle since the armistice because the Allies cannot agree to their partition. If Germany had been using that tonnage the whole world would have prospered through interchange of exports and imports and Germany would be getting on its feet again, reducing unemployment.

"The crisis probably will be passed in the next seventy-two hours, but there always will remain the menace of Spartacism until the treaty is revised."

BERLIN, March 21.—The hatred of the working classes against the militarists has led to an awful massacre at the Johannistal flying grounds. On Saturday evening the workmen employed there told the officers of the small garrison Germany was now a Soviet Republic and they had better get out of Johannistal. There being, however, material worth millions stored at Johannistal the officers refused and fighting ensued, some soldiers joining workmen against officers, who soon were overpowered.

This Sunday morning a detachment of the army appeared at Johannistal and asked its surrender. The workmen refused and a regular battle took place with twenty killed and many wounded on both sides. Finally the soldiers bore down the stockade and overpowered the workmen.

In one shed was discovered the bodies of four officers with eyes gouged out, their noses and ears cut off and other mutilations. The soldiers became so enraged at the gruesome spectacle they immediately picked twenty-five workmen who had been put out as leaders, stood them up against a wall and shot them.

The cruel deeds quickly made the round at various labor meetings and prevented many men voting for resuming work immediately.

ALLIES WILL GUARD ROADS INTO GERMANY

LONDON, March 23.—Berlin, according to news received in official quarters here, is settling down again. There are still disturbances in some of the suburbs, but impartial investigation by members of the British mission shows that the reports concerning them are exaggerated. The strike movement seems to be broken up. Underground trains have resumed running and service on the main lines is generally improving.

The Ruhr district situation, on the other hand, continues serious, and any hopes for immediate betterment are based on economic conditions. The strike, it is hoped, will break down of its own weight as the shortage of food begins to make itself apparent, and the workers may grow tired of going hungry for the sake of political agitation. If they do hold out, however, they have a force of 20,000 well supplied with rifles, but lacking in heavier articles of equipment, and may be a formidable army for the Government to tackle.

I am informed that the Allies have no intention of interfering, but will take the steps necessary to keep open certain railroads which they need for themselves. These are chiefly in occupied territory, but for certain stretches run through unoccupied Germany, and if they were tampered with the Allies might act to restore them.

Meanwhile in Pomerania the peasants are creating disturbances. That province is one of the strongholds of the Junkers, and its landed proprietors were among the chief backers of the Kapp movement. This angered the peasants, who are now in revolt.

SEES FRENCH DISASTER IN RUHR UPRISING

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 24.—Pertinax writes in to-day's Echo de Paris:

"The most extraordinary accounts of what has been happening in Duisburg have been brought to Paris by French business men who have been in the town throughout the Spartacist revolution. Their statements show first, that all train service is working normally, that the Communists' army is commanded by officers and non-commissioned officers of the former army, mostly engineers. The discipline is perfect as in the old army and the men salute the officers in the street. All public services are functioning normally. Some of the officers informed the Frenchmen that they represented a federation of employes, workers and army associations.

"'We want to free ourselves from the Prussian regime,' they declared, 'and create a great organized Germany for the strongest economic production possible. We want a Government of technicians.'

"An order has been given to stop the exportation of all primary materials, coal, &c. On the other hand, the Frenchmen were able to bring back to France without any difficulty wagon loads of manufactured goods.

"Before the Communist attack the Reichswehr, though strongly armed, fell back without fighting.

"It is of first importance to obtain all confirmatory information. It is at the same time essential to attempt allowing a hypothesis which is supported by numerous facts.

"The Germany which is threatening the execution of the treaty is not the Germany of discredited junkers and Pan Germanists. It is a Germany organized for the most efficacious and intense economic action. On account of this evolution, the national sentiment for revenge will gather greater force.

"Consider this new aspect of the problem of the Ruhr, which has become more and more tragic for France. Our country which before the war used 60,000,000 tons of coal has 30,000,000—20,000,000 of home production and 10,000,000 imported from England.

"There is a net deficit of 30,000,000. French industry is being reduced through this deficit to rations and production in consequence falls off. It means slow death by asphyxiation. Germany by the treaty terms owes us 27,000,000 tons yearly. In the last three months we have received only 300,000 tons a month. The quantities delivered have constantly diminished. If the Communist army prolongs the occupation of the Ruhr it is the end of all delivery of coal. Can the Allies accept France's disaster? Can France accept it for herself?"

The following article by Pertinax appeared in yesterday's Echo de Paris:

"Pourparlers which have been going on during the last eight days in the Supreme Council at London on the German situation have so far produced no result. They appear to be drifting toward a compromise which will consist of demanding a promise from the Germans that the troops they have sent or propose sending to the Ruhr district shall be recalled within a very few weeks. So far the French Government has taken no formal decision and, in view of the dissatisfaction which is being expressed in parliamentary circles, and which will find expression in interpellation of the Government on Thursday, it is likely that M. Millerand will continue the attitude of protest which he has maintained during the last eight days."

Conference Reaches No Decision.

LONDON, March 23.—The situation in the Ruhr Valley, the stronghold of the German Reds, is expected in diplomatic and military circles here to remain virtually unchanged until the peace conferees in London decide whether German Government troops shall be allowed in that district.

The conference had before it yesterday a protest by Czechoslovakia against such action. It failed to reach a decision, and put over to today the question whether the valley should be allowed to remain as it is or if the Czech protest should be overridden.

This is the only instance where the Entente may take a hand in the German disorders, and then only because Germany under the provisions of the Treaty of Versailles does not control that portion of the country. It is declared here that the Entente is still maintaining a hands-off policy, notwithstanding the recurring reports that the British mission in Berlin is attempting to dictate to the Ebert Government.

This morning's official messages state that the Reds in the Ruhr Valley possess no effective artillery or tanks, but are plentifully supplied with rifles.

At a late hour this afternoon the Peace Conference had not reached any decision on the question of permission for German Government troops to enter the Ruhr district, so far as could be learned.

PARIS, March 24.—Following up the request of the German Government that the Supreme Council authorize the sending of German troops into the Ruhr district, German officers have arrived in Paris to present the project before the representatives of the Allies. It is understood that they will ask permission for the State Government to send 100,000 soldiers or police into that territory.

SLESVIG PALACE TAKEN BY REBELS

Communists Defeated in Coburg with Losses Reported Over 1,000 —40 Killed in Spandau.

BERLIN, March 23 (Associated Press).—Insurgents have captured the palace in the town of Slesvig, capital of the Province of Slesvig-Holstein, according to a dispatch received here. A number of officers of Cavalry Regiment No. 18 were taken prisoners. A so-called Committee of Action is in control of Schleswig, the dispatch says.

A detachment of the Löwenfeld Naval Brigade on the way to Eckernförde, ten miles southeast of Slesvig, was held up by the citizen guard of Eckernförde, but a truce was established as a result of negotiations with the Slesvig Committee of Action. The detachment will be allowed to proceed to Dugenstadt, near Rendsburg.

COBURG, Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, March 23.—A heavy defeat has been inflicted on the Communist forces, who lost more than one thousand killed, according to the Reichswehr commander in this region. The Reichswehr had nineteen killed and thirty-four wounded, while nine are missing.

LONDON, March 23.—The Communist Councils in Saxony have begun to divide the large cities there, it is reported in a Berlin dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company today.

The clash between regular troops and insurgents at Henningdorf, near Spandau, on Monday, resulted in the killing of forty persons and the wounding of sixty-five others, according to an Exchange Telegraph Company message from Berlin today.

LEIPSIC, March 23.—The deaths in the fighting in this city between Communists and troops are now put at 150 on both sides. Lieutenant Büchner, the well-known German aviator who was credited with forty victories in the air during the war, was shot down and killed during the fighting.

COPENHAGEN, March 23.—A Leipsic telegram received here last night says that fighting at Halle and in the neighborhood of that place continues with undiminished violence, both the troops and the workers' forces using artillery. Halle has been completely cut off from the outside world.

Work was resumed in the shipyards at Hamburg on Monday, according to dispatches received here, and a telegram from Kiel says that workmen there have decided to resume their posts in the most essential public services.

whether it was not likely that some of the strongest and ablest militarists of the old régime might come to think one day that Communism in alliance with Russia really gave Germany her best chance of "coming back" as a power in Europe.

"Why, certainly," was the reply. "If once the Communists appear to be winning there will be plenty of people on the extreme right who will join them for that very reason. Some of them have said so quite openly already."

Another speaker added:

"Yes, and there are still more people among the small bourgeoisie who would join them, too, from sheer desperation. I have seen it written in America and England that no proletarian revolution can succeed in Germany because there is a big body of conservative small bourgeois who would never tolerate it. But it is not realized that it was the small bourgeoisie which suffered most both in men and money from the war. Specialist workmen were held back from the front, but the lower bourgeoisie the small proprietors, small renters and small store-keepers, paid the toll of blood to the full and were ruined into the bargain. The depreciation of the mark struck them harder than any other class, and, instead of being, as they would be in normal circumstances, an anti-revolutionary force, the first real success would bring them flocking to the Communist banner, just as a drowning man clutches at a straw."

boys, the award provides for an advance in such wages of $1 per day, and trappers and boys receiving less than men's wages 53 cents per day. The minority report in this respect differed from the award and proposed that day laborers and men, except trappers and other boys, be advanced $1.35 per day, trappers and boys receiving less than men's wages to be advanced 75 cents per day. In regard to wages for other classes of labor, yardage, dead work and room turning, the two reports are in agreement, the increase being fixed at 20 per cent.

The award retains the eight-hour day and the minority report agrees to retain the present working day for one year, recommending a reduction in working time after that period. Both reports agree as to the termination of the contract, the decision being in favor of the Spring. Both reports provide for tribunals for the settlement of points of difference between the operators and the miners, the majority report proposing a commission to be selected jointly by the operators and the miners, to consider certain differentials and also a commission for the settlement of future disputes between the operators and the miners.

The award recognizes the fact that the coal industry is "speculatively overdeveloped" and the fact that it will be necessary under competitive conditions for some of the mines now in operation to close down. The question of car pushing, camps and housing, power, coal for the miners and blacksmithing are dealt with specifically in both reports and the differences in these matters are not material.

Recommends Storage in Summer.

In addition to the award, the majority report recommends the storage of a minimum of three months' Winter supply of bituminous coal for July 1 of each year by Federal Government departments, public utilities, railroads and other consumers; the study by the Interstate Commerce Commission of the advisability of instituting freight rates for coal lower in the Spring than in the Fall and Winter months, and steps to minimize as far as possible car shortage in the transportation of coal.

The majority report does not touch on the question of prices, as this is not a matter within its jurisdiction, but a minority report, on the assumption that Mr. Garfield in his statement that coal operators were able to absorb an increase of 14 per cent. and that 86 per cent. of that advance was not absorbed, stated that "it seems apparent that the additional 13 per cent. now called for should be taken care of by the operators."

In submitting their report Messrs. Robinson and Peale said in part:

"Every effort was made to ascertain the actual increase in the cost of living to the miners. Many different figures and opinions were presented. Our award, as the result of careful scrutiny of all the evidence submitted by the parties in interest and otherwise obtained, grants the miners an advance in wages larger than the percentage of increase in the cost of living submitted by their representatives.

"Tonnage workers will have received under this award an average increase in wages since 1918 of 88 per cent., and day men, part of whose previous advance was based on existing inequalities in compensation rather than on increased living costs, will have received an average advance of 111 per cent.

"The other main point of the United Mine Workers' contention—a reduction in the working hours from eight to six hours a day, and five days a week—is not granted, for the reason we state in the report. We are convinced that a curtailment of productive energy would react not only against the whole population but against the miners themselves.

"It is essential that the miners shall have living wages. It is likewise essential in the public interest that there shall be no let-down in production.

Want Attempt to Hold Output.

"A wage settlement for the moment is not a correct or adequate answer to the problem. The coal industry has been on an unsound basis for years, because of its seasonal character and the resulting car shortages and car service intermittences. The heavy movement of bituminous coal comes in the Fall and Winter. Inevitably, with the buying and movement limited to one season, there is a great car shortage, which limits production. When the market drops in the Spring and Summer, there are idle men, idle mines, and idle cars. From the standpoint of employers and employes the industry has yielded a hazardous return.

"The solution of the problem is to bring about evenness of production and distribution. This can be done by the co-operation of the railroads, public utilities, and steel companies as consumers, on the one side, and of the operators, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the banks and the Federal Reserve System, on the other side.

"We believe that the Federal Reserve Banks will view favorably the eligibility of commercial paper based upon coal purchased and stored by the railroads and public utilities for the dull periods. Some of the leading railroads have given assurances of their co-operation. Others approached have not.

"If virtually complete co-operation is assured, it will result in time in a substantially even production, continuous employment, and even distribution throughout the year. The small consumer will then not have to compete with the large consumer in the Winter and will not be at the mercy of the practice of commandeering on the ground of priority.

"Until this is done, wage costs must of necessity be high, but when this is accomplished prices should be more reasonable, employment more continuous, and the industry better stabilized. The present inexcusable and extravagant waste would then be eliminated.

"The mine workers themselves, we feel sure, recognize that no other remedy will be adequate. A shortening of the working day would seriously affect production, add additional workers to the industry and increase the present unsatisfactory condition. This increased production would, in turn, add still further to the cost of living, hitting the workmen in other industries, and continue the folly of such pyramiding."

Text of President's Letter.

President Wilson's letter to the operators and miners follows:

"The White House,
"Washington, March 19, 1920.

"Gentlemen—I am transmitting to you herewith a copy of the report and award of the Bituminous Coal Commission, appointed to adjust matters in controversy between the bituminous coal miners and operators of the country.

"In accordance with instructions in my letter of appointment to the commission and memorandum attached thereto, and the agreements by mine workers and operators to abide by the report and award of the commission, this report and the award is the basis upon which the wage schedule agreements between the mine workers and operators shall be made.

"Operators and miners should, therefore, make arrangements for convening the necessary joint conferences as soon as possible to make such changes in the terms, provisions and conditions, mining rates and wage schedules as are set forth in this report and award.

"It is essential to the public welfare that the agreements be concluded at the earliest date practicable so that the uncertainty as to fuel supply may be ended and that consumers may be able to make contracts for their coal supply and also that the recommendations contained in the report as to the storage of coal by consumers may be of service this year.

"I also inclose as information copy of minority report by one member of the commission. This minority report concurs with the report of the commission as to the wage for miners, though dissenting as to the wage for day workers, and in part concurs and in part dissents on other points. I regret that the members of the commission were not unanimous on all points, as I had expressed the hope they would be, but the report of the majority is none the less the report of the commission and binding as such.

Holds Majority Report Binding.

"I take it that neither party will raise any question, and I am sure no question can properly be raised as to the binding character of the award, notwithstanding the fact that it is not unanimous. On Dec. 10, 1919, the miners, without qualification, agreed to submit all questions to a decision of a commission of three persons to be appointed by me, the report of such commission to be made the basis of a new wage agreement. This definite and unqualified acceptance did not in any way limit the power which any such commission is always understood to have, in the absence of agreement to the contrary, that it may reach a decision by majority vote. The acceptance of the operators was equally unqualified on this point. This condition was in no way changed by my subsequent action on Dec. 19 in expressing a belief as to the desirability of the importance of unanimous action.

"My appointment of the commission indicated that the power to fix the price of coal would not be conferred upon the commission except for its unanimous action and therefore it is clear that such power to fix coal prices should not be conferred on the commission.

"I have carefully considered the question whether the war power of the Lever act should be temporarily invoked by me, despite the absence of any action of the commission so recommending, to continue temporarily the control of prices and have concluded that it is not expedient for me to exercise any such price-fixing control so that, on and after April 1, 1920, no Government maximum prices will be enforced.

"There is, at present, no provision of law for fixing new coal prices for peace-time purposes, and unless and until some grave emergency shall arise, which in my judgment has a relation to the emergency purposes of the Lever act, I would not feel justified in fixing coal prices with reference to future conditions of production.

"I am aware that at present, as a result of the shortage created by the coal strike and of the consequent interference with transportation and as a result, also, of the exceptionally unfavorable Winter, the demand for coal continues active. I desire to impress upon the coal operators the extreme importance not only of their complying to the fullest extent with the laws against combinations in restraint of trade and against profiteering, but also of their exerting themselves affirmatively to prevent exacting of unreasonable prices for coal. I am sure the public fully appreciates the desirability, where practicable, of leaving commercial transactions untrammeled, but at the same time I am satisfied the public will find ways to protect itself if such liberal policy shall appear to result in unreasonably high prices. Sincerely yours,

"WOODROW WILSON."

BRITISH DEPLORE LEAGUE DELAY HERE

But London Papers Express Faith That America Will Yet Join.

FEAR ABUSE IN CAMPAIGN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 23.—The Daily Telegraph, in an editorial on the Senate's rejection of the Peace Treaty and the expectation that the League of Nations will become a political issue in the American Presidential election, says:

"The prospect concerns this country only to this extent, that such an election with the League issue in the foreground will be the opportunity of opportunities for all those in the United States who cultivate for their political advantage the time-honored practice of heaping abuse on Great Britain. It is a practice which we have long learned to regard as thinking people in America regard it, and there is no danger of its becoming a two-sided game. Mischief is done by it, but the mischief passes and the steady progress from strength to strength of Anglo-American understanding and friendship will pursue its course in defiance of all obstacles of that sort.

"There cannot be any reasonable doubt that the objects of the League are objects which the American people have closely at heart and that they deplore the failure to arrive at any settlement of conditions upon which their country could consent to inclusion in the League. If this be so, they will have their wish in the end, for whatever may be the development and outcome of this year's Presidential campaign, it cannot result in the election of a candidate pledged to oppose or even to postpone the fulfillment of the purpose upon which there is so great a measure of national agreement."

The Daily Graphic says: "During more than eight months the Senate has been discussing the European settlement and meanwhile, largely owing to that, delay and confusion have become worse and worse throughout stricken Europe. The inability of the Senate to come to a decision has caused fearful misery and has cost countless lives.

"Democracy is government by discussion. During the war and after its conclusion we have heard numerous protests against secret diplomacy and have been adjured to conclude a democratic peace. The United States form the greatest and freest democracy in the world. The endless and fruitless discussions in the American Senate have scarcely increased the prestige of democracy with regard to its management of urgent and vital foreign affairs."

Discussing "America and the Peace Treaty," The Westminster Gazette, after remarking that "wire pullers and party managers have no doubt contributed to the result and in so doing have not distinguished themselves more than their kind in other countries," recalls Lord Grey's letter, and asks who shall say that a quiet people, removed by 3,000 miles of sea, "have not excuses for hesitating when they see the continuing chaos of the old world, the savage interecine conflicts which still rage, the delays, hesitations, lack of principle and purpose which still seem to characterize its statesmanship, the misery and bankruptcy for which its combined wisdom appears to have no remedy?"

"The mood is natural," the paper continues, "and yet we are convinced that the American people will come out of it. President Wilson has told them that there will be no neutrals in the next war and he remains profoundly right. If with all the forces making for neutrality America was unable to hold aloof in the last war it is certain that she will not be able to stand aside from another war, supposing there is another.

"If preparation for war is to continue the circle will widen and not contract, and 3,000 miles of sea will be no greater barrier than our twenty miles of Channel to prevent another war.

"To stay preparations for war remaining, therefore, for America, as for us, the dominant problem in her relations with the world. With America following her own lead in the League of Nations the world can be made reasonably secure. Without America we must still do the best we can for ourselves in Europe, but our league will inevitably take on the color of a European alliance."

In conclusion, The Westminster Gazette says:

"We would ask Mr. Hoover, who knows better than any other man what the present state of Europe is, to use his influence so that the economic measures so urgently needed by millions who are on the verge of starvation shall not be help up or indefinitely delayed by the action of the Senate."

AIR TRANSPORT IN ENGLAND.

Since last September commercial airplanes in England have carried 4,201 passengers and 50,000 pounds of freight, a total of 84,428 miles without injury to a person or a single loss of goods, Handley Page, one of the leading aircraft manufacturers in Britain said last night in an address at a joint meeting of the Aero Club of America and the New York Electrical Society in the Engineering Societies Building. The passenger tariff between London and Paris by plane was $60 each way, while a charge of 50 cents per pound was made for freight, he said.

"The value of this means of travel to the business man is apparent, he said. "When I am in Paris I receive in the afternoon the mail which had been left on my desk in my London office. A person leaving London at at 3 o'clock that afternoon. Using 11 A. M. by airplane arrives in Paris train and boat a traveller would have to leave the English city at 8:30 in the morning in order to reach Paris by six o'clock."

"The influence of air transport is going to be enormous in the world's development, especially in the United States, where there are such great distances," he continued. "Distances are measured generally by the time it takes to go from one point to another. The distance of 1,000 miles between New York and Chicago makes no impression on a business man; he knows only of the twenty hours by train. By airplane the two cities would be seven or eight hours apart, which would thus move the Western city in point of time to the position of Syracuse by rail."

Pope Receives Paderewski.

ROME, March 22.—Pope Benedict today received in private audience former Premier Paderewski of Poland. The Pope expressed his pleasure in seeing the man who took a leading part in the establishment of the Polish State. After outlining the grave problems facing the country the former Premier thanked the Pope for the assistance which the Holy See extended to Poland during the war and since the armistice. M. Paderewski later had a long conference with Cardinal Gasparri, the Papal Secretary of State.

Italian Catholics to Expel Deputy.

ROME, March 22.—The Catholic Deputy Miglioli has been denounced to the directorate of the party and his expulsion requested for a speech he made to peasants at Dergamo in favor of extreme Socialist doctrines in which he eulogized Lenin. Miglioli represents among the Catholics what formerly was termed Christian Socialism.

LODGE CONSULTS ON PEACE ACTION

Disposition in Each House Is to Let the Other Lead—May Take Up Tinkham Plan.

HINT OF WILSON DECISION

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—The form of a resolution declaring peace was discussed today by Senator Lodge, Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and Representative Porter, Chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

They did not reach any definite agreement on a plan, but it was announced later that the House committee probably would take up the resolution introduced last week by Representative Tinkham of Massachusetts at an early date.

Some Senators favor letting the House take the initiative in action on a peace resolution, while among House members the inclination is to wait for the Senate. But because of the increasing difficulty of keeping a quorum of the Senate, that body probably would not be able to act for some time, Senators said. It would be impossible to get more than a third of the members of the Foreign Relations Committee together now for a meeting, because of the illness or absence of members.

An intimation that a statement from President Wilson making plain to Congress whether he would accept a joint peace resolution or would veto it might be forthcoming within a few days increased the inclination of many members in both houses to let matters drift. According to this report, the President intends to call a Cabinet meeting, probably early next week, to consider the whole international situation, and out of that meeting, Senators thought might grow some decision by Mr. Wilson to state publicly his intentions with respect to making peace.

Now that the treaty has been rejected, some Senators have begun to suffer from a species of panic, wondering what will happen if no permanent peace arrangement can be made quickly. The more they consider the possibilities, some Senators say, the less likelihood they see of the speedy re-establishment of the technical relations of peace which are necessary before American business can resume relations to the fullest extent with German business.

A peace resolution or a modus vivendi would serve for only a short time, Senators said, and if in the meantime no steps were taken to negotiate a permanent treaty those Senators who helped reject the treaty might find themselves at election time under the responsibility before angry constituents of having created an embarrassing business situation.

A practically general feeling that Congress must do something about it is likely to result, Senators said, in the passage of some sort of resolution. The simpler it is, leaders declare, the more quickly it will pass.

LODGE REPLIES TO CRITICS.

Tells Ministers Wilson Must Decide on Yielding as to Treaty.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., March 23.—Senator Lodge in a telegram to the Hampden Association of Congregational Ministers here today in reply to one from the association criticising Senators for failure to ratify the Peace Treaty said:

"Reservations were placed upon the treaty which a decisive majority of the Senate felt were necessary for the protection of the independence, the sovereignty and the peace of the United States. The President's followers in the Senate under his direction refused to ratify the treaty with those reservations.

The treaty can be ratified with those reservations but not without them, and it is for the President to determine whether he is ready to accept them in order that the treaty may be ratified."

CHINA'S HOPES IN LAMONT.

Copyright, 1920, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PEKING, March 19.—The coming of Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co., who is due to arrive in Peking tomorrow, is viewed here, both by the Government and foreigners, as a matter of importance.

Observers believe that the recent Cabinet fight between the Premier and three of the Anfu Club Cabinet members was a battle to see who should gain an advantageous position in dealing with Mr. Lamont regarding the consortium.

Mr. Lamont's coming gives fresh hope to the Chinese that the consortium plan will win. Those best informed say the British and French are backing America, and if Japan sees that America means to do business whether it joins the consortium or not she will come in on an equal basis without excluding her sphere in Manchuria.

The best-known American financier here told me yesterday it would require $500,000,000 over a period of ten years to build the necessary additional 5,000 miles of railroads, to open waterways, build harbor facilities, reorganize finances and really start China. With China's great land tax completely reorganized she easily could repay her loan.

"If America lends money to Japan without tieing up Japan's loans to China in the consortium, Japan simply will use our money in its own schemes to gain control of China," he continued. "Once Japan gets China completely under its thumb and China's great resources organized, Japan will menace the world's peace—granted, of course, that Japan's present military party continues to be all-powerful. The consortium will save China from Japan and from China's own inefficient, grafting Government."

CHINA'S HOPE IN LEAGUE.

Dr. Wang, Peace Delegate, Has No Faith in Shantung Negotiations.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 17.—Dr. C. T. Wang, who was one of the prominent members of China's delegation to the Peace Conference at Paris, has returned from France and has announced that he plans to submit a report to the Peking Government some time in March. On his arrival in China after a stay of a few days at the southern capital of Canton, he came to Shanghai, intending later to go on to Peking.

While in Shaghai, Dr. Wang remarked that President Wilson had done "everything in his power at Paris to support China's contention in the Shantung controversy." He declared that China's diplomatic defeat came as a bitter disappointment to President Wilson, who found himself powerless to overcome the obstacles that were raised to defeat his purposes.

"China's only hope for a just settlement of the Shantung question," he said, "now lies with the League of Nations, not in direct negotiations between Japan and China, which Tokio is seeking to open."

He added, however, that the League was still only a hope to be realized.

"It is only a beginning," he said, "like a scaffolding around which a great superstructure in time may be built, and it cannot be a success without America."

Popular opinion in China ascribes to Dr. Wang more than to any member of the delegation credit for the fact that China did not sign the Treaty of Versailles, and it is held that he is the one man who stood firm at the eleventh hour when the allied powers sent word that no nation would be permitted at that time to sign with reservations that China would have to accept the treaty as drawn or not at all. He was first, according to general belief, to send back word that China would not sign at all.

TENANTS OF OFFICES JOIN THE RENT WAR

LAWYERS TELL OF WOES

Tenants of downtown office buildings met yesterday at Wagner's restaurant, Duane Street and Broadway, and formed an organization to be known as the Office Tenants League for the purpose of resisting the payment of exorbitant rentals. Most of those present were lawyers with offices in the Langdon Building, at 309 Broadway, the property of the Brandegee estate, which is soon to pass into the possession of the Broadway-John Street Corporation.

Speakers declared that profiteering in rentals has reached the office buildings, and that professional and business men will soon face an office situation as bad as that confronting families.

Frank M. Franklin, an attorney, and tenant of 309 Broadway, said that all the tenants in the building had been notified they must move by May 1, when the new company will take possession. Space is being offered to outsiders, he said, at increases of from 200 to 400 per cent. Last year the rentals were increased 50 per cent., which the tenants gladly paid, he said.

The possibilities of relief at law were discussed, and it was decided to hold a mass meeting soon to reach all those similarly situated. It was also decided to appeal to the Legislature to pass laws to curb the profiteer in office space. Legislative and conciliation committees were appointed.

Police reserves from the Brownsville station were sent last night to 1,876 Douglas Street to prevent disorder attending the eviction of sixteen of the twenty families in the house. The tenants had refused to pay increases, said to be 50 per cent., demanded by the landlord, who warned them they might expect another increase on May 1. The landlord is J. G. Feldman. Four tenants were evicted yesterday and the others, it is said, will be evicted today. Some of the evicted tenants were taken in by neighbors. The City Marshal's employes did not evict Mr. and Mrs. Elias Rockoff, one of whose five children had measles.

Leo Kenneth Mayer, counsel to the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering, yesterday heard a complaint of the tenants of 876 East 176th Street against Mrs. Rose Gordon of 418 East Fifty-first Street, owner of the house. From the data supplied to him by Mrs. Gordon and I. Binkman, her lawyer, Mr. Mayer said it appeared that Mrs. Gordon purchased the property knowing that the income from rent was $8,000 and the expenses $8,896. Although the assessed valuation of the property was $19,000, the house cost Mrs. Gordon, according to her lawyer's statement, $75,000.

"You client knew that the rent roll was less than the expenses, and yet she bought the house," Mr. Mayer said to Mr. Binkman. The latter asserted that the previous owner lost money. Tenants said that Christian Frank, who sold the house in February, had told them that the house was bringing in a fair return and that he was satisfied with it, but that speculators were after it and were accusing him of spoiling the rent by failing to raise rents. According to the tenants they are being asked to pay an increase of 40 per cent. over previous rentals.

When one of the tenants asked the agent what he would get for paying the increased rental, the man is said to have replied, "You get the sunshine, don't you?"

The case was adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.

Henry Redner, brother of Abraham Redner, who paid a fine of $100 because of failure to supply heat, was before the Mayor's Committee yesterday. Henry was acting for his mother, owner of the property at 68 East 102d Street. A dozen tenants told Mr. Mayer that Mrs. Redner had increased rentals approximately 100 per cent. Four tenants told Mr. Mayer that they were being evicted because they testified in the Magistrate's court against Abraham Redner. Mr. Mayer advised the tenants to pay the old rental, and promised to take the matter into the courts.

Alderman B. C. Valdek introduced an amendment to the city ordinances yesterday which provides that before tenants are evicted the City Marshal shall obtain from the Health Commissioner a certificate stating that such eviction is not a danger to public health. The amendment was referred to the General Welfare Committee.

It will require 9,300 additional living apartments to take care of the normal increase of population in the Bronx for 1920, according to figures made public yesterday by Patrick J. Reville, Superintendent of the Bronx Building Bureau, and Robert J. Moorehead, former Superintendent.

An ordinance requiring landlords to notify the City Clerk when they serve notice of an increase of rents was adopted yesterday on final reading by the Jersey City Commissioners.

SWEET SETS HEARING ON PENDING BEER BILLS

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 23.—Speaker Sweet of the Assembly today was forced to relent and grant a hearing on the several beer and light wine bills pending before the Legislature. The hearing has already been fixed for next Tuesday and will be held before the Senate Judiciary and Assembly Excise Committees.

The announcement followed a conference between Speaker Sweet and President pro-tem of the Senate J. Henry Walters, who is reported to have urged most earnestly upon the Speaker the unwisdom of shutting off discussion on wine and beer legislation, which is backed by ex-Service men in the Legislature among others, and after having granted a public hearing on the rigid enforcement measure sponsored by the Anti-Saloon League.

The interview is said to have been somewhat squally, the Speaker reiterating his firm opposition to any enactment that would legalize the sale of beer or wine.

The "dry" lawmakers were surprised when they heard of the decision. Senator George F. Thompson of Niagara, sponsor in the upper house for the Anti-Saloon League Enforcement Bill, and who has been getting signatures of Republican Senators to a petition for a caucus on that measure, said that he had expected no such concession from Speaker Sweet, and under the circumstances would defer any move looking to a caucus until after the hearing has been held.

It is the opinion at the Capitol tonight, after the new turn in events, that the Thompson plan for a caucus will fail. Speaker Sweet has had his lieutenants make a poll in the House, which was completed today. Later he told friends that, in his opinion, no enforcement legislation of the kind the Anti-Saloon League would accept can receive a majority in the House at this session, any more than could a beer and wine bill.

The Speaker is said now to favor postponement of all prohibition legislation until the United States Supreme Court shall have construed the Volstead act and passed upon the validity of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Senator Thompson said tonight that even though the measure should fail he is preparing to make a strong fight for the enactment of the rigid enforcement bill.

"The Republican party cannot afford to take any other position than that of living up to the Constitution," said the Senator. "Beer and wine legislation can serve only one purpose—to be used as a peg by holders of large stocks of beer to go into court and get an injunction against the Volstead act that would give them three or four months time to dispose of their stocks while they go through the motions of 'testing out the beer law.'"

Senator Walters favors light wine and beer legislation, while the Speaker does not. Colonel Ranson H. Gillett of Columbia, sponsor for the principal beer and light wine bill, said tonight that he was "willing to yield and support any bill providing for liberal enforcement even though it does not bear his name."

William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, said today that he saw will to chase with the opportunity to give the Judiciary Committee a talking to which the Assembly had afforded him through its action last night in adopting the Cuvilller "contempt" resolution in amended form. Mr. Anderson said:

"I have made no charge of dishonesty against the Assembly, or any member thereof. But I shall never apologize to any pro-brewery member for telling of his pro-brewery activities. I can afford to stay in jail about as long as the Assembly can afford to keep me there for that offense."

"I will cheerfully retract any statement I have made which can be shown to be untrue, but I dare the Assembly to put me in jail for telling the truth about an attempt to nullify the Constitution of the United States, which the Assembly members are sworn to uphold."

HOLD BOY AS $77,947 THIEF.

Police Capture Bank Messenger Missing Two Weeks.

Charles J. Dorgan of 1,475 Bushwick Avenue, Brooklyn, the 18-year-old messenger employed by the First National Bank, who disappeared two weeks ago after collecting $77,000 in checks and $947 in cash, was arrested early yesterday in a dance hall at Broadway and Forty-sixth Street.

Dorgan was arraigned later in the day before Magistrate Corrigan in the Tombs Court. He was held in $1,500 bail for examination tomorrow on a charge of having a loaded revolver and suspicion of grand larceny.

The police said they learned of Dorgan's presence in the dance hall through the jealousy of a girl who promised to meet him there.

RIVAL FACTIONS RAGE ON RENT BILLS

W. M. K. Olcott Speaks for Capitalists.

The only speaker to satisfy both sides was Assemblyman Martin G. McCue of New York City, who was greeted with applause when he proposed a plan to stimulate building, embodied in a bill which bears his name, under which all real estate improved with dwellings before May 1, 1921, would be immune from taxation for seven years.

Joseph M. Callahan of the Bronx, formerly leader of the Assembly and now a City Court Judge, urged that the rent bills should be passed in the interest of the middle class. He advocated doing away with summary dispossess proceedings entirely because they had proved instruments through which the profiteer had contrived to inflict great suffering on a great many people.

Ex-Judge William M. K. Olcott, representing capitalists who had invested in Riverside Drive and West End Avenue apartment houses, opposed the enactment of the bills "on principle." There should be no attempt to use the police power of the State to protect tenants who paid an annual rent of $1,500 or more.

"That would be pie for the landlords," broke in Senator Lockwood. "All they would have to do to evade the law would be to raise their rents."

Senator Abraham Kaplan of New York City interrupted to say that he had received word that ex-Fire Commissioner Robert Adamson's rent had been raised from $2,000 to $5,500, and that a similar fate has overtaken sixty tenants of the same landlord.

"That landlord happens to be a client of mine, and I am informed that the raise was from $2,100 to $2,800, but that my friend 'Bob' Adamson made so much noise everybody thought it was $5,500," said Mr. Olcott.

"You are confronted with the terrible prospect that these bills if enacted will check new construction," Mr. Olcott went on. "You might well pause and ponder before you lay the hand of death upon building, as you will by enacting these preposterous measures."

Jacob S. Strong, Municipal Court Judge, evoked hisses from the real estate men, who sat in mass formation on the right side of the chamber, when he asserted that "men who are gambling in real estate—rent hogs—are responsible for the present situation."

Tenant Mounts Desk Amid Cheers.

"I know of one landlord who, as an excuse to jump rent, caused a sham transfer of his property, first to a brother-in-law, then to a son-in-law and then to a brother-in-law of his wife, each new landlord meaning an increase, until every one of his in-laws became an outlaw at the expense of society," said Judge Strong. "I would limit the profit of landlords as they are doing in England today, and I would make it a criminal offense for janitors to receive premiums and bonuses as they are now, for getting new tenants to take apartments at a higher rent than the one charged to the tenant in possession. There is a decided risk of widespread disturbances in the poorer districts and unless you do something now to remedy this situation I predict that you will be here in extraordinary session to deal with a far more serious situation, for the tenants are losing patience everywhere."

A wild demonstration of approval from the tenants' side greeted Assistant Corporation Counsel Hilley. He urged that immediate relief was necessary and that discretion be lodged in the courts to determine what rent a landlord should have the right to charge.

"The time for gentle persuasion has passed," he said. "Now we need the firm strong hand of the law. Rent gouging is one of the most potent causes of socialism and should be removed by the roots."

This lasted for a minute or more. One man got on an Assembly desk and led the cheering, wildly waiving his hat.

The Rev. Dr. C. C. Carstensen, rector of the Holyrood Church on Washington Heights, told how his landlord had jumped his rent 47½ per cent. and refused to put the demand in writing.

"I used strong language, called him a thief and a liar, and when he asked for an apology told him that the nearest thing to an apology he would get from me would be reiteration," said the minister. "There is no reason why the Legislature should tolerate effrontery and thievery and insolence from this kind of cattle any more than from that swine-hearted swashbuckler, W. H. Anderson."

When the clergyman returned to his seat, which happened to be in the landlords' section, he was taken to task by a real estate man in such vigorous fashion as to provoke a protest from a woman, who got up and asked the committee to protect the minister from "insults by the profiteers." Hisses and boos greeted this.

Tenants Howl Dr. Berg Down.

The Rev. Dr. Lyman R. Hartley, pastor of the Washington Heights Presbyterian Church, spoke for the bills, and then Dr. H. W. Berg was introduced as one of the spokesmen for the United Real Estate Owners' Association.

He called the proposed legislation confiscation, insisted that the emergency was not an outgrowth of high rents, but of a scarcity of houses, and that if the clause in the Federal Constitution barring illiterate aliens could be repealed there would be the competition in labor essential to encourage building. He said profiteering by labor was more pronounced than profiteering on the part of a few landlords. He threatened that if the lawmakers enacted the rent relief bills, the real estate owners would start reprisals in the coming campaign.

At this point a storm of hisses, groans and outcries broke from the tenants' section. Dr. Berg stood his ground in front of the rostrum for ten minutes while the uproar raged unabated, although Chairman Hulian pounded vigorously on the desk in front of him with an immense mallet. Finally, with the noise still going on, Dr. Berg retreated, but when half way to his seat turned on the crowd, shook his fist in the face of the tenants and shouted to Senator Mullan:

"This is a disgraceful exhibition and should be stopped."

"It is not any more disgraceful than your Hotel Astor conference last Sunday," roared Senator Dunnigan of the Bronx, a member of the Senate Cities Committee and author of two rent relief measures. "If my re-election depends upon the support of you and your kind, I don't want to come back."

"You won't, you"— shouted Dr. Berg as he picked his way back to his seat.

Stewart Browne, President of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, followed with a speech that was unusually pacific for him. "While the man should be put above the dollar," he insisted the landlords, to make up for the losses they sustained from 1909 to 1917, were entitled to a substantial profit. Senator Shackno then got the floor.

Promises "Jabbing" to Landlords.

"At the Hotel Astor conference which has been referred to, the landlords declared that they would stand for no limitation on their profits but were out to get all they could. Well, the time has come when you are not going to get all you want. The increased cost of labor has been referred to as one reason for increased rents, "but how many of the landlords that appear here have built a new dwelling since 1914?"

"Not one," a tenant yelled.

"I believe you," said the Senator. "You have been jabbing your tenants," he went on, turning towards the real estate men and shaking his fist in their faces, "and now the Legislature is going to jab it into you. There is not such a thing as an honest landlord in the city of New York."

Hisses from the landlords mingled with resounding applause and cheering from the tenants.

A score of real estate men were on their feet, hurling anathemas at the speaker which could not be heard.

LaGuardia Near Blows.

The demonstration lasted nine minutes by the watch. There was no action on the motion nor was there an apology.

President LaGuardia opposed the committee's relief bills and favored a bill introduced by Senator Peter Abeles of the Bronx limiting landlords' profits to 10 per cent. on the appraised valuation of their property.

"Your bills," he said, "are all right for tenants in distress who have been haled into court, but what we want to do is to keep them out of distress and out of the courts. Why, you are practically legalizing the present exorbitant rates of rent and permitting the landlord to add 24 per cent. more before he can be checked. I suppose you will be putting halos about their heads and wings on their shoulders before you send them back to New York."

One man in the landlord's section hissed vigorously. La Guardia turned and pointing his finger at him, shouted,

"You who only recently emigrated from the pale in Russia, you who are a newly made landlord, you are the real profiteer, responsible for the hardships of poor tenants in New York City. What did you do in your country's crisis?"

"Atta boy," shouted a tenant, while a broad shouldered, belligerent individual in the landlords' section arose, advanced, looked La Guardia straight in the eye, and asked if he meant him. Another landlord further back got up, shook his fist at the Aldermen's President and shouted something which could not be heard.

For a moment it seemed as if the physical violence stage had been reached. Senator Mullan admonished Mr. La Guarda not to indulge in personalities and he ended with the warning:

The last disturbance, and in some respects the most severe, occurred when Leopold Weil, spokesman for the Real Estate Board, began denouncing the relief bills. He was interrupted by a man, speaking very broken English, who shouted:

"You put me out with my wife and my three children; you dumped us on the cold street in Winter because you wanted to raise the rent from $33 to $65," he roared. "And you treated forty-five other tenants in the same house the same way. You have a nerve to appear here."

"You gave me the same sort of a deal and forty tenants in my house," he yelled.

"Put him out," came in a roar from the tenants' section. Then Senator Shackno arose and pointing his fingers at Weil shouted:

"You are the worst rent profiteer in the Bronx."

"You are making Bolsheviki all over the Bronx by your treatment of your tenants, and you know it," shouted Senator Dunnigan.

Mr. Weil was forced to yield the floor amid cries of "Put him out," and groans and hisses.

Edward I. Hanna of the Central Federated Union said that organized labor was prepared to co-operate to facilitate building and willing also to pay reasonable rent increases.

"We are prepared to take all our men off office building construction and put them on the construction of dwellings tomorrow morning if you say the word," said Mr. Hanna. "But you must give us some immediate relief from profiteering, for even now it requires the keenest kind of leadership to prevent a physical uprising as a result of the exploitation to which the workers are subjected by unscrupulous landlords."

McKee Takes Sweet to Task.

Assemblyman McKee arose to a question of personal privilege in the Assembly today and took Speaker Sweet to task for summoning him to his room in the Capitol and reading the riot act to him for saying in speeches that he did not think the Speaker favored real rent relief legislation.

"The Speaker lectured me, bulldozed me and tried to intimidate me," said McKee. "Now, I for one will not be bulldosed and bludgeoned from the rostrum."

"The object of my talk," said the Speaker when McKee had finished, "was to discourage fermentation of the public mind at a time when the situation is most critical. I think it would be well for members not to say anything about the rent relief program until there has been concerted action upon some concrete proposition, and especially not to say anything inflammatory among people affected by rent profiteering. I think an Assemblyman can perform a genuine service to the State by refraining from such utterances at this time."

WOOD MEN ATTACK LOWDEN AND HOOVER

FORESEE DANGER IN SPLIT

Local managers of Major Gen. Leonard Wood's campaign for the Republican Presidential nomination, in answer to the attack of Senator Borah upon the Wood campaign methods, had a few words to say yesterday about two of the General's rival candidates, Governor Lowden of Illinois and Herbert C. Hoover, whose friends have been busy of late trying to prove that he is more entitled to the Republican than the Democratic nomination. A statement, issued from the Wood headquarters in the Hotel Imperial, commenting on the demand of Senator Borah that the Wood managers make public the source of their campaign funds intimated that both the Lowden and Hoover campaign funds would themselves bear investigation. The statement follows:

"We are in no way surprised at the attacks coming from the Democratic press and the Democratic leader, William Jennings Bryan, on General Wood and the organization which is attempting to inform the Republican voters generally of the candidate's pre-eminent qualifications for the Presidency. It is natural for the Democrats to attack the leading Republican candidate. But it is unfortunate, when other Republican aspirants and their supporters, like Senator Borah, join in the game of discrediting the one candidate on whom all Republicans can unite and with whom alone they are certain of victory in November.

"The Lowden campaign fund has not been attacked, nor has that of Mr. Hoover, although both of these other candidates are personally wealthier men than General Wood—whose army salary is all that he has—and their campaign funds are probably considerably larger. Governor Lowden is a multimillionaire, with all the wealth of the Pullman interests behind him, and it is evident that Hoover's campaign is amply financed by various wealthy men. It is obviously another evidence of General Wood's strength that the attack is made upon him and upon those independent admirers who have come forward voluntarily and supplied the sinews for the campaign that is intended to educate the Republican voters of the country to the nation's predicament, its present needs and the eminent qualifications and character of General Wood.

Open Fire on Hoover.

"For several weeks inquiries have been made at the Wood headquarters regarding the candidacy of Herbert Hoover, and so persistent have been the importunities of late that it has been decided to make the following statement with regard to the Hoover boom:

"The boom was launched by The New York World, the leading Democratic paper of the metropolis. Both Democrats and Republicans were summoned to support Hoover, who has carefully avoided stating which of the two great parties he prefers to have nominate him.

"It is impossible for Mr. Hoover to obtain the Republican nomination, because of his long and intimate association with the present Democratic Administration, with which he has never so openly differed as Mr. Lansing and Mr. Bryan have done. It is obvious that for the Republican Party to nominate Mr. Hoover would seriously divide that party. He represents and stands for international relations in a way that the majority of Republicans will not follow.

"Mr. Hoover has lived abroad, with the exceptions of visits to America, since he was 23 years old. Most of his time has been spent in England or in the British colonies, and practically all of his financial interests and engineering enterprises have been in connection with British subjects in foreign countries. His great knowledge of Europe pre-eminently fitted him among Americans to act as the distributer of their tremendous gifts of charity to the stricken people of the Old World during and after the Great War.

"In doing this work he had a comparatively easy task, with all America's wealth behind him and all her prestige before him. But whether he is qualified after his long absence to take up the office of Chief Executive or not, the chances are that even if nominated he could not be elected because of the hostility of the average American voter of either party to anything resembling a foreign point of view in our national administration.

Warn of Republican Defeat.

"Circulars are being extensively distributed to Republicans calling upon them to support Mr. Hoover, and this seems to be, from a Republican point of view, unfortunate. The Republicans have at the present time, as a result of the disastrous Wilson Administration, an opportunity for a tremendous victory if they can remain united. The split in the ranks in 1912 gave the Democrats their first Wilson victory and defections from the Republican Party in 1916 gave the Democratic Party its second Wilson victory. If another defection or split can be brought about by promoting the candidacy of Mr. Hoover a third successive Democratic victory can be achieved. If, on the other hand, Hoover can be nominated by the Democrats, after having deflected a large number of Republicans prior to the convention, that party will have its one chance of victory.

"The Hoover boom, inaugurated originally by Democrats, is, therefore, somewhat dangerous for the Republican party. It is obvious that the old political leaders in the various States are giving the Hoover boom no serious consideration, for he has not yet obtained a single delegate, either in the primary elections or in the conventions that have been held to elect delegates in the several States, where voting has already taken place, and 498 delegates are necessary for the nomination.

"Because within the last four years, Hoover has had more publicity in the press than any other candidate mentioned for the Presidency, and because of his amply financed and well organized campaign committee, numbers of Republican voters who are not fully informed regarding political conditions are rallying to the support of this spectacular candidate who cannot be put over on the Republican party. As a result, independent support, which should be rallying strongly behind one or another of the really possible Republican candidates, is divided, thereby increasing the possibility of an unpopular candidate receiving the nomination as a result of a deadlock or a compromise.

See Wood as Only Hope.

"Leonard Wood is obviously the national American candidate of the Republican Party, as compared with other aspirants whose candidacies are local or sectional. This is shown by all convictions, primary elections and test ballots that have taken place up to the present. That is the reason why his candidacy is being attacked by Democrats to whom, unfortunately, certain minor rival Republicans are lending, directly or indirectly, their support. He is the party's one certainty of success. And for both party and national interests, as well as for the benefit of sound international relations, it is the wiser thing for Republicans generally to rally behind him rather than to scatter their support among various candidates, including the popular and independent Mr. Hoover, who can obtain the Republican nomination only at the cost of defeat of that party and himself."

Senator Hiram W. Johnson's managers made an appeal yesterday to enrolled Republicans for campaign funds. "Anything from $1 up" was requested. In the appeal, Angus McSween, manager of the Johnson campaign here, said:

"Very little money has been expended so far in behalf of Senator Johnson. It has not been available to spend, nor has it been wanted, such expenditures as have been noticeable in the campaigns of other candidates being repugnant to Senator Johnson's political ideas." The appeal set forth that it was necessary to buy stamps and stationery, hire halls, pay office rent, obtain printing and campaign buttons and incur other items of expense that are unavoidable."

Replies to Senator Borah.

Rutherford Franklin, State manager for New Jersey of the Leonard Wood League, said yesterday that his expenses in the campaign to date were less than $50. He called upon Senator Borah publicly to file somewhere a statement of the "brutal and shameless" details of the "corrupt use of money" which the Senator alleged was being spent in the interest of the Wood campaign. Mr. Franklin said:

"I have not asked any one for a cent of money, nor has a cent been received by me from any one, though many have offered. I must have expended out of my own shallow and brutally shameless pocket almost the sum of $50—for ink, stationery, postage, telephone calls and a small amount of railroad fare. I admit that, in these days, that is a large sum; but I assert solemnly that I have not corrupted either myself or any one else with it.

"There is a substantial bunch of money being expended by the national headquarters without a shadow of a doubt. They are sending out tons of 'literature' and employing a large force to tabulate and copy enrollment cards and providing speakers for meetings and acting generally as a clearing house for an extremely active-minded public that has demanded opportunity for its expression of sentiment for General Wood. I haven't the slightest doubt that headquarters would be delighted to show Senator Borah or any other similar sincere-minded gentleman their complete list of contributors. Without a question, there are 'wealthy men' on this list. You don't have to beg people for their brutal and shameless money for the purpose of carrying on General Wood's campaign; they literally throw it at you, saying: 'Here, for the love of America, go to it and save us from the possibility of such people as Borah slipping something over on us at the convention.'" of the counties conceded to Governor Lowden by the Wood managers, but in the last week the Johnson forces got busy and turned what was expected to be a negligible vote into the most decisive victory so far reported for any candidate by any county in the State.

Another surprise was Vermillion County, which was not expected to return a very large Wood vote, and which was generally conceded to Lowden. The first eleven precincts to report in that county gave Wood 477, Lowden 233 and Senator Johnson 96 votes. Vermillion is the home of United States Senator Sterling.

On the other hand, the Wood people expected to carry the city of Aberdeen by a safe plurality, but it went for Lowden by a plurality of 25, the complete vote of the city being Lowden, 1,133; Wood, 1,108, and Johnson, 503.

Sioux Falls, the chief city of the State, was expected because of its large labor vote, to go for Johnson, but Wood carried it, the vote being Wood, 1,726; Johnson, 1,651, and Lowden, 1,636.

The city of Brookings, in the county of the same name, was also expected to vote against the Wood candidacy, but out of a total vote of about 700 it gave him nearly 200 plurality. Redfield, the home of Governor Norbeck, who with Chairman King, has led the Wood fight, went for the General by a safe plurality, as did also Pierre, the State Capital, which is the home of ex-Congressman Burke, chief manager of the Lowden forces.

The first twenty-one of forty precincts in Faulkton County, in the northern part of the State, gave Wood 401, Lowden 314 and Johnson 121. This is one of the counties in which the Non-partisan League is strong and is the home of ex-Governor Byrne, who is the State campaign manager for Senator Johnson.

Pennington County, in the Black Hills, reports that half of the county gave Wood 775, Lowden 224 and Johnson 249 and that the rest of the Black Hills country will return a vote in about the same proportion in favor of General Wood.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., March 23.—Interest in the Democratic primary was centred upon the fight for National Committeman by James Mee of Centerville, John A. Bowler of Sioux Falls, Ralph E. Johnson, Sioux Falls, and J. E. Bird, Watertown, and for United States Senator between U. S. G. Cherry of Sioux Falls and Tom Taubman of Plankinton.

RUSSIA
PROBLEM

WHY Bolshevism can not succeed, and why Russia is now gradually being recognized as a land of opportunity, is told by John Spargo, an authority on Russian problems.

There are opportunities in Russia that up to now, only Japan has seen. Mr. Spargo brings them home to the American business man, while for the general reader he clears the haze of controversy, giving a definite authoritative picture that shows among other things why Bolshevism cannot last in Russia.

Mr. Spargo points out very convincingly that the eyes of Russia are turned towards America and that Russia IS America's problem. He hints, too, at a solution.

OUTLINES SOVIET'S FOREIGN POLICY

Litvinoff Again Proclaims Russia's Former Debts, with Interest, Will Be Acknowledged.

WILLING TO DISARM ARMY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 23.—Maxim Litvinoff, the Bolshevist Plenipotentiary at Copenhagen, made the following statement of Bolshevist foreign policy:

"We have triumped over Yudenich, Denikin and Kolchak because they had the people against them. We do not wish either to avenge ourselves or to attack any one. We are leaving all the little republics which have arisen round us absolute freedom to adopt whatever régime they like. We respect the right of every country to dispose freely of its own affairs.

"But on the other hand we claim similar treatment. We must be left in peace to work out among ourselves our social experiment. If that experiment succeeds other peoples will follow it. If it fails we shall be obliged to try another method. In any case, none must interfere with us. That is all we ask.

"If we obtain this formal guarantee that there will be no foreign intervention we will give on our side the same guarantee not to seek to intervene in the interior politics of other States. We make this offer in good faith. We do not wish any foreign alliances, but we do not wish to attack any one. We shall disarm as soon as freed from menace.

"We are convinced pacifists. We have had to fight because fight was forced on us, but we are anxious to lay down arms.

"We desire a renewal of normal commercial relations with other countries. Europe has need of Russian raw material and we have need of manufactured goods in return.

"We are ready to recognize the Russian debt—former loans with interest. We also solemnly declare that we will repulse any secret German advances seeking an alliance against the Entente. We do not wish to hear talk of any military combination whatever.

"The only military danger which forces us to keep our army is Polish imperialism, which German militarists are supporting. We are offering a loyal peace to Poland, but will not accept conditions which include in her frontier Russian people on the ground that they are being protected from Bolshevism. The neighboring peoples who do not wish to accept Bolshevism are independent republics, which we will respect. But a foreign nation has no right to impose a protectorate over former Russian territory."

Litvinoff summed up the Bolshevist program in the following seven points:

1—Recognition of the Republic of Soviets.

2—Liberty to develop in peace and normally within its boundaries its social experiment.

3—Assurance given by the Soviets that they will not interfere in the interior politics of other nations.

RUSSIA'S TRANSPORT UTTERLY DEMORALIZED

Experts Report on Condition of Railroads and Waterways and Cost of Rehabilitation.

WARSAW, March 22 (Associated Press).—The report of Russian technical experts to the allied representatives at Warsaw on transportation conditions in Russia shows that there are approximately 300 serviceable locomotives throughout the country, as compared with 16,000 before the war. Russia at the present time is building about twenty-five locomotives yearly, whereas before the war she built from 800 to 1,000.

The railways are from 2 to 3 per cent. efficient, instead of 28 per cent., as reported to the Allies by the Bolsheviki. The rails everywhere are thoroughly worn, and no rails are being manufactured. The rail plates in many places have disappeared. The ties are rotten and there is a great shortage of waste for cleaning and grease, so that the axle boxes, often made of wood, catch fire after a few miles. The wheel bandages are badly worn, as well as the springs, which rest on wooden blocks placed at the ends.

The Russian waterways are in an even worse state than the railways, owing to socialization. Former owners, deprived of their boats, refuse to look after them. Many deteriorate, sink, or are washed away by freshets.

The Ladoga Canals, near Petrograd, the pre-war tonnage of which equaled that of the Suez Canal, are now absolutely barren of traffic.

The estimated cost of restoring the railways is 2,500,000,000 gold rubles; waterways, 500,000,000.

Martens Inspects Locomotives.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 23.—Ludwig A. C. K. Martens, representative in the United States of the Russian Soviet Government, inspected the Baldwin locomotive plants both here and at Eddystone today with a view toward placing a large order for locomotives.

"We hope to buy 2,000 locomotives within the next month or so," said Mr. Martens today. "That order will not be placed entirely with the Baldwin company perhaps, but the Baldwin company expressed its willingness to fill our orders subject to the approval of the State Department, and, of course, provided the Soviet Government is able to pay the bills in gold.

"The Soviet Government is prepared to deposit the gold in neutral banks in Esthonia, or in Scandinavia, or elsewhere, and the money will be handed to this country as the locomotives are delivered."

ANTI-REDS RETAKE CHITA.

Bolsheviki Being Driven Again Out of Transbaikalia.

HARBIN, Manchuria, March 18.—The Transbaikal region in Siberia soon will be entirely in control of anti-Bolshevist forces, the correspondent of The London Times here predicts in a dispatch to his newspaper.

Chita, the capital of Transbaikalia, has already been occupied by an army of Uralian anti-Bolshevist workers numbering 24,000 veteran fighters and the local Zemstvoists have assembled there. The treasury is reported to contain £4,000,000.

Verkhnie Udinsk, in Transbaikalia, the dispatch adds, also has been taken from the Red army by a white force under General Casagrandi, who appeared suddenly before the astonished Red garrison and captured the town.

LETTS AND ESTHS MAY FIGHT.

Prepare for War Despite Britain's Efforts as Mediator.

COPENHAGEN, March 22.—The dispute over the boundary line is causing additional tenseness day by day in the relations between Esthonia and Livonia, two of the former Russian Baltic provinces now independent nations, says a dispatch to the Berlingske Tidende from Kovno. Both countries are now making preparations for war.

These conditions prevail despite the attempts that have been made by Great Britain at conciliation in the dispute.

POLES AGAIN WIN BATTLE WITH REDS

SCATTER ONE DIVISION

WARSAW, March 23 (Associated Press).—Extremely heavy fighting is reported on the Polish front. A communication issued today announces that after the greatest artillery preparation yet experienced the Bolshevist infantry advanced in columns against the bridgehead at Zwichel, aided by tanks and armored motor cars.

"After a sharp engagement," says the communication, "the Polish troops launched a counterattack with bayonets and hand grenades, driving the enemy far from the Polish line."

"The Poles," the communication continues, "captured one tank and some machine guns and prisoners. Simultaneously the Poles attacked the Seventh Bolshevist Division, which was on the offensive in the sector of Emiliozen and compelled the enemy to retreat easterly, abandoning his batteries, horses, ammunition carts and machine guns. At other points attempts to cross the River Slucz were checked."

The communication adds that intensive artillery fire continues by both sides along this and other sectors, and that the Bolsheviki are concentrating as rapidly as possible and reforming their shattered units for the purpose of reattacking.

On the Podolian front the Bolsheviki have attacked Nowasielniawke, Latyczaw and Novoconstantinow and the sector southwest of Deransza. Heavy fighting followed these attacks, which were preceded by artillery preparation. A number of villages in the region of Deransa changed hands time and again, but the Poles, counterattacking, were the victors in the end. There was much hand-to-hand fighting in these villages, the fighting lasting all day and night.

Locked Out

"No, you don't—you're the third man that's tried to get through by saying he's a member of the firm"—

He was a tall, husky looking lad, with wavy blond hair and an active elbow. Moreover there were several hundred earnest young men at his back—and a pair of locked doors in front of him.

The man he was talking to was a member of this firm; locked out of his own store. The doors had had to be closed.

Because of the Crowd.

Similar incidents took place, the same day, at all our other stores.

Which, when you think of it, is a pretty impressive fact.

And what brought the crowd is even more important; for it wasn't price. Numbers of stores in this town were offering clothes at less prices,—and doing it without a crowd.

What brought those crowds was Value—They were crowds who know the importance of "what you get for what you pay."

Value—

And confidence. The definite knowledge that they could trust implicitly not only the word but the spirit of every Wallach Statement.

We were selling clothes, yes—Good Clothes! Hart Schaffner & Marx Clothes.

But there went with every suit more than quality—more even than value—the confidence that this house has been building with New York Men every business day for thirty-three years.

Yes, it was a gratifying sight,—we were mighty glad to see it—perfectly willing to be crowded out of our own store.

New York doesn't say O. K. very often—or very easily.

TRY TO SHOW POLICE KILLED LORD MAYOR

SITUATION DARK IN IRELAND

London Times Correspondent Finds Outlook Serious Throughout the Country and Growing Worse.

CORK, March 23.—An inquest was opened today into the assassination of Lord Mayor MacCurtain, who was killed in his home here early last Saturday morning.

Mr. Lynch, attorney for the next of kin of Mayor MacCurtain, said evidence would be adduced tending to show that the police were concerned in the murder. He said he was unable to assert what kind of bullets had killed the Lord Mayor, but that bullets were found outside the Mayor's house Saturday morning which he would suggest were of the pattern used by the local police.

Mr. Lynch also declared that a button, such as are worn by the police, was found in the Mayor's house, and he suggested that the authorities might identify the man from whose uniform such a button was missing.

Mr. Lynch challenged the authorities to produce the books showing what men were out of barracks Friday night.

Says Situation Is Grave.

LONDON, March 24.—The Dublin correspondent of The London Times describes the situation in Ireland in the darkest colors. He says the outlook is serious. Conditions in the west and south are extremely grave. The position, bad last week, is now definitely worse. Public feeling is so fiercely inflamed as to become quite irrational. The most outrageous charges against the Government are accepted as Gospel truth.

The correspondent says the Sinn Fein asks the country to accept the monstrous theory that Lord Mayor MacCurtain was killed by actual agents of the Government. He describes the overnight riot in Dublin as another danger signal and says it is impossible to get an impartial account of the incident, the popular version being that the soldiers provoked and assaulted civilians.

The correspondent learns that the soldiers were stoned by a crowd because they left the theatre singing the national anthem as a protest against the failure of the theatre orchestra to play it. He adds that public opinion throughout the country is exasperated by the wild charges against the police and soldiers, who would hardly be human if they did not resent the campaign of murder and calumny.

SAYS MOB STARTED RIOT.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 23.—James Ian Macpherson, Chief Secretary for Ireland, made a statement in the House of Commons today in reference to the Dublin rioting. Monday, he said, was the anniversary day of the Royal Berkshire Regiment and 150 soldiers were given tickets by the battalion to attend a performance at the Theatre Royal. At the end the men sang the national anthem.

No disturbance then occurred, and the soldiers went home in groups, singing. A crowd collected and followed them. On reaching Kelly's Corner, about 9 o'clock, the crowd commenced to throw stones at the troops. The soldiers were unarmed, but defended themselves and gradually worked toward the barracks. On reaching Lennox Street the troops were fired on with revolvers from the crowd. One soldier was shot in the chest.

At 9:45 information reached the Royal Berkshire headquarters at Portobello Barracks of what was happening, and a cyclist patrol was ordered to assist the men returning from the theatre. About 10 o'clock the patrol reached the scene, and fire was opened on the patrol from the direction of Portobello House and stones were thrown by the crowd.

Considering that his men were in danger, the officer in charge of the patrol cautioned the crowd and ordered them to disperse. They refused, and the officer ordered ten rounds to be fired, and charged the crowd, which withdrew.

The patrol followed up the crowd as far as Kelly's Corner, where it was again fired on. A position was taken up at Kelly's Corner, and civilians in the neighborhood were searched for arms. Reinforcements were sent to assist the patrol.

FORCED TO CONDENSE NEWS

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 23.—Caught by the news print shortage, The Pittsburgh Dispatch appeared this morning with eighty-six condensed news items on the first page, along with a publisher's statement explaining the predicament. Virtually every item in the entire issue was "boiled to the bone." Full advertising space was given only to those having contracts.

This afternoon The Pittsburgh Press announced that on account of the paper shortage it would reduce its advertising space 25 per cent. The Pittsburgh Post recently published no display advertisements for a full week.

GIRLS HELD IN HOLDUP CASE

Marie Baker and Mildred Brazier Arrested as Witnesses.

Marie Baker and Mildred Brazier, two former chorus girls living at 59 Division Avenue, Brooklyn, were arrested early yesterday morning by Detectives Bactalora, Knowles and Carroll of the Clymer Street Police Station and held in $2,000 bail each by Magistrate Steers in the Flatbush Police Court as material witnesses in connection with the arrest on Monday of six men suspected of having participated in a number of recent Brooklyn holdups.

Beyond admitting that one of the women had volunteered information in the case, the police refused to reveal how the two chorus girls are involved in the affair. The prisoners now awaiting trial, the police say, are only a part of the Brooklyn holdup gang, and detectives are seeking others.

DECIDE ENSING A SUICIDE.

British Find American Gassed in Flanders Was Mentally Unbalanced.

LONDON, March 23.—A Coroner's jury today decided that George Ensing, formerly a doctor of Seattle, Wash., who was a Captain in the British Medical Corps during the war, committed suicide while of unsound mind. The body of Ensing, who has a widow living in Kalamazoo, Mich., was found in the Thames.

Witnesses at the inquest said that Ensing's wife had refused to live with him, owing to his action as the result of being gassed in Flanders. The Coroner said Ensing had left letters which clearly showed his mind was unbalanced.

ADOPTS CHILD OF HUSBAND.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, March 23.—A girl child of Miss Leonie Winckel of France, of which Kenneth MacNichol, living near Baltimore, admits he is the father, has been adopted by Mr. MacNichol and his wife, Louise, under an order signed today by Judge Duncan in the Circuit Court at Towson.

The mother is to return to France with her infant and retain possession of her seven years or until other arrangements may be made by mutual agreement.

The petition of Mr. and Mrs. MacNichol sets forth that "Kenneth MacNichol was in the United States army, Medical Corps, and while stationed at Mehun-sur-Yevre, France, in August, 1918, became intimately acquainted with Leonie Winckel; that he returned to the United States in June, 1919, and that Leonie Winckel followed him in August, and on Dec. 20 gave birth to a child, the father being Kenneth MacNichol."

It is stated, further, that the petitioners desire the child to bear the name of its father and that they want to provide for and educate her.

IDENTIFY MINISTER IN INDIA TRAGEDY

WAS NOT A PHYSICIAN

Friends Distressed Over Report of Shooting Ascribed to "Domestic Reasons."

The authorities of the American Baptist Foreign Missionary Society were distressed yesterday when they read in THE TIMES a dispatch from London to the effect that the Rev. Mr. Jackman, who is referred to as "an American medical missionary," shot Major H. D. Cloete dead at Sadiya, Assam, British India, a northeast frontier post, according to a Calcutta dispatch to the London Daily Mail, dated March 15.

The dispatch to the London paper said that the full story apparently is not known, but that the correspondent stated the "reasons for the tragedy were domestic."

At the New York branch of the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society in the Holland Building, Fifth Avenue and Thirtieth Street, yesterday afternoon it was stated that the Mr. Jackman referred to unquestionably was the Rev. Lyman Ward Beecher Jackman, who, with his wife, is an evangelistic missionary among the Abors and Miris, in Sadiya, upon the border of Tibet, Northeast Assam, a province of India.

The clergyman recently did first-aid medical work, as well as evangelistic labor, because of the scarcity of physicians. But he is not a graduate physician. He studied law as a young man, but gave it up for the ministry. He is an alumnus of Rochester Theological Seminary, Rochester, N. Y., and is 40 years old.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackman have been working in Sadiya for ten years. They have two or three children. Their last furlough was six years ago, and they spent it in this State.

fective manner in which the United States forces abroad could have aided the allied cause. Senator Pittman, Democrat, of Nevada, read from an unsigned letter found in Admiral Sims's file urging that American troops passing through Great Britain be brigaded with the British forces. He called the document "British propaganda" and said it was part of an organized effort to prevent the formation of a separate American army.

Admiral Sims replied that while he had not written the letter he objected to having it called propaganda, and said that it was "pretty good military reasoning," and "what Bliss recommended."

Cross-examination of Rear Admiral Sims was concluded today by the Senate Committee investigating his criticisms of the Navy Department methods of conducting the war.

Admiral Sims was charged by Senator Pittman, Dem., Nevada, with a desire to "turn over the whole American Navy to the British during the war regardless of the protection of the coasts of the United States," and with having "favored the French or British policy, certainly not the American policy, of sending raw untrained troops to France."

The hearing today was confined largely to technical questions regarding the placing of responsibility for alleged failure to adopt the convoy system earlier in the war. Frequent heated verbal clashes between Senator Pittman and the witness enlivened the hearing for the spectators. At one point the Senator shook his finger at the officer.

"Don't shake your finger at me," admonished the Admiral. "It won't do you any good."

"You are not on the bridge of a ship," retorted the Senator. "We will follow Senate procedure, not navy methods, here."

"Well, you don't need to use police court methods," replied Admiral Sims.

Admiral Sims said adoption of the convoy system marked the turning point of the war and that the Allies had to wait for American co-operation before the plan could be made effective.

"The convoy was adopted by the Allies experimentally about May 21, 1917," he said. "The United States was asked to furnish fourteen cruisers for escorts. No cruisers were furnished for many weeks and then only seven. Our delay was extremely costly.

"Our destroyers and other ships should have sailed the night we declared war, and there was no good reason why they should not have done so. If they had 2,500,000 tons of shipping would have been saved, and the United States would have had an army of 1,000,000 men in France by May 1, 1918. The fact was that after we declared war many American ships had to be placed in dry dock and repaired before they could be sent to the war zone."

Senator Pittman told the Admiral he had not presented evidence to support his assertion that failure of the navy to properly co-operate during the war had prolonged the struggle at a cost of 500,000 lives.

"Unless you can produce evidence to support that assertion it falls flat," said the Senator. "I notify you here and now that at the proper time evidence will be introduced to show that the army did not ask for ocean transport that it did not get."

"If you do you will have to disprove General Pershing's own report in which he said that he could not get troops to France when he wanted them," replied the Admiral. "I think I have proved that the full co-operation of the navy early in the war would have reduced the sinking of merchant ships, thus provided tonnage to take American troops abroad and thus ended the war sooner and saved 500,000 lives and great treasure."

"There never was a time," said Senator Pittman, "when ships weren't provided to carry to France any American soldiers who were properly trained and ready to go."

NOSKE FALLS.

One at a time, and with much deliberation, the German Ship of State is making its Jonahs walk the plank. The most recent is Herr NOSKE, whose complaisant withdrawal before the invading forces of KAPP and LUETTWITZ confirmed in the minds of many suspicions long entertained as to his connection with reactionary forces. He still enjoys the credit of having the Government from Spartacus in January a year ago, though whether the credit rightly belongs to him is a somewhat doubtful question. NOSKE is out and LUETTWITZ and TROTHA have been arrested; it is a good beginning, if it is not too late.

Whether the concessions already extorted from EBERT will satisfy the radical parties no one can say as yet; it was deferred so long, it was so obviously made as a concession to irresistible force, that those who exerted that force may well think that if they want anything more now is the time to get it. Yet much more may be won by the radicals without bringing Germany to Bolshevism. Westphalia seems to be well in the hands of some sort of organized government supported by an organized army, at the head of which is the famous Major BESEFELDE; the army is strong, though its size has doubtless been overestimated, and it and the Government have been described as Bolshevist. They may or may not be; in Saxony, the "Red Kingdom" of former days, the larger cities are for the most part held by radicals opposed to the present Government; but a correspondent of The Globe, writing from Chemnitz on Sunday, says that these "Soviet republics" are not Bolshevist. He reports that they want a stronger government, a government which will enforce all the laws and particularly the food laws; a government tainted by no association with the old Junker class, but a non-Communist national government. These local insurrections may be merely another manifestation of the general movement now going on to force the Ebert Government away from the parties of the Right.

The general purpose of this movement is one which may well find support in allied countries, for it seems likely to make Germany somewhat safer for the world than any other change or tendency that can be foreseen. A downright Bolshevist Germany would be dangerous because of the fiery zeal which would inspire German and Russian Communists alike; a Germany more radical than now may make many mistakes and do many things which would cause disquiet outside her borders; but the great need in Germany today is still to make the old army class realize that it is beaten. There is danger, considerable danger; but the actual disorder and loss of life have plainly been exaggerated by the rumors of excitable refugees, and if the Ebert Government throws off the rest of the dark forces which beset it and comes to rest somewhere on the border between the Majority Socialists and the right wing of the Independents, it is far from impossible that both Saxony and Westphalia will come back on the reservation.

TOO PERSONAL.

Whatever may be thought of the amenities and urbanities of speech habitually employed by the Superintendent of the New York State Anti-Saloon League against his opponents, whom he seems honestly to regard as sons of darkness and altogether evil, doesn't the Assembly forget its dignity and play directly into his hands when it summons him to appear before the Judiciary Committee, there to give an account of certain characteristically gracious compliments which he has paid to the Assembly and the Legislature? Doubtless his language is often irritating and explosive. That of some of his dearest foes in the Assembly in reference to him has not been strictly dovelike.

If the Assembly had deliberately sought to magnify the importance of this person, to give him an opportunity to manifest and exalt himself, to make himself the hero of a melodrama of defiant virtue, to divert attention from the real issue and to amuse the public as with a spectacle or an act of vaudeville, it couldn't have found any more suitable means than it has chosen.

Instead of bothering its head about the fulness of rhetoric thrown at it, why doesn't the Assembly go seriously to work to investigate the methods and acts of the Anti-Saloon League? More than three weeks ago the Assembly passed a resolution for such an investigation. That is a subject of public interest, of legitimate inquiry. The sources and the employment of the funds of that organization, its activities and its methods in the legislative districts and in the Legislature and generally, may, with propriety, be scrutinized; in view of the great political influence and power which it has exerted or is supposed to have exerted, ought to be scrutinized thoroughly, honestly, impartially. Why doesn't the Assembly undertake seriously and in good faith that investigation? Is it afraid, is the Senate afraid, such an investigation would show that the suspicions or charges against the League are false, that it would be vindicated? Or are the Assembly and the Senate still afraid, as their predecessors seemed to be afraid, of the League? Why do they pour the vials of their wrath upon the acerbiloquent Superintendent, and make a personal question of what is either much broader than that or not worth wasting public time and money on? A surfeit, if he can have a surfeit, of publicity—that is what the Assembly has unwisely voted to its irrepressible critic. It has made him the happiest man in the State. He clutches, hopefully and exuberantly, at the martyr's crown.

MR. MORGENTHAU FOR MEXICO.

It is permissible for the friends of peace and good neighborhood to hope that the appointment of Mr. HENRY MORGENTHAU as Ambassador to Mexico portends the re-establishment of relations of confidence and friendship with the Government and the people of that Republic. The President has made an excellent choice, it is an appointment in every way to be commended. As Ambassador to Turkey, Mr. MORGENTHAU won credit and distinction in a post where it may be said that the solving of important and difficult problems was of daily routine. The protection of our nationals in their rights, the combating of intrigues harmful to our interests, repeated and emphatic protests and intercessions against the maltreatment and slaughter of whole classes of the Turkish population, decisions and action upon which the incline of the always delicate balance between peace and war depended—these were the daily concern of Ambassador MORGENTHAU; there he acquired a training of high value in diplomacy, there he demonstrated his qualification to represent the United States in a post which called for the exercise of tact, of discretion and of sound judgment.

If Mr. MORGENTHAU could understand the Turks and get on with them so well, he will be able to understand the Mexicans and to establish and maintain a friendly understanding between the two countries. Mr. FLETCHER was a competent Ambassador throughout his term of service. He was firm where firmness was demanded, he was always able with truth to represent to the Mexican Government our desire for good relations. But misunderstandings and causes of irritation multiplied, the lives and property of Americans in Mexico were in peril, disturbed conditions there and the Government's lack of authority resulted in incidents which threatened serious consequences. At the time of Mr. FLETCHER'S resignation there were reasons for grave apprehension as to the possibility of maintaining our relations with Mexico upon terms of friendship.

There have been indications lately of the re-establishment of more orderly conditions in the Republic, of a better disposition toward the Americans resident and doing business there. The appointment of a new Ambassador from the United States indicates that the Government at Washington is hopeful that this new spirit may be permanent. Mr. MORGENTHAU will be able to assure the Mexican Government that the disposition of the Government at Washington is entirely friendly, that it would willingly help the Mexicans to put the affairs of the Republic upon a solid foundation, that we are in full sympathy with every effort to put down disorder and brigandage and promote the establishment of conditions which will invite the confidence of the United States and of other nations. There is always a tide of mischievous rumor and gossip concerning intrigues in Mexico, adverse to our interest. Mr. MORGENTHAU had experience enough with this evil business in Turkey to qualify him to deal with it at the Mexican capital. Usually there has been no foundation whatever for these stories; sometimes, they have appeared to have a basis of truth. Our Ambassador will be able to point out to the Mexican Government that the interest of both Republics demands that the rumor-mongers should no longer be tolerated. First of all, there should be no tolerance of the intriguers and plotters, for whatever may be the ways in which they promise advantage to the Mexicans as the result of manifestations unfriendly to the United States, the harm to Mexico will always be greater than to us; and as to the purveyors of stories about the machinations of Germany or of Japan, their inventions should always be met by prompt disclaimers and denials. Mr. MORGENTHAU will be in a position to tell the Mexicans that there is no reason on earth why the relations between their country and the United States should not be those of friendship, of frankness and fair dealing. Their industries, their commerce, their credit will be immensely advantaged by good understanding, and thus he will be able to point out to them that friendly spirit which one neighbor should always feel toward another. As a man of experience not only in diplomacy but in affairs, as a man of trained judgment and sound common sense, he will be an Ambassador upon whose good counsel they can rely.

BUSES AND PAVEMENTS.

Instead of building majestic and commodious omnibuses, warranted to seat as many as thirty persons, in his desire to show his passion for the surface roads, Mayor HYLAN and the Board of Estimate should take thought for and spend money on the pavements and sidewalks of New York. However beautiful and splendid the $5,500 bus which the Superintendent of Plant and Structures fondly promises, it won't carry many passengers. Such an armada of buses as the Mayor may dream of when saturated with the municipal-ownership theories of his prompters would only clutter up the streets, congest congestion and eat the pavements.

Pavements in New York have made their usual response to the Spring. They have been broken, upheaved, disjointed. The asphalt in Central Park has been uneven, shaky, crying for repair for a generation. After a peculiarly vicious Winter it has cracked and sunk and risen and rolled even more than usually. The pavements of Pompeii are in much better shape. And, generally, in most of the city's streets, fissures, eruptions, cavities, humps, the architecture of the frost, have been made worse by the multitudinous, relentless automobiles and motor trucks plowing along in Mesopotamian mud and slush. Only cars on tracks can transport the New York crowds. A handful or a streetful of buses will accomplish little. Meanwhile, the roads, the streets, the pavements are neglected. Their repair, not stagecoach revival, should occupy the constructive genius of Mayor HYLAN.

SIMS AND BENSON.

The statement of Admiral SIMS to the Senate Investigating Committee that it was Admiral WILLIAM S. BENSON who told him not to let the British "pull the wool over your eyes," and that "we would as soon fight the British as the Germans," will excite no surprise, because one of SIMS's two superiors, Secretary DANIELS (the other being Admiral BENSON, Chief of Naval Operations), had asserted that it was not he who gave the American naval representative the warning about the British with its singular addendum. Admiral SIMS testifies that he was ordered to Washington "early in April," 1917, to get his detail and to receive his instructions. The joint resolution of Congress declaring war upon Germany was passed April 6. Apparently, then, if Admiral SIMS is not wrong about the time of his visit to Washington, Admiral BENSON must have told him that "we would as soon fight the British as the Germans" about the time of the President's address to Congress, on April 2, recommending a declaration of war upon "the Imperial German Government." Early in April might, indeed, have been the first day of April—at any rate, it was on the eve of war. Admiral SIMS "arrived in Liverpool on "April 9, and in London April 10, "1917," according to "Some Lessons of the Great War," the letter sent to Secretary DANIELS on Jan. 7, 1920, and read to the Senate Naval Affairs sub-committee by the Admiral himself on Jan. 17. Perhaps when Admiral BENSON appears before the investigating committee he will fix the date of the instructions and the warning to Admiral SIMS.

It was a relief to learn, from the testimony of Admiral SIMS on Monday, that he did not pay much attention "at first" to the warning to look out for the British and the remark about being just as willing to fight them as the Germans. SIMS attributed BENSON'S attitude to "personal prejudice," the Chief of Naval Operations being "intensely anti-British." Nevertheless—SIMS to the committee on Monday—"Admiral "BENSON is a fair, square, honest and "high-minded gentleman." The impression one gets from the tribute in relation to Admiral SIMS's first reception of the warning and the addendum is that the naval representative to London did not, at the time, regard them as part of his instructions. But in "Some Naval Lessons of the War" it is deliberately set down that what Admiral BENSON said about the British and about them and the Germans as possible foes was an "explicit admonition."

It is difficult to understand why the revelation was made at all. It was injected irrelevantly into Admiral SIMS's essay, which, addressed to the Secretary, was intended for the naval records, for official and service use only. "No formal instructions or "statement of the Navy Department's "plans or policy," wrote Admiral SIMS, "were received at that time "[when he was called to Washing-"ton], though I received the following "explicit admonition." Then follows in quotation marks what Admiral BENSON said to him. In the "Naval Lessons" it is not stated that BENSON ever repeated the warning and the assertion, "We would as soon fight the British as the Germans." But on Monday Admiral SIMS said, if reports of his testimony are correct, that Admiral BENSON did repeat his warning six months later, in November, 1917, on the occasion of his mission to Paris to attend the war conference. The United States had then been at war with Germany for more than six months. This second revelation by Admiral SIMS is just as incomprehensible, and seems just as superfluous, as his first. "Admiral BENSON'S statement," said Senator PITTMAN at the hearing on Monday, "should never have been made public." Is not the Senator right? But, as it has been made public by Admiral SIMS, Admiral BENSON, whose high character the revealer testifies to, will want to be heard for the sake of his reputation and record.

THE PEACE GARDEN.

Word comes from the Department of Agriculture that market gardeners are curtailing their operations for the coming season and that city dwellers are in for a shortage of fresh vegetables, together with prices that many will find prohibitive. Farmers everywhere are complaining of the scarcity of labor and its excessive cost, and everywhere the demand for vegetable seeds is falling below normal. This is presumably one reason why Park Commissioner GALLATIN has decided to continue his war gardens on a peace footing. The service huts have vanished from Bryant Park, and down in Union Square the land-cruiser Recruit is weighing anchor for Coney Island; but the cold frames are already harboring infant lettuce heads, cabbages and cauliflowers, the sodden soil is being spaded and pulverized, and Garden Instructor MILLER is ready to dispense information.

Happier circumstances unite with the urge of necessity. Spring returned punctually with the vernal equinox and in two short days the inclemencies of an "old-fashioned" Winter have become all but a memory. It is only in shaded, northern exposures that snow lingers; where the land looks southward, crocus and daffodil are sending up their shoots. In the city a garden is protected from the cold winds, while the surrounding walls act as a trap for sunlight; but even in the open country it will be in order to start work in the truck garden within a week or ten days. And beginning with next Sunday we shall have daylight saving, with commuting trains adjusted to it. An hour a day in the garden, if only for three or four days in the week, will give tone to a physique let down by the confinement of Winter and will insure immunity from the rigors of a peace-time which seems slow to resume its traditional piping.

It is true that the patriotic inspiration that went into so many war gardens will be lacking. A personal well-being and a personal economy are what the peace garden chiefly offers. Yet there are many in the cities whose Summer fare will be richer and cheaper if those who can grow their own green things will undertake the pleasant task.

TAXATION AND INVESTMENT.

No one has pointed out more clearly or cogently than Mr. KAHN the obstruction of excessive taxation to investment, and the consequent check to business initiative. That is all true and deplorable, in both domestic and foreign finance, and yet the country is hardly so poor that it cannot find resources for near necessities. Almost on the same day with his notable interview with THE TIMES correspondent in Paris there appeared a statement of the Superintendent of Banks of New York showing that their resources during 1919 had increased from $6,691,000,000 to $8,152,000,000. The deposits in the savings banks of the State increased by $225,000,000 in that memorable year of prosperity and unrest.

The Controller of the Currency reports that the increase of resources of national banks for the same year was $829,000,000. The nation's total banking power he put at $45,000,000,000, or not far from twice the national debt. These are gold dollars, acceptable to any nation of the world, and worth more than par in most. Accordingly, it strikes the eye rather strangely to read Mr. KAHN'S statement that there are no resources available for foreign borrowers because the weight of taxation on income from foreign bonds makes them undesirable to the very wealthy unless they yield 18 per cent. As Mr. KAHN says, the very rich put their funds into tax-exempt securities, of which there are billions enough. Foreign investments must come from the savings funds, or from such floating funds as can be diverted from bank deposits into the savings funds.

It is true that such diversion of banking funds ordinarily means reduction of funds for business, and that there is no present apparent surplus. But the case is unusual, and the reduction of banking funds by a billion or two, or even more, might easily relieve a shortage which comes from a deadlock in trade rather than from shortage of credit. Many millions of dollars' worth of goods have been sold which cannot be collected for. Many other millions' worth cannot be delivered for lack of transportation. There is no difficulty of selling in almost any amount, but goods sold which cannot be delivered or collected for tie up funds which would be released either by such foreign loans as would make collections easier or by such betterment of delivery facilities as would make the goods circulate. Funds put into foreign trade or foreign investments would rather be restored to trade than diverted from it, and that is much to be wished for.

The fact is that the balance of trade is against us, if the emergency purchases of Europe be left out of the reckoning. The billions of foreign credits run up by the aid of Government funds have been funded mostly, and are not overhanging the market. Foreign exchange is a matter of the shortest time, whether it is of barter of almost spot goods or the exchange of one money for another, as speedily as transportation allows. More foreign credit is a necessity of more foreign trade, and whatever obstructs foreign investment obstructs domestic commerce.

Considering the amount of money moving in trade, and especially the amount of money locked up in processes of trade, which ordinarily move more swiftly, there is room to suppose that what Mr. KAHN describes as scarcity of funds might be relieved if the attractions were sufficient, and that less than his 18 per cent. would be sufficient. It is more a matter of finding what will suit the financial appetite than of gorging it with too rich food.

SECESSION OF MONTMARTRE.

Something of the sort was bound to happen. The world today is satisfactory to none, irritating to most, and maddening to a good many. All things are more or less wrong, and if some are more wrong than others there is little to be said for the best of them. It was time that something was done about it, and where should one look for leadership sooner than to Montmartre, where free spirits gather?

Montmartre secedes. First of all it secedes from the City of Paris, which has put a 10 o'clock closing law on a quarter where the band hadn't even begun to tune up at 10 o'clock. It secedes from the French Republic; it secedes from Europe; it secedes from the world. Just as Germany at present consists of a State within a State, the Red republic on the Ruhr within the pale-terra-cotta-speckled, white republic that centres around Berlin, so the cosmos now leads a dual life, with the little—it would not do to say petty—cosmos of Montmartre operating in competition with the greater. The headquarters of the new State are established in the cabaret of the Agile Rabbit; an official organ known as the Frenzied Cow, a name which has a number of significances in the recognized and unrecognized idioms of the French language, tells the world of the great things about to be done in the vicinity of the celebrated Butte. Various political tickets are in the field with attractive programs; the Liste Cubiste promises free drinks as the strongest plank in its platform; the Liste Sauvagiste goes still further. It would make the best of a noted affliction of the skyline by employing the Church of the Sacred Heart for profane purposes; it would restore a costume which might have been suitable in Eden, but would be somewhat uncomfortable in wintry Paris; and the wind would be tempered to the wearers of fig leaves by the invention of a gigantic turntable by which Montmartre would be kept always in the sun.

Gay plans, these, and attractive; what a pity all the rest of the world cannot secede from itself and remold the sorry scheme somewhat nearer to its heart's desire! But the stodgy bourgeois majority of us must keep on in the old paths; we have our allotted function in the universe; without us there would be nothing to secede from.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

And After All Daylight Will Be Saved.

Thanks to our wise and considerate legislators, Federal and State, daylight saving may have to be done this year in a clumsy way, with several inconveniences and confusions which, while not really serious, yet, in their utter needlessness, will be sufficiently irritating to prevent any of us from forgetting to whom we owe them.

The plan devised at Albany is to repeal the State law that would have been the next best thing to one covering the whole country, and then to let the towns in the State do what they choose in the matter—a new sort of local option. By this pretty absurdity the Senators and Assemblymen expected to please both the country and the city voters, but as the Betts bill has encountered unforeseen opposition the chances are that even if it passed both would be offended, that being the usual result of a compromise between demands in exact contradiction to each other.

It seems probable that the deeper offense will be felt by the "rote" which is the more feared, for the farmers are going to be considerably more bothered by the variance of their clocks from the clocks of their best and only important customers than are those customers by the consequences to them of the same disparity. The real city folk, as a matter of fact—the folk, that is, who live in the cities as well as do business in them—are going to be bothered not at all, or at least only when they make occasional excursions far into the hinterland, and even then their trouble will be slight and brief.

The way of the commuter will not be quite so plain and easy, but the New York railways have already prepared to adjust their local trains to serve his needs, and the Jersey roads almost certainly will do the same thing after a little delay. The farmers will have no help from anybody, but must struggle alone with their difficulties, and before the Summer is over they might discover that their victory was a costly one. It would enable them to do only what they could have done just as well without it, while their lack of regard for the interests and welfare of the urban populations, far more numerous than they, would be long remembered.

Pre-Standard Time Was Like This.

It is upon the ingenuity of the railways in arranging their train schedules to meet new conditions that will depend whether local option in daylight saving works with the minimum or the maximum of inconvenience. The New York Central and the New Haven officials have tackled the problem promptly and boldly, and seemingly have solved it. Their clocks will remain unchanged, but the commuter with his watch set ahead will find a train running at the accustomed hour. He will have to exert his mathematical abilities only when he reads the time table, and he will not mind it the train he takes at 8 o'clock is set down as running at 9.

There are people, of course, who will be puzzled for a while, even by a computation as simple as that, but they will soon straighten out the one-hour difference, and thereafter be as happy as a commuter deserves to be.

Something has been said about dangers due to the apparent conflict between two "times," but the dangers will be of missing trains, not of collisions and derailments, and it is only the tyro in commutation to whom there is anything new in missing trains. The others have been hardened to it by long experience.

A Mistaken Impression Corrected.

Recent generous and effective aid given by the Knights of Columbus to the relatives of soldiers whose bodies had been brought back from abroad has created the impression in many minds that this organization has undertaken to do work of this sort and has special facilities for it, as well as the power to influence the Government to take action in individual cases. The Knights desire that this impression be removed, for it is a mistaken one.

The Supreme Secretary, WILLIAM J. MCGINLEY, has announced that they have no official policy regarding the removal of the American dead from France, and are content to leave the matter as a whole to the Government for decision and action. In many instances, however, the Secretaries have been able to find out for parents just where in France their sons are buried, and have given them this much desired information. "Beyond that," he says, "we cannot go, but, as in the cases of the sailor, JAMES T. DEVERS of Chicago, and Private DANA DYER of Massachusetts, we stand ready to be of service whenever and wherever we can."

The position taken by the Knights of Columbus is right and wise, as well as helpful. They have not, as an organization, participated in the controversy in regard to the final disposition of the American soldiers who died abroad or brought pressure to bear either way on the Government. A natural inference is that the Knights, as they are not joining in the movement to bring about a general disinterment, do not favor it. That is what would be expected from those who know as much as they do about how a majority of the survivors of the expeditionary forces feel and express themselves when this subject is discussed in their presence.

The dead sleep well where they are. There their graves will be carefully guarded and worthily honored, and more could not be done for them here.

Some May Protest Indignantly.

Is it quite tactful for the public school teachers to advertise that the best of their number are resigning and that those left are of inferior quality? These statements may be true, but they must be unpleasant reading for the teachers who remain at work. Just possibly, too, the statements are not true—at least not to the extent that all the best teachers have resigned, or soon will do so if salaries are not raised.

"Best" is a word with more meanings than one, and with some plausibility it might be denied that a teacher really and highly deserving of that title would desert, from motives of self-interest, the young generation and leave them to the unconvenanted mercies of incompetents.

That, probably, is an unduly harsh interpretation of the advertisements now appearing, but their phrasing tempts the reader to make it.

Only 167 Per Cent. Increase.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I rise to protest against this cruel hounding of landlords that has taken possession of so many malcontents. A year ago an office in a building in the neighborhood of Fortieth Street and Madison Avenue rented as high as $900 a year. Through the generosity of the landlord the same room is now rented for $2,400—a paltry increase of 167 per cent.

Surely a landlord has some rights that others should respect. A. L.

IN TURQUOISE TOWN.

In Turquoise Town the trees are white,
The houses and the hedges, too;
But shadows and the sky are blue
And every bird is of that hue,
Except the Snowy Owls at night.

All Summer through the sparkling snow.
The children wear blue eiderdown
For leggings and for little coats,
With bands of swan around their throats.

The leading light of Turquoise Town,
King Sirius, wears a sapphire crown.
He bids the sun go down at noon,
For fear the world should be too bright,
And orders lovely Lady Moon
To light her silver lamp instead.

She gives each child a blue balloon
To play with when it goes to bed.
They laugh out when the sun goes down

MEXICAN OIL EXPORTS RISE.

Drilling Progresses Rapidly and New Production Is Expected.

Word received here in the last few days from the representatives of oil companies operating in Mexico is to the effect that drilling is going on at a rapid pace and that some new production may be brought in shortly.

The total export of crude oil from Mexico in February was 7,552,699 barrels, representing an increase of 817,654 barrels over the January shipments. New production, however, did not figure in this increase in exports. It is therefore assumed that shipping facilities for the transport of oil were available to a greater extent than at the first of the year.

The shipment of oil from Mexico in February, as compared with January, in the case of the larger companies was as follows:

Mexican Petroleum Company, 1,826,589 barrels, against 1,753,564 in January; Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, 854,018 barrels (including some of Mexican Petroleum Company's production), against 1,013,251 in January; officials Oil (Freeport), 570,200 barrels, against 373,404 in January; Texas Company, 667,983 barrels, against 700,446 in January; Mexican Gulf, 354,902 barrels, against 681,500 in January; Island Oil and Transport, 680,974 barrels, against 654,537 in January; Atlantic Lobos, 348,792 barrels, against 456,286 in January; Mexican Eagle Oil, 1,458,303 barrels, against 1,013,314 in January; East Coast Oil (Southern Pacific), 456,936 barrels, against 375,857 in January; Penn-Mexico Fuel, 310,437 barrels, against 179,084 in January; miscellaneous companies, 541,712 barrels, against 389,899 in January.

SERVICE ENGULFED GEDDES.

Has Served Against His Inclinations, New Ambassador Says.

LONDON, March 23.—Sir Auckland Geddes, newly appointed Ambassador to the United States, speaking at a dinner in his honor at the Canada Club, said he had found himself swept into the stream of public service, the depths of which he had very little imagined.

If he and his wife had followed their own inclinations, he added, they would have been back in Canada at least a year ago, but he had stayed on in what he was persuaded was necessary service for the State.

The Duke of Devonshire, Governor General of Canada, presided, having arrived from Canada just before the dinner after an exciting race against time.

Walter Hume Long, First Lord of the Admiralty, in the course of his address declared the Imperial Parliament had not only refused to build new vessels, but had actually scrapped glorious ships.

"The time has arrived," said Mr. Long, "when we should enter into new competition, not in regard to the size of armaments, but in the reduction of armaments. I am a believer in the League of Nations, but we who have great possessions and above all are the real security for the freedom of the world cannot agree now to abandon all our protective armament."

Viscount Bryce, former Ambassador to the United States, also addressed the gathering.

BELITTLE CHEAP MEAT MOVE

House Agricultural Committee Members Criticise Palmer's Campaign.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—The campaign of the Department of Justice to stimulate the consumption of cheaper cuts of meat drew caustic criticism from members of the House Agriculture Committee today during the hearing on legislation to regulate the packing industry. L. D. H. Weld, of Swift & Co., told the committee the packers were co-operating in the campaign.

"If the campaign is successful," he testified, "the effect will be to increase the prices of lower grade cuts and probably decrease the more expensive cuts."

"There is really the poorer families now using cheaper cuts of meat will have to pay more because of this campaign," Representative VOIGT, Republican, Wisconsin, commented, "while the people who use the more expensive cuts will get theirs cheaper."

Mr. Weld said such a result was possible, although some good might be done by teaching consumers the value of lower priced cuts, adding:

"I do not consider, however, that the results of the campaign will be substantial enough to affect the prices of meat materially."

FILE 80-CENT GAS APPEAL.

Public Service Board and Attorney General Submit Case.

Papers in an appeal taken by the Public Service Commission and the Attorney General from the decision of the Federal Court restraining them from seeking to enforce the eighty-cent gas law against the Brooklyn Union Gas Company and permitting the company to charge 97 cents per thousand cubic feet for gas, pending the suit of the company to have the eighty-cent law set aside, were filed yesterday with the United States Circuit Court.

It is contended in the appeal that the company has no standing in a court of equity because it failed to prove that it had complied with all the requirements of the law. It is further contended that the company earned a fair return upon its investment during the last ten years, and that the lower court erred in not taking into consideration the average annual earnings of the company for a period of years.

MAY RETURN ALL WAR DEAD.

French Commission Agrees to Removals from Battle Zone.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—An agreement under which American dead in France, whether within or behind the battle zone, may be removed to the United States as soon as arrangements have been completed, has been reached at a conference between representatives of the French and American governments. The agreement awaits the approval of the French Government.

"This practically ends the controversy between the United States and France over the return of our soldier dead," said Chairman PORTER of the House Foreign Affairs Committee. He assumes that the French commission made the recommendation with the knowledge of Premier MILLERAND.

Secretary BAKER recently wrote Congress that about 30,000 of the American dead would be brought home at the request of the next of kin and that the remainder, about 20,000, would be concentrated in major cemeteries in France which would be maintained by the War Department.

FRENCH HONOR DR. COWLING

Dr. Donald J. Cowling, associate campaign director of the New World Movement of Northern Baptists for $100,000,000, received word yesterday from the French Government that it had decorated him. Dr. Cowling, who is President of Carleton College, Northfield, Minn., has been created an Officier de l'Instruction Publique. The personal congratulations of André Tardieu came with the decoration.

Dr. Cowling is giving his time to the financial campaign. $30,000,000 of the $100,000,000 budget being designated for the forty Baptist colleges in the United States. His headquarters are in the Holland Building, Fifth Avenue and Thirtieth Street.

French Legislators Raise Own Pay.

PARIS, March 23.—The Chamber of Deputies this evening voted to raise the compensation of members of the Chamber and Senate by 1,000 francs monthly.

The vote was 374 in favor of the increase and 139 against it.

TO TELL OF SCHOOLS' NEED

118,000 Pupils Sent Home in One Week for Lack of Instructors, Principals Say.

In an attempt to remedy the shortage of teachers in the State, and especially in New York City, representatives of business, political, social and industrial organizations will go to Albany this morning to present at a legislative hearing a statement of the conditions in the public schools and urge the passage of the Lockwood-Donohue bill. The measure increases teachers' salaries throughout the State from 20 to 40 per cent.

In one week recently, the New York City Principals' Association stated yesterday, 118,000 children were sent home because there were no teachers to care for them. During the year 1919, it was said, 880 teachers resigned voluntarily, and a total of 1,200 left the service in the year.

The delegates from the sixty-three teachers' organizations alone will number 100, and they will present to the legislators hundreds of indorsements of an increase in teachers' salaries.

Among those who it was announced are supporting the teachers in their efforts are Alton B. Parker, Charles E. Hughes, Felix M. Warburg, Alfred E. Marling, Henry Morgenthau, Archbishop Patrick J. Hayes, Dr. Stephen S. Wise, Dr. William T. Manning, Major Gen. John J. O'Ryan and Bishop Charles S. Burch.

Among the facts to be presented to the legislators, it was said, are the following:

From September, 1919, to February, 1920, not quite six months, 1,015 teachers resigned. As a result 2,005 classes had no teachers during the week ended Feb. 10, and 118,000 children were sent home. The teachers will point out that this is only a part of the story, for many thousands are deprived of adequate instruction because of the lack of teachers.

Mr. Morgenthau yesterday said: "The claims of the teachers are self-evident. I don't see what argument can be brought against them."

Archbishop Hayes assured the teachers that he had taken steps to aid their cause. Rabbi Wise said he was urging a decent living wage, not chiefly as a matter of justice to the teachers, but in the interest of the country.

A sub-committee of the Citizens' Committee, formed to aid the teachers in their fight for more pay, will meet Thursday at the State Chamber of Commerce to discuss ways in which the State and city may raise the $65,000,000 to $25,000,000 which higher salaries would entail. The committee consists of Alfred Marling, Chairman, and Felix M. Warburg, Charles E. Hughes, William Fellowes Morgan, Professor Robert Haig and Lorenz Zinsser.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler will address a mass meeting on behalf of the teachers to be held after the Easter holidays at Carnegie Hall. Mary Garrett Hay will preside.

Seven hundred persons were turned away while 1,500 were crowded the auditorium of the Morris High School, 166 Boston Road, at a meeting held last night by Bronx civic bodies in support of the Lockwood-Donahue bill.

John Tildsley, Associate Superintendent of Schools, said that there were 230 vacancies in the teaching staff of elementary schools, 150 in high schools, in New York City, and that he saw no way of filling these places except by substantial salary increases in what he termed war now "a blind alley occupation." Resolutions were adopted urging the passage of the teachers' salary bill and providing for delegates to represent the meeting at the hearing in Albany.

ASSEMBLY DEFIES EDWARDS

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., March 23.—In the face of Governor Edwards's threat that should the measure pass he would retaliate in such manner as he saw fit, the Assembly today passed the Senate bill transferring the Department of Motor Vehicles from the office of the Secretary of State to that of the Controller of the Treasury. The Governor, it is taken for granted, will veto it, but the Republicans in both houses assert they have the votes to override him and make it law.

The vote in the Assembly was strictly on party lines, thirty-two Republicans supporting the bill, and twenty-two Democrats opposing it. The effect of the act will be to replace Commissioner William L. Dill, Democrat, by a Republican, who, in addition to getting a $5,000 salary, will have the selection of nearly half a hundred motor vehicle licensing agencies throughout the State, it has already been decided that the berth shall go to an Essex County man.

Two other moves in opposition to the Governor were made during the day. The Senate, for the first time this session, passed a bill over his veto, the measure being that of Senator WILLIS of Atlantic County, to provide an appropriation of $100,000 for the purchase of a dredge by the Department of Commerce and Navigation for improvement of the inland waterway from Cape Spring Harbor to Bay Head. The other move was the reporting in the Assembly of a substitute bill for reorganization of the State Highway Commission. The substitute bill framed by the Republicans proposes a board of four, two members from each party, with annual salaries of $7,500. The Governor could remove them only for neglect of duty or misconduct, and only after a hearing held.

Another interesting development of the day was the inability of the liberal Sunday advocates to get the necessary eleven votes in the Senate to pass the bill legalizing baseball, motion pictures and concerts between 1 o'clock in the afternoon and 11 o'clock at night.

FAVOR STATE BUDGET BILL.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 23.—That reconstruction provisions embodied in the three Gibbs bills should be adopted to eliminate waste in State expenditures, sums up arguments presented to the Senate Judiciary Committee this afternoon at a meeting.

One measure provides that the Governor's term be increased to four years; another calls for a budget system for all State departments and the third advocates the short ballot providing for the election of the Governor, Lieutenant-Governor and Comptroller and the appointment of all other executive heads.

Not one person appeared in opposition, although ex-Chairman Frederick C. Tanner of the Republican State Committee and Judge A. T. Clearwater, of Kingston, said that before the progress was workable minor amendments would be necessary. All speakers approved the general plan and urged the passage of the bills at this session so that the people could vote on them this year, since they are in the form of Constitutional amendments.

John G. Agar, Dwight Marvin of Troy, Mrs. J. C. Falco of Brooklyn, Mrs. Niess Bruere of New York, Raymond B. Ingersoll of New York, William H. Hayes of Brooklyn and Addison B. Colvin, a member of the commission, of Glens Falls, were also among the speakers.

WANT SEIZED PROPERTY BACK

House Committee Hears Pleas of American Wives of Teutons.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Hearings on legislation to restore to American-born women property in this country seized during the war because of their marriage to Germans and Austrians were begun today befor the House Ways and Means Committee.

No estimate of the amount of property involved was given to the committee, but counsel for Mrs. Claire Schlubeck of Berlin, daughter of a former Milwaukee brewer, said that without general legislation affecting all American women married to foreigners, Congress would have to consider 10,000 individual cases. A large part of Mrs. Schlubeck's $4,000,000 estate is tied up by the Alien Property Custodian under war legislation, the committee was told.

Alien Property Custodian Garvan will be called later.

DUCHESS MADE PLEA FOR RECONCILIATION

LETTERS READ IN COURT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 23.—In outlining the case of the Duchess of Marlborough against her husband, the Duke, for restitution of conjugal rights in the Divorce Court yesterday, Sir Edward Carson, her counsel, said that in 1907 an unfortunate difference arose between the Duke and Duchess, but no proceedings were then taken. A deed of separation was, however, prepared outside of court, which made provision for the bringing up of their children.

When the younger son, Lord Ivor Churchill, came of age last year, the Duke suggested that he and the Duchess should try once more to live together. She was willing to make the experiment, and for two or three weeks they were together at the Duchess's house at Crowborough. The reconciliation did not last, and on Dec. 15 the Duke went off, leaving behind this letter:

"We have tried our best to mend the past and start afresh, but I fear that after the long period of our separation we have broken too far apart to live happily together again. I appreciate all you have tried to do for our union, but I am now convinced that it is impossible for us to live together any longer."

To this the Duchess replied: "I have received your letter. I wish you had spoken to me instead of writing. It seems a pity now that we came together only for everything to end like this. It is useless to say more. I must go away and rest for a while."

The Duchess then went to the Continent to rest and on her return wrote to the Duke on Jan. 21: "While I have been away I have thought over everything, and you too have had time to reflect, and so I am asking you to reconsider your decision not to return to me. If you will do so I can assure you nothing on my part will be wanting to try and make you happy."

To this the Duke replied on Feb. 1, saying: "I have received your letter, written as you return from the Continent. As I wrote you when we parted, I am convinced that it is impossible for us to live happily together."

On receipt of this letter the Duchess instructed her solicitors to bring suit for restitution.

Sir Edward then asked permission of the court to examine the Duchess standing in the well of the court instead of in the witness box, as she was partly deaf. He took her briefly through the facts he had narrated and she answered his questions in a clear low voice. Only as she described receiving the letter telling her that her husband had left her for the second time did her dull, lifeless tones betray any emotion.

As Sir Edward Carson explained that he understood the Duke was now in France, the court, in granting the order asked by the Duchess, made it effective fourteen days after service.

ELEPHANT STEPS ON MAN.

Charles Herbert, an assistant to an elephant trainer of the Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey Circus at Madison Square Garden, was injured seriously last night when "Sanchen," one of the trained elephants, stepped on him as the animal was being coached in new tricks by her trainer.

Herbert was taken to Bellevue Hospital by Dr. Weedon of New York Hospital, who said the man was suffering from concussion of the brain and possibly from a fracture of the skull. Herbert was unconscious, and little hope was expressed for his recovery.

Captain James T. Ward of the East Twenty-second Street Police Station, who was in the Garden at the time of the accident, said the elephant was on her hand legs atop two barrels, when she suddenly dropped her fore feet to the ground, knocking Herbert down as she did so.

PARTNER SUES A. H. POST.

Sidney Hoey of Lakewood, N. J., a partner in the ship brokerage firm of Alfred H. Post & Co. of 11 Broadway, filed suit in the Supreme Court yesterday against Mr. Post for an accounting of the funds of the firm and asked that a receiver be appointed for the firm's funds pending the suit. Justice Gavegan will hear this application today.

Mr. Hoey states that the firm is flourishing and that a payment of $235,000 is about to be made, but alleges that Mr. Post, who has had sole authority to draw checks on the firm's bank account, has converted at least $100,000 of the firm's funds for his own benefit by drawing checks to his own order and using them. He said that Post has admitted taking more than $10,000, which he said he intended to repay. Hoey said he had fifty-nine canceled checks for a total of $56,846 which his partner drew and used for his own benefit.

Mr. Post denies the charges of his partner, and his defense will be made by his attorneys, O'Gorman, Battle & Vandiver, when the case is heard. He is a member of the Sons of the Revolution and of the Traffic Club.

ROBINS HAND YANKS ANOTHER DRUBBING

DECISION COMES IN NINTH

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 23.—The Brooklyn Dodgers surely are getting even for the drubbings which the Yanks handed them last Spring. A year ago it was the daily custom of the Yanks to make the Dodgers jump through hoops, roll dead and do other tricks. The series ended 10 to 3 in favor of New York.

This Spring the Dodgers are taking a leaf from the Yankee book and are piling humiliation after humiliation upon Huggins's supposedly all-star Yankee aggregation.

Brooklyn made it four straight from the Yanks today. It was a hard-fought engagement, but Brooklyn got over the only run of the game with two out in the ninth, and hung up a 1 to 0 shutout. It was the second time the Dodgers shut out Huggins's mauling corps in the series. In four games the Yanks have scored three runs and made twenty-three hits off the Dodger pitchers, which is an average of three-quarters of a run and just less than six hits a game.

Huggins Gets Good Pitching.

Huggins got good pitching today, as the work of Shawkey and Rip Collins left little to be desired. Only three hits were made off Bob in five innings. Collins had much better control than when he pitched against the Reds at Palm Beach, but his only base on balls beat him.

Mitchell, Mamaux and Mohart pitched for Brooklyn, each member of the trio going three innings. It was the third time that Mamaux had pitched for Brooklyn in the four games and Robby has been giving him plenty of work. He looked to be in the same form which made him such a star in Pittsburgh a few years ago.

Mitchell, the only left-handed spitballer in the majors, got his first chance against the Yanks, and only ten men faced him. Meusel hit a single, but was out stealing, and Truck Hannah walked in the third.

Only one hit was made off Mamaux in three innings, but he was a little wild. Mohart, the Brooklyn recruit, who looked so good in the first game of the series, again frustrated the Yanks with runners on the bases.

There were some tidy bits of fielding in the game. Bodie made a great shoestring catch off Olson in the sixth, while there were five double plays, the Yankees making three of them.

A Freak Double Play.

A freak double play got the Yanks out of a mess in the fourth. Olson singled, and was forced by Neis. A single by Johnston and a pass to Wheat filled the bases, with one out. Myers hit to Meusel, whose throw to Hannah forced Neis at the plate. With his head down, Johnston circled third and also started for the plate, and was run down on the base lines.

Only nine men faced Bip in the sixth, seventh and eighth innings, but he started off the ninth by passing George Mohart, Robbie's third pitcher. Olson sacrificed him to second, and little Neis knocked a fly which Ruth caught a few feet behind second base.

Jimmy Johnston, who had boned up Brooklyn's best rally, then knocked a low liner to centre. Ruth came in fast for it, got his hands on it, but could not hold it. The ball went through him, and Mohart tore around with the only run of the game.

Shake-up by Huggins.

Huggins shook up his lineup today, and it did not bring any more hitting power, as the Yanks made only four hits, less than in any other game down here this Spring. Peck had a lame arm, so he did not play short, though he worked out before the game and coached.

Ward went over to short and Meusel tried his hand at third base, where he did very well. Huggins also gave Gleich a chance in right field, where Vick was temporarily supplanted. Gleich had many chances at bat, but fell down on three. In the second inning Meusel singled, and tried to steal on the hit and run, but Gleich fanned and Bob was doubled at second.

In the fourth inning, with Pipp on third and Ruth on second, Gleich knocked a fly to left which Wheat had to hustle for, and in the sixth, after Mamaux had passed Ruth and Meusel with two out, Frank rolled to Olson. It cannot be said that Gleich took advantage of his opportunity to show that he belonged on the regular team.

The day was one of the windiest the two teams have had here, and it wasn't much of a game for good practice. Duffy Lewis, the veteran Yank outfielder, again took only the lightest kind of a workout. He coached a bit in the afternoon game.

ROW OVER UMPIRES AVERTED BY BARROW

DALLAS, Texas, March 23.—Manager Ed Barrow of the Red Sox said tonight that he would raise no objection to Bill Brennan continuing to officiate as umpire in the Giant-Red Sox series. He said that he had wired to Ban Johnson asking that an American League umpire be sent down here to work in this series, but he did not know whether one was available. At any rate, he will not now insist that Brennan be dropped.

The situation anent the umpires in the series was becoming awkward. Yesterday at Wichita Falls, Barrow declared that John McGraw had disavowed an agreement to allow Gus Rooney, a Boston newspaper man, to work on the bases with Bill Brennan behind the bat, and that, in retaliation, he must refuse to permit Brennan to continue.

Today, McGraw returning from a visit to the Young County oil fields, asserted that he had never agreed to stand for Rooney until such time as Klem could be obtained, and repeated that Gus was through as an umpire in this series.

"I just said that I was satisfied to have Rooney work in the game at Fort Worth," he said. "He is through, but Brennan is in. I engaged Brennan and I'll stick to him. If Barrow wants to get an American League umpire down here I'm satisfied, but that doesn't mean that Brennan will be tossed out. If Barrow doesn't want to play any more games I will not worry greatly. The series doesn't mean as much to us as it does to the Red Sox."

McGraw and Barrow have not seen each other since Sunday afternoon and may not meet in Austin tomorrow, as McGraw will go straight through to San Antonio tomorrow morning if he can make railroad connections. He is desirous of getting back to the training camp site in order to attend to the matter of placing the young players he will send out to the minors.

McGRAW'S YOUNGSTERS WIN

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 23.—The second team of the Giants took the San Antonio Texas Leaguers into camp here today. The score was 3 to 1. White, Bates and Bowen did the trick offensively, while Virgil Barnes and Reynolds Kelly, though a little wild, pitched excellent ball. The local team would have been shut out had not Bowen lost a shoe chasing a double by Brown in the third, permitting the ball to go for a home run.

Some good base running by Bowen put over a run in the first inning. With one out he singled to left, stole second and scored when Catcher Gibson, fielding King's bunt, left the plate uncovered. It was in the last three innings that the McGraw youngsters began to feel safe. Fincher had held them to two singles up to the seventh, when White doubled and Armstrong singled. Bates drove him across with a hit to right. The third run went over in the eighth on a hit by King and singles by left by Gonzales and White. The fielding of White, Horie and Bowen featured.

MURPHY FILES NEW SUIT.

To Bring Action for Back Rent Against Both Big Leagues.

CHICAGO, March 23.—Another suit to collect back rent from the Chicago National League baseball club, naming the National and American Leagues jointly, will be filed in the Circuit Court tomorrow, according to Charles W. Murphy, former owner of the Chicago club.

Mr. Murphy last month filed a similar suit, naming only National League club owners and officials, and sought a temporary injunction against the league to restrain it from making plans for the 1920 season. This suit was withdrawn yesterday. Mr. Murphy said his lawyers were not entirely satisfied with the manner in which it was drawn.

For the purpose of making the official pairings for the fifth round of the national soccer challenge trophy, which has been badly held up by unfavorable weather conditions, the Cup Committee of the United States Football Association met last night at the Hotel Astor, Lieut. Col. G. Randolph Manning occupying the chair. The champion Bethlehems were drawn to meet Robins Dry Dock in Brooklyn on April 4. The New York Football Club, which has yet to play Newburg in the fourth round next Sunday, must meet either the United Shoe F. C. or Fore River in the fifth round in New England.

Stecher Wins Two Falls.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 23.—Joe Stecher, champion heavyweight wrestler, defeated Mort Henderson here tonight in two straight falls. The first fall was made in 37 minutes, 50 seconds, with a body scissors and arm hold, and the second in 14 minutes, with a head scissors and double wrist lock.

Kauff and Winters Come to Blows During Practice

DALLAS, Texas, March 23.—The Giants had an off day today due to inclement weather. However, one contest not advertised was put on. The teams went out to the ball park expecting there would be a game and managed to get in some batting practice. During the hitting drill Benny Kauff and Jesse Winters got into an argument which developed speedily into a fistic encounter. The belligerent players were pried apart by the other athletes before any damage was done.

MAGEE SAYS HE'LL PUBLISH CHARGES

CINCINNATI, March 23.—Revelations of a sensational nature are hinted at in an announcement made here today by Lee Magee, former Cincinnati and Chicago National League ball player.

"On Saturday," said Magee, "I shall make public the charges on which the National League bases its action in barring me from its circuit. I'll show the documents, both in my favor and against me, and let the public judge whether I've been fairly treated. I'll add to this: I'm going to burn my bridges and then jump off the ruins. If I'm barred I'll take quite a few noted people with me. I'll show up some people for tricks turned ever since 1906. And there will be merry music in the baseball world."

Robert S. Alcorn, Magee's attorney, said that John Heydler, President of the National League, had been asked to investigate charges reflecting on Magee, made by a National League magnate, and added: "If Mr. Heydler persists in ignoring Magee's charges against the magnates and refuses to hear them they will be made public by Magee."

Magee, it is said, was refused a contract by the Chicago National League club for 1920.

N. Y. U. NINE OUTDOORS.

Coach Kellogg Finds Baseball Material Well Developed.

Coach Raymond Kellogg of the New York University baseball team put his charges through their first outdoor practice of the season yesterday afternoon. Ohio Field, the university athletic field, was not in good condition, so the afternoon's workout was shifted to Berkeley Oval.

The Violet baseball team opens its season on April 3, when it will meet the representatives of Wesleyan University on Ohio Field. Coach Kellogg expects to have his charges well groomed for the occasion.

Ed Delaney, the star Violet twirler, reported yesterday and spent most of the afternoon on the mound. He is in fine form. His short trick in the cage last week put his twirling arm into good shape. Maxwell Baker, who was one of the Violet's leading catchers before the war, donned his uniform for the first time and was injured while catching. His index finger on his catching hand was split and forced him to retire from the game. He will be out for several days.

INFIELD BOTHERS DEVLIN.

Fordham Coach Has Plain Sailing with Other Positions on Nine.

The Fordham University baseball squad resumed its outdoor practice sessions yesterday afternoon after a respite of several days, due to the muddy condition of the diamond. After putting the candidates through an intensive two-hour drill, which included both batting, Coach Devlin declared that he was well pleased with the prospects for the approaching campaign and that he expected to send a strong aggregation against the Boston College nine in the opening game at Fordham Field on April 1.

At present the infield problem is causing Devlin no little worry. The veterans, Lefevre and W. McLaughlin, both of whom are first-class players, seem to be fixtures at third base and first base, respectively, and the Maroon coach is endeavoring to develop a capable second baseman and a shortstop. Cochran, a youngster from Flemington High School, and Hoctor, formerly of Clason Point Academy, have been alternating at the keystone sack, and Starr of Xavier High School, Delaney of Fordham Prep and J. McLaughlin of Regis High School are being groomed for the shortfield position.

STEVENS WORKS OUTDOORS.

Baseball and Lacrosse Squads Practice on Athletic Field.

The Stevens Tech baseball and lacrosse squads got outside yesterday afternoon for the first time this season. Coach Durborow took his charges behind the gymnasium for batting practice, while the stick wielders romped around in one corner of the athletic field.

Besides the eight regulars from last year several of the new additions to the squad have been showing up to the satisfaction of the coach and Captain Daley. Huneke, Harty, Jobin and Malay will probably find berths with the infield, while Sildorf and Weigel will be added to the pitching staff.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 23.—The Harvard second crew defeated the 'Varsity at Lynn this afternoon by three-quarters of a length in a race slightly over a half mile in length. Try as they would, the 'Varsity was unable to gain.

The Harvard crews are not expected to leave Lynn until Monday, despite the fact that there were thirteen eights in commission on the local course this afternoon.

PRINCETON CLUB SQUASH.

Simultaneously with the finish of the Yale Club and Harvard Club squash tennis tournaments yesterday, the Princeton Club, which shares the Yale courts, as well as the coaching of Frank Lafforgue, began play for its own championship, with a strong entry list of thirty.

Three matches were decided in the opening round, H. Caesar defeating J. H. O'Connell in straight games, 15—11, 17—14. Robert Piel winning from G. H. Higgins at 15—8 and 15—4, and Jesse Hoyt eliminating J. R. Greenwood by scores of 15—1, 15—8. L. J. Doyle, the former baseball player, A. G. Hewitt, Dr. H. R. Mixsell and A. M. Hoban started with an allowance of 2 minutes and 30 seconds and covered the course in 23:45. J. Healy, who started off the 2:40 mark, finished second, about thirty yards back of the winner, and E. Hanley, allowed 3 minutes, was third. Frank Wilson, scratch starter, finished fourth and earned the fast time prize, covering the course in the actual time of 22:30. A field of twenty-one harriers started and all but one finished the full distance.

HYDE WINS TITLE OF HARVARD CLUB

By defeating his old squash tennis rival, Eric S. Winston, in three out of four games in the final round of the Harvard Club tournament yesterday, Fillmore Van S. Hyde won permanent possession of the challenge trophy, both of these former national champions having previously captured the club championship twice. The scores of the deciding match were 15—4, 15—10, 10—15, 17—15. In the Class B handicap tournament J. A. Richards entered the final round by defeating A. H. Tomes in a close match and will meet Murray Taylor for first honors this afternoon.

Yesterday's big match was a battle for blood, for Winston and Hyde had many a score to settle. The latter had broken the victorious string of the most consistent winner of the national title and had later stopped his unbeaten career at the Harvard Club in similar fashion. Both had dropped out of squash tennis during the war, and defaulted in this year's national championship because of lack of practice, although they did well in the interclub team matches of the Metropolitan League and were ranked far up in the first ten at the end of the season.

Winston's game is the more spectacular of the two and he hits the ball with terrific force most of the time. Hyde, on the other hand, has carried out more of the principles taught by William D. Gazley, the Harvard Club professional, and his game is better rounded and less tiring, so that even with his slender physique he is able to last through a hard match. His enormous reach is also of great help to him, and yesterday he often took the position in mid-court and succeeded in putting his racquet on the ball again and again without moving from his tracks. Hyde also mixed volleys and half volleys with his full swings and changed his pace in baffling style. Many of his outs were of the sensational kind, and he won in the long run chiefly by his steadiness.

Winston was very slow in getting started, but after the first two games he struck his stride, and punished the ball severely to the finish. In the final game, after Hyde was within a point of the match, Winston succeeded in tieing the score and forcing extra points, and, if he had been able to pull out this game, he might still have saved the match, as Hyde was tiring rapidly. Errors, however, spelled his rally, and the winner took the three necessary points on Winston's lack of control.

They began with Winston serving, but he was very wild in the early hands, and Hyde soon had a lead of 5—1, which he increased to 10—3 with a brilliant run of five, including a clean service ace. Winston returned this compliment on his own service, but Hyde answered with three more, and another service ace put him within a point of game, with his opponent still anchored at three. He infused a half-volley, however, and Winston was able to count his fourth point before Hyde could deliver his winning smash for the opening game, which ended in eight hands, every one of them containing at least one score for the winner.

The second was closer, but after the first hand Hyde again led all the way. A run of four by Winston late in the game enabled him to reach double figures, but Hyde ran out on his errors at 15—10.

Winston began to kill the ball recklessly in the third session, and his forcing tactics were temporarily effective, besides producing the fastest squash of the entire match. They hammered the ball through thirteen spectacular hands, and it was Winston's game by the same score as he had lost the preceding one.

The fourth looked like a repetition of this success, for Winston led again up to 10—5. Then a fine run of four put Hyde almost on even terms and he recaptured the lead in the next hand. At 14—13 the game ball was called, but Hyde hit out, and gave Winston a chance to set the game for three extra points. Hyde got two of these in one hand, on placement and a tell-tale, but gave his rival another tally by hitting the metal himself. The end came when Winston made a wild shot, which struck the floor before banging into the front wall, and the title and trophy reached a decision at 17—15.

Captures Club Squash Championship —Defeats Wainwright.

Auguste J. Cordier, the national amateur squash tennis champion, yesterday proved himself the best man in the Yale Club beyond any question when he defeated Stuyvesant Wainwright in the final round of the club tournament in straight games scored 17—15, 15—11, 15—7. The loser put up a surprisingly good fight against the titleholder, particularly as he has until now been rated as a Class B player.

Wainwright hit just about as hard as Cordier himself, and lost only through a lack of steadiness in the pinches. His gameness in coming from behind with the score mounting against him won the applause of the gallery more than once, particularly in the opening session, when Cordier led at 14—9, with only one point needed for the game. Wainwright held his opponent scoreless for three hands, while he himself managed to tie up the points and force extra hands at 14—all. Cordier used all the squash he knew to make sure of the game at 17—15.

In the second game also Wainwright trailed at 3—7, only to tie it up again with a sensational run of four aces. After Cordier had reached 15—11, Wainwright spurted again, and almost caught up with a run of three. But a pair of tallies finished the argument in the champion's favor at 15—11.

Wainwright enjoyed a brief lead in the final game, making a three in his third hand in, and duplicating it in his next, for an advantage of 5—3. Cordier then caught and passed his rival, but Wainwright tied the points for the last time at 7—all. From here to the finish, however, he seemed to lose his eye for the ball, and the remaining tallies were scored chiefly on his errors. Cordier held him at 7, while a single, a three and a four gave him the match in straight games.

The summaries and score by points follow:

MRS. HURD MEDALIST IN WOMEN'S TOURNEY

GOOD SCORES ARE MADE

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 23.—A record-breaking field of eighty-eight contestants took part in the qualifying round of the women's North and South championship tournament at Pinehurst today under ideal weather conditions, and turned in the best scores on the average that have ever been made in this event.

Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd of Pittsburgh, former national Canadian and English champion, led the field by a margin of four strokes, and won the qualifying medal with a remarkably fine round of 39, 36—84, and was followed by Mrs. C. B. Hollingsworth of Greensburg, Pa., who went around in 44, 44—88. Miss Glenna H. Collette of Providence, a 17-year-old girl, who qualified in the last national tournament, went out in 40 and took third honors with a card of 40, 48—88. Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow of Philadelphia, who is defending her title, and Mrs. W. A. Gavin of New York, tied for fourth place at 91, and were followed at 92 by Miss Elaine Rosenthal of Chicago. Miss Rosenthal took 49 to go out, but came home in 43, the best figure of the day for the last nine holes.

Plays Sensational Golf.

Miss Eleanor T. Chandler of Philadelphia had trouble with her tee shots throughout the round, but qualified comfortably for the first sixteen with a round of 51 and 48—99. Mrs. Hurd and Miss Collette played the most sensational golf of the day. The famous Pittsburgh player disposed of her first six holes on the championship course in 24 strokes, or a stroke under par. She lost 2 strokes on the long seventh hole and took fours on the short eighth and ninth, finishing up the first half of the round in 39, or 3 strokes above the par figures. Coming in she did not do quite so well, but came home in 45, including a 5 on the short seventeenth, where she trapped her drive.

Miss Collette played the last five holes of the outward journey in 19, or par. She took a 6 on the long seventh hole, but evened things up by a brilliant 2 at the eighth. The young Providence player went out in 40, or 1 stroke more than Mrs. Hurd's sensational first nine holes, and the 40 included three holes on which she rammed the cup.

Mrs. Hurd's card:

Out	5	4	4	3	5	3	7	4	4—39
In	6	5	5	6	3	4	5	5	5—45—84

Qualify for Match Play.

A championship sixteen and seven eights qualified for match play. Mrs. Hurd and Miss Chandler were drawn for the top of the upper match play bracket tonight, and assuming that the medallist wins tomorrow's first round match she will apparently encounter relatively little difficulty in coming through to the final.

Four of the strongest players in the championship sixteen, Mrs. Barlow, Miss Rosenthal, Miss Collette and Mrs. Gavin were drawn for the lower bracket. The drawings for the match play resulted in the following line-up:

Upper bracket, Mrs. Hurd and Miss Chandler; Mrs. Hollingsworth and Mrs. E. E. Harwood; Mrs. Myra Helmer Pritchard and Mrs. J. D. Armstrong; Mrs. Donald Parson and Mrs. John D. Chapman.

Lower bracket: Mrs. Barlow and Mrs. Frank S. Danforth; Miss Rosenthal and Miss Kate Bomann; Miss Collette and Mrs. Ralph Summer; Mrs. Gavin and Mrs. J. R. Price.

First Sixteen—Mrs. J. V. Hurd, Westmoreland, 39, 45—84; Mrs. C. B. Hollingsworth, Greensburg, 44, 44—88; Miss Glenna H. Collette, Metacomet, 40, 48—88; Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow, Merion, 44, 47—91; Mrs. W. L. Gavin, South Shore, 46, 45—91; Miss Elaine Rosenthal, Ravialoe, 49, 43—92; Mrs. J. D. Chapman, Greenwich, 46, 48—94; Mrs. E. E. MANY GOLF CLUBS LISTED.

Tardiness in Making Reports Likely to Delay Handicaps.

So many clubs have failed to make their reports to A. W. Pogson, Chairman of the Metropolitan Golf Association, that it now appears impossible to publish the 1920 handicap list by April 1, as has been the custom. For the first time this year those who desire to enter for the M. G. A championship at Apawamis in June must have a rating on the 1920 handicap list. A resolution to this effect was passed by the delegates at the last annual meeting of the association. It therefore behooves the members of the delinquent clubs to stir up their committeemen and see that the missing reports are sent in as soon as possible, otherwise many prominent players will find their names omitted from the list, which closes this week.

The delinquent clubs are the following: Apawamis Club, Beacon Hill Club, Bedford Golf and Tennis Club, Brooklyn-Forest Park Golf Club, Colonia Country Club, Country Club of Glen Ridge, Crescent Athletic Club of Brooklyn, Deal Golf Club, Essex Fells Country Club, Flushing Country Club, Forest Hills Field Club, Hollywood Golf Club, Huntington Country Club, Lido Golf Club, Laidstone Club, Marine and Field Club, Mount Kisco Golf Club, North Shore Country Club, Norwood Golf Club, Oak Ridge Golf Club, Ocean Country Club, Port Chester Country Club, Quaker Ridge Golf Club, Rockland Country Club, St. George Golf and Country Club, Scottish-American Golf Club, South Shore Field Club, Spring Lake Golf and Country Club, Suffolk Country Club, White Beeches Golf and Country Club, Weedmere Club.

The members of the Handicap Committee for 1920 are as follows: Charles W. O'Connor, Chairman, Essex County Country Club; A. F. Kammer, Baltusrol Golf Club; John E. Kelly, Deal Golf Club; Anson F. Robinson, Ardsley Club, and Theodore Cassabeer, the Oakmont Golf Club.

Sixty Women Athletes Take Part in Road Run in France

PARIS, March 23.—The growing interest of women in athletics was exemplified yesterday by sixty runners taking part in a race at Antony, Department of the Seine. The distance was about two and one-eighth miles, and the winner covered the distance in 16 minutes 47 seconds. Marcel Guillemot, the French long-distance runner, yesterday confirmed his right to represent France in the Olympic games by winning the French national run of about ten miles, making the distance in 1 hour 1 minute and 41 seconds. By his victory Guillemot now becomes the cross-country champion both of France and Great Britain.

MORIARITY GAINS IN POOL TOURNEY

Joseph Moriarity climbed into a contending position for the national pocket billiard championship of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players at the New York Athletic Club yesterday afternoon and last evening when he won two matches. In the afternoon he defeated Earl Patterson by a score of 125 to 120, and in the evening he took the measure of Charles E. Shongood, Jr., 125 to 91. In the first of the afternoon games Patterson won from Shongood by 125 to 84.

In winning both of his matches Moriarity showed excellent form. Shongood did not give him much of a battle, but Patterson carried the Chicagoan along at a fast clip and it was a toss-up as to who would win until Moriarity pocketed his final ball. When Patterson pocketed 12 balls in his eighteenth frame it looked very much as if he intended to overhaul his fast-traveling rival and pose him out in a Garrison finish, but he just fell short.

By winning both games Moriarity tied Gus Gardner for second place in the standing. Each of these players has won five games and lost one. Each has one more match to play. J. Howard Shoemaker, the playing through champion, still holds the undisputed lead, but he has competed in only two games, both of which he has won. He still has five matches to play.

The first game on yesterday's schedule brought Earl Patterson, the champion of the Illinois Athletic Club, into action against Charles E. Shongood, Jr. Patterson was in stroke and he stepped out in front early in the game. Thereafter, it was merely a question of by how much he would win. Shongood was not able to give him much of a brush. The balls rolled badly for Shongood and, as a result, he frequently found himself in trouble. Patterson, on the other hand, had much better control of the cue ball and was able to keep out of trouble. This, plus his ability to knock off the long difficult cut shots, enabled him to breeze through to a fairly easy victory.

In the second match Patterson encountered his rival from the Windy City, Joseph Moriarity. This was a real battle. The match proved to be one of the most interesting played in the tournament. Moriarity got away winging, but faltered for a time after the third frame and Patterson came to the fore with a rush. Then Moriarity came back and showed his ability to make good in a pinch. During this match it was largely a question of which of the rivals left the openings. Both were prompt to take advantage of opportunities.

The final game, played in the evening between Moriarity and Shongood, resulted in a decisive and comparatively easy victory for the former. Moriarity was at the top of his game and forced the issue. He had his bad frames, but his good ones were so good that he eventually won with thirty-four points to spare.

Henry Frantzen and Chris Maxwell engaged in a battle royal with cues at Joe Thum's Academy last night in the three-cushion tournament for the national championship of the American Amateur Billiard Association. Frantzen finally won by a score of 50 to 46, but it took him 110 innings to turn the trick. The result was in doubt until the final point had been scored.

Maxwell got off to a flying start and led for a good part of the journey. At twenty points, however, Frantzen caught him and then forged into the lead. He was never afterward headed, although Maxwell always hovered within striking distance.

G. Sutton—10 51 76 140 7. Total, 234; average, 56 4-5; high run, 140.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 23.—The State Racing Commission bill, which passed the House last night, has now to go to the Senate, and if there is no fighting in that body it may reach the Governor next week. But there is talk of more amendments being offered, particularly one to cut down further the number of days of racing on one-mile tracks, which the Burke bill originally fixed at 112 and which the House reduced to 100, not including the 10 days given by Hagerstown, which heretofore has had only the 5 days allowed a county fair.

There are several other race track bills pending. The Senate has passed and sent to the House a Racing Commission bill for Anne Arundle County, with a daily tax of $500 on the Laurel track. This is now in the hands of the Anne Arundle delegation, where there is talk of offering an amendment to strike out the Racing Commission named in the bill and substitute the Board of County Commissioners of Anne Arundle. The measure is generally criticised here as one under which many abuses of the race track betting privileges might occur. Another measure, imposing a tax of $2,500 a day on the Havre de Grace track, has been passed by the House and sent to the Senate.

STARTS SUIT FOR JOCKEY.

Dal Hawkins Claims Right to Services of James Judge.

Alleging that a contract between James Butler, owner of the Empire City race track, and the Jockey Club of America, and James Judge, a jockey, had never been signed by the latter, Dal Hawkins, the turfman, started injunction proceedings yesterday in the Supreme Court at White Plains to restrain Butler and the Jockey Club from taking the jockey away from his present employment with Hawkins.

The jockey claims that a paper which he signed, and which he did not bother to read, was a small one, whereas the contract shown him by Butler recently, and which Butler asserts was signed by Judge, was a mere voluminous one. Judge was formerly in Butler's employ, but was discharged last Fall, going then to the New Orleans races for Hawkins.

LOW IN BILLIARD FINAL.

Defeats Worcester in 18.2 Balkline Tourney for Poggenberg Cup.

Defeating Charley Worcester in the annual 18.2 balkline billiard tournament for the J. F. Poggenberg Cup, John Low qualified in Section C as one of the finalists for the trophy. Low and J. M. Shea will enter the finals from this section. Low defeated Worcester by a score of 115 to 96. Both are Class C players and played on even terms. In the other match played at the National Research Academy in Brooklyn last night Edgar Appleby, a Class A player playing for 250 points, defeated Frank W. Boyd, a Class C player playing for 115 points, by a score of 250 to 103.

Edgar Appleby has played some excellent games in this tournament, but last night he was at his best. Heretofore he has found the handicaps a little too steep, but against Boyd he was in excellent stroke and he cued in true championship form. He averaged 3 16-29 and made high runs of 43, 38 and 24. The match between Low and Worcester was pretty much of a nip and tuck tussle almost throughout. Both players were evenly matched and until the closing inning it was a toss-up.

The scores by innings:

BETHLEHEM, Pa., March 23.—That the Bethlehem Steel soccer team will tour South America this Summer became known today upon the return of one of the club representatives from New York, where he was in conference with Ambassador Morgan. It is planned to have the team leave here the latter part of June and close the tour in Brazil, where an all-star team, the one to represent that country in the Olympic games at Antwerp, will be pitted against the Bethlehem squad. William Sheridan, manager of the Bethlehem team, was selected to act as trainer for the team to represent America in the Olympics, but will confine himself to training the Bethlehem steel workers principally.

RANGE RECORD IS SET BY COLUMBIA

Shooting in the sixth of the ten matches for the intercollegiate championship, the Columbia rifle team yesterday surpassed its previous record for the season by shattering 980 targets out of 1,000. The new mark is five points better than the score made in the fourth title match, when the Blue and White's final tally was 975.

Excellent marksmanship by J. R. Twiss, manager of the team, and E. N. Smith, a freshman, was responsible for the new record. Twiss hit the mark 199 times in 200 tries, and Smith was only one behind him. The latter has now made scores of 199 and 198 in his only two matches with the Varsity, and both he and Twiss have come within one point of the perfect score record made in 1917 by W. G. Fogg.

At the end of the third intercollegiate match Columbia was third in the standing, according to word received yesterday from Brig. Gen. Phillips, Recorder of the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice, which is in charge of the championships. The letter from General Phillips failed to state which colleges were first and second. Since the third match, Columbia has established both of its high marks for the season.

GREAT LIST FOR OARSMEN.

Memorial Day Regatta Will Include Fourteen Races.

Announcement of the elaborate schedule of events adopted for the Memorial Day regatta of the New York Rowing Association was given out yesterday, following a meeting of the officers and stewards of the association at the New York Athletic Club. There will be fourteen events on the program, the longest in the history of the association, and, according to prospects outlined before the officers and stewards, the competitions in every event will be of the keenest.

A new feature of the regatta will be the race for high school crews for which the Lone Star Boat Club has presented a special trophy in memory of Samuel A. Cramer, who devoted many years to the development of schoolboy oarsmen and who was vice-president and captain of the Lone Star Club.

The races are to start at 1:30 in the afternoon of Memorial Day and are to be one mile straightaway. To obviate the criticism frequently heard in the past that too many crews have been entered in some of the races, it has been decided that, if there be more than five entries in any one of the races, they shall be run in heats, the heats to be held in the forenoon of Memorial Day.

AMERICANS BEATEN IN HOCKEY MATCH

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, March 23.—The Winnipeg hockey team, champions of Canada, turned the tables on the All-American Olympic team tonight, when the Canadians won by a score of 3 goals to 2 in a game that was keenly contested from start to finish.

Geran, the Boston boy, was first to score after eleven minutes of play, when he and Joe McCormick went down the length of the ice, passing and repassing the puck. About twenty feet from the net Geran took the disc from his teammate and shot hard and true into the net. This stirred the Canadians into some fast skating, and O'Connell soon tied the score with a pretty shot from the right side of the rink after Gibson had taken the rubber from behind his own net and shot down the ice like a streak and passed to O'Connell at the right time.

A little while before the whistle ended the first period Gibson made a pretty play, when he took the disc through the whole American Olymic team and shot a goal after drawing Bonney away from the net about twenty-five feet from the goal. This gave the Canadians the edge, 2 to 1, at the end of the first period.

The second period was productive of fine work on the part of the defense men on each side, and while there were numerous shots at the net by the skaters of both teams they were unable to net the puck and there was no scoring in the period.

When the teams took the ice for the last period several substitutions were made, especially by Captain McCormick, in an effort to at last even up on the score and maybe win out in an extra period. Drury was intrusted with the job of tieing the score several times after the forward men had dribbled the puck down the ice, but Topper was on the job and shot off the bullet-like smashes of the local star, and at the same time was able to prevent Joe McCormick from getting in some of his long shots from the side of the rink. However, Drury finally managed to even up the score with a pretty shot from the left side of the rink and there were only a few minutes of play remaining.

The Winnipegs had been so penalized that they had just three men on the ice for the last four minutes of play. They were undaunted, however, and Gibson, Asselstine and O'Connell simply played the Americans off their feet. Gibson finally shooting the puck into the net scoring the goal needed to win the game. The same teams play again on Thursday night.

The lineup:

Bonney	G.	Topper
Fitzgerald	P.	Guilbault
Cohen	C. P.	Button
J. McCormick	C.	Asselstine
Geran	L. W.	Gibson
Drury	R. W.	O'Connell

Referee—Messrs. McGovern and Madden.

COLUMBIA CUBS WIN.

Defeat Erasmus Hall H. S. Swimmers by Single Point, 28 to 27.

Although crippled by the loss of several star performers, the Columbia freshmen swimming team triumphed over Erasmus Hall High School by the narrow margin of one point in the Morningside Heights tank yesterday afternoon. The score was 28 to 27 in favor of the home swimmers.

The loss of the 200-yard relay was a body blow to the Erasmus water men, who had won four firsts up to that time, while the freshmen were amassing only one first, four seconds and two thirds. By winning the relay, the home team captured the meet by one point. Brodil, Scofield, Rothschild and Raymond composed the winning relay team, and the time for the distance was 1:57. The freshmen's only other first was in the 220-yard swim, which Hirsch took in the time of 3:16.

200-Yard Relay—Won by the freshmen (Brodil, Scofield, Rothschild and Raymond); Erasmus Hall H. S. (Delmarle, Gardner, Rossetti and McMullen), second. Time—1:57.

FAVORS HEAVY DUTY ON FOREIGN PLANES

THREATEN INDUSTRY HERE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Heavy import duties on foreign aircraft are favored by the Senate Finance Committee to protect the American industry.

Evidence of plans of foreign aircraft dealers to unload thousands of machines in the United States and to further their sale by means of extensive advertising campaigns, including demonstrations of the aircraft, was laid before the committee by Senator New of Indiana, who strongly advocated the anti-dumping tariff.

Senator New told the committee that the American aircraft industry was "hanging on by its eyebrows." Only seventy airplanes had been built in the United States since the armistice, so small was the demand. The expected development of commercial airlines had not yet occurred, and there was practically no demand for aircraft as yet by private individuals.

British and French companies, however, were preparing to enter the American field and make it profitable. The Senator said that the British Government recently sold 10,000 air craft units, that is, 10,000 obsolete war planes, 30,000 motors and a complete replacement set of spare parts, to a British company, which planned to sell the craft anywhere in the world it could find a market, but principally in the United States.

The price at which these planes were sold by the British Government was only 10 per cent. of their cost, Senator New said, and therein lay the danger to the struggling American industry, as the foreign planes could manifestly be sold in the United States far below the price domestic manufacturers would have to charge.

Senator New also told of a contract made by French aircraft dealers with an American advertising company for an extensive selling campaign for French aircraft, obtained in much the same way and at a similarly low price from the Government as the British aircraft. He suggested an ad valorem duty of 40 per cent. or higher on the original cost of the foreign machines. This, he thought, would prove prohibitive.

The committee decided to include in a pending dyestuffs tariff bill some such provision as Senator New outlined.

BROKE PARIS CLOSING RULE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 22.—"In France laws and decrees apply to everybody, to Americans as well as to French." With these words a writer in the Intransigeant draws attention to a flagrant breach of the early closing order by the American owners of Paris dancing establishments, one of whom has just been served with a summons.

The man in question is the owner of the Washington Palace, one of the newest dancing halls in the city. Every evening the place is crowded with dancers, both French and American. When the 10 o'clock closing order came into force it was obeyed. The Washington Palace pushed its patrons into the streets and closed its doors. But after a night or two a way was found to get around the law. The Washington Palace closed its doors as before, but all the patrons as they left the place took cabs to another address. There, in another hall under the same management and with the same jazz band, they continued to dance till 2 and 3 in the morning.

The arrangement was carefully camouflaged and has been successfully carried on for a fortnight, but now it has had to stop. The procession of taxicabs from one place to the oth was too obvious to escape the attention of the police.

O'RYAN REBUKES BOASTERS.

Says Civilians Should Not Exalt Our Soldiers' Feats.

Boastfulness by Americans not in the army of the superior courage of the American soldier in the Great War was deprecated by Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan in an address last evening at a homecoming service at Calvary Methodist Episcopal Church, West 129th Street and Seventh Avenue.

General O'Ryan said that the American, British and French, as well as the soldiers of other nations, had s" shown courage and had made sacrifices, and that he had never heard any American soldier who had been through the mill claim superiority in this respect.

Referring to the discharged soldiers present, he said that a man's moral standard had much to do with making him a good soldier. Officers had frequently told him, he said, that they found men of the "Sunday school" type more dependable and better fitted to be entrusted with responsibility than others equally brave.

General O'Ryan said that the war had undoubtedly brought prohibition. "They make jokes about it," he said, "but it at least did a great deal for the army. It helped to keep our men fit."

WELSH BAN 'PUSSYFOOTISM'

CARDIFF, Wales, March 23.—70,000 persons gathered at Porth, near here, yesterday and listened to attacks by five speakers on "Pussyfootism," according to The Westminster Gazette. To the sound of the bugle a resolution was passed threatening direct action if the Government attempted to continue wartime liquor restrictions.

One of the principal speakers, Unionist candidate for Parliament for East Rhondda, said Lady Astor, who recently made an address in the House of Commons in favor of prohibition, was a "prohibition missionary."

Selwyn and Company, with the opening of their two Forty-second Street theatres next season, will broaden their producing interests considerably, and announce that they have already accepted nine plays for presentation next season.

Among these are "The Mistress of Chance," a melodrama by G. W. Albyn and C. W. Bell; "The Double Bar," by Martin Brown; "Rolo's Wild Oat," a Clare Kummer farce already played out of town, in which Roland Young will be seen here in August; "Love and Learn," a comedy by Edgar Selwyn and Vincent Lawrence; "The Voice from the Minaret," Robert Hichens's play, now running in London; an unnamed comedy by Avery Hopwood; a play for Leo Carrillo, to be produced in association with Adolph Klauber; and a play by Salisbury Field in which Margaret Lawrence will be starred.

The new Selwyn theatres, the Times Square and the Forty-second Street, will be ready early in the new season. In addition, the firm controls the Selwyn, at which they are presenting "Buddies," and the Harris, where "Wedding Bells" will end its run in another week preparatory to a transcontinental tour.

OPERAS FOR HOLY WEEK.

"Parsifal" on Good Friday and Two Russian Works.

Two Russian operas in a week, a special Good Friday "Parsifal," the appearance in new rôles of Florence Easton, Chalmers and Whitehill, and the return of both Sophie Braslau and Hipolito Lazaro for the season's final month, are announced at the Metropolitan for the days preceding Easter, ordinarily the quietest of the year except a like period just before the Christmas holidays.

The operas and casts will be: Monday, "Rigoletto," Barrientos, Braslau, Lazaro, De Luca, Mardones; Wednesday, "Manon," Farrar, Hackett, Chalmers, Whitehill; Thursday, "Eugene Onegin," Muzio, Martinelli, De Luca; Friday matinee, "Parsifal," Easton, Harrold, Whitehill, Rothier; Friday evening, "Boris," Farrar, Lazaro, Scotti; Saturday matinee, "L'Elisir d'Amore," Caruso, Barrientos, Scotti, and Saturday evening, "Boris Godunoff," Braslau, Harrold and Didur. Next Sunday's opera concert stars are Amato, Nina Morgana and Albert Spalding.

Rudolph Polk's Violin Recital.

Rudolph Polk, an American violinist, already heard here earlier in the season, gave a recital last evening in Carnegie Hall. He presented a program comprising Tartini's sonata in G minor, Saint-Saens's concerto in B minor, and a number of smaller pieces. His playing shows excellent schooling, and is more notable for this than for fire or imagination; but it is marked by dignity and seriousness. In cantabile passages there was breadth and freedom of bowing, and an almost entire absence of vibrato, which shall not be set down against him. In passages of a more brilliant kind there was sometimes uncertainty. Mr. Polk made a favorable impression as an artist of high purpose and was much applauded.

Penelope Davies in Song Recital.

Penelope Davies, a young mezzo-soprano of evident musical sympathy and graceful presence, gave a matinée at the Princess Theatre yesterday, singing unfamiliar Scandinavian songs and French versions of Russian composers. She was most successful in three love poems of Tagore, set to music by Bertha Kosman, as well as Borodine's "L'Orgueil," and such exotic airs as Tremisot's "Adoration Profane," of which the program gave some remarkable translations. C. V. Bos assisted at the piano in these songs and in others by Wagner, Grieg and Sinding, Burleigh, Christ, Lane and Rummel.

Stars to Sing for Hammerstein Fund

Luisa Tetrazzini, first of the Manhattan Opera's foreign stars, and Emma Trentini, who owed her first American success to the late Oscar Hammerstein, are among the volunteers for the Hammerstein Memorial Fund's benefit concert, for which the plans have far outgrown those originally put forward. The event has now been set for May 2, to meet the convenience of many artists, while because of the demand for a larger theatre the concert will be transferred from the Metropolitan, seating 5,500, to the Hippodrome, which with its stage thrown open to the public can accommodate about 7,000.

Edna Mampell, Contralto, Sings.

Edna Mampell, contralto, was heard by a large audience at her recital in Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon, when she gave a program of unusually tasteful selection and, within the low voice range and repertory, of much contrast and variety. Richard Hageman, as accompanist, contributed something of the qualities last named. Handel's "Lascia ch'io pianga," was one of a classic group, and Franz's "Mother, O Sing Me to Rest," led the translated Germans, with airs in French by Debussy and others, and in English by Elgar, Carpenter and Loeffler.

Frances Sonin in Children's Songs.

Frances Sonin, soprano, gave her annual recital at Aeolian Hall last evening, presenting in turn the songs of children in Japan as interpreted by Western composers, those of an earlier day in Russia sung in the original tongue, and colloquial pieces representing the American girl and boy, with changes of costume to match. Among the composers of many amusing bits were Mmes. Gaynor, Ross, Bond, Zucca, Foster and del Riego; Messrs. Crist, Norton, Warford, Hadley and Bartlett. Frances Foster assisted at the piano.

Drop Play's Thursday Matinees.

John Barrymore has cancelled the midweek matinee of "Richard III." at the Plymouth Theatre tomorrow afternoon, and will give only the regular Saturday matinee each week during the rest of his engagement. As the Thursday matinee was already sold out for this week, and practically so for several weeks to come, the management announced that tickets for these days would be exchanged for any other performance, at the option of the purchasers.

"Three Showers" at Harris April 5.

"Three Showers," a musical comedy produced by Mr. and Mrs. Coburn, will be presented at the Harris Theatre on Monday night, April 5. William Cary Duncan is the author of the book, and Creamer and Layton have written the book and lyrics. The cast will include Anna Wheaton, Walter Wilson, Vera Ross, Paul Frawley, William Winter Jefferson, Andrew J. Lawlor and others.

"The Hole in the Wall" Tomorrow.

LEGION SPEAKERS OPPOSE BONUSES

WARRIORS NOT CRAFTERS

Rear Admirals Glennon and Carr and Ex-Mayor Kline Attack Money Seekers.

Opposition to bonuses, at least for the able bodied, among returned soldiers was the main theme of speakers at the dinner and dance of the Mine Sweeper Post of the American Legion which held its first meeting last night at the Café Boulevard. The speakers were Rear Admiral Glennon, Rear Admiral C. A. Carr, Ex-Mayor Kline, the Rev. F. I. Hanscom of Lewis Avenue Congregational Church, Brooklyn, Lieutenant J. F. Wright of Admiral Glennon's staff, and Mrs. Hortense Lersner, formerly a yeoman in the Mine Sweeper Division.

Admiral Glennon said that certain members of the American Legion seemed to be trying to divert it from its original purpose into political channels for obtaining money or for other purposes. Admiral Carr, who spoke next, maintained that those in the legion who favored a bonus were really a few propagandists who did not speak for the legion as a whole.

The Rev. Dr. Hanscom, who was chaplain of the 106th Regiment during the war, said: "I contend that Americanism as shown during the war by our soldiers and sailors must not be tainted by having men who were in the service going up to the back door of Congress for a handout for doing what they could not help doing as true Americans. We have no mission to go out and put ourselves in the class of profiteers and grafters."

Ex-Mayor Kline denounced the using of the American Legion for other than patriotic motives and spoke of its duty to combat Bolshevism, "that spurious political doctrine which has its head in Prussia and rattles in Petrograd."

PERSHING PRAISES NEWSMEN

Correspondents Co-operated Well in War, Says Letter to Grasty.

BALTIMORE, March 23.—In a lecture here tonight, Charles H. Grasty of THE NEW YORK TIMES read a letter from General Pershing praising the work of American newspaper correspondents in France. The letter said:

"Almost without exception, the representatives of the American press realized the necessity of army supervision and the compensating factors of the unlimited opportunity of seeing everything at the front, which this supervision and control alone made possible.

"They subordinated their instinctive and natural desires as newspapermen for news to the obligation of intelligent co-operation with the military authorities, who of necessity were alone in position to judge when and what items could be safely transmitted.

"I can remember no occasion when a correspondent knowingly violated the trust placed in him, and I fully appreciate the valuable assistance they gave in placing before the American public matters which were considered of importance to the success of American arms. Although in the nature of things it was hard to demand of newspapermen that they comply with the censorship regulations when information which had tremendous news value had to be withheld, the American correspondents one and all co-operated with the army splendidly and played the game which helped us win the war."

Roosevelt Park Bill Reported.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., March 23.—Robert A. Smith and Henry Smith, coal operators, and John Hessler and Charles Fettinger, officials of the United Mine Workers of America, were arrested here today.

The arrests followed indictments brought by a special Federal Grand Jury at Indianapolis following an investigation of the bituminous coal industry.

The arrests this morning brought the total of miners and Indiana coal operators served with capiases charging violation of the Lever law and conspiracy under sections of the Federal criminal law to thirty-five.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 23.—David D. Terhune, a coal operator from Linton, Ind., surrendered to the United States Marshal in Indianapolis today. A bond of $10,000 was provided.

COLBY ASKS LODGE TO PUBLISH EVIDENCE

NEW SECRETARY IN OFFICE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Bainbridge Colby, whose nomination as Secretary of State was confirmed by the Senate yesterday, took the oath of office at the State Department today and immediately assumed his new duties. One of his first acts was to write to Senator Lodge, Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, asking that the testimony taken by the committee while Mr. Colby's nomination was under consideration be made public.

The consideration by the Senate and the Senate committees of nominations for office made by the President is always a secret matter, and Mr. Colby's request seeks to have an exception made in the rule.

Senator Lodge said this afternoon that he had not received Mr. Colby's letter, and that it would be impossible for him alone to pass upon the request. It would be necessary, he said, to refer the letter to the full committee.

There was much mystery over the attitude of the Committee on Foreign Relations concerning the nomination of Mr. Colby. The committee delayed action and then began calling witnesses, among them Brigadier General Marlborough Churchill, Chief of the Military Intelligence Service of the Army, who brought a batch of confidential papers and furnished the names of some witnesses. It was understood that the committee wanted information from General Churchill concerning a man formerly employed in Mr. Colby's law office in New York, who was said to have been connected with the United States Shipping Board when Mr. Colby was one of its members. The committee's action in recommending that Mr. Colby's nomination be confirmed shows that it ignored the allegations concerning him which were under investigation.

Following is the letter sent by Mr. Colby to Senator Lodge:

"Dear Senator Lodge:

"Will you permit me to express to you my appreciation of the very courteous reception I had from you and the members of your committee on the occasion of my recent appearance before the committee.

"I am hopeful that a way may be found to lift the secrecy which surrounds the evidence taken by the committee on the subject of my confirmation. While reluctant to make a request that may in any degree conflict with the usual practice of the committee or anticipate its action, it would be very much appreciated by me if the whole record were given complete publicity. Cordially yours,

"Bainbridge Colby."

Secretary Colby received newspapermen today, but had nothing to say about pending official business. There was no ceremony connected with his assumption of the office of Secretary of State. Miles M. Shand, Chief of the Appointment Division of the Department, administered the oath in the presence of Frank L. Polk, Under Secretary of State. Mr. Polk will remain in the State Department for several weeks at least, and will then carry out his intention to retire from office in order to take a rest.

WASHINGTON, March 23 (Associated Press).—The hundreds of passports which have been piling up while there was no Secretary of State to sign them will now be issued more quickly than had been hoped, as the result of prearrangements made by Charles B. Welsh of the Passport Control Division. Foreseeing the jam, Mr. Welsh obtained Secretary Colby's signature and had hundreds of passports prepared with the facsimile signature ready to be issued the moment the new Secretary took office. Consequently the mass of accumulated passports began to move promptly today and it is expected there will be a minimum of inconvenience and delay to business men and tourists.

HUGHES UPHOLDS SUFFRAGE

Says State Constitutions Will Need No Amendment.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the American National Woman Suffrage Association, made public yesterday a letter from Charles E. Hughes, in which he expressed the opinion that there was no merit in the contention of the anti-suffragists that in the event of ratification of the Federal suffrage amendment, every State constitution, which contains the word "male" in describing persons entitled to suffrage, would have to be amended. It has been announced that the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage intends to use this point in attacking the constitutionality of the Federal suffrage amendment, if ratified, with the further contention that even then the Federal suffrage amendment would only permit women to vote for United States Senators and members of the House of Representatives.

"In my opinion, both these statements are erroneous," Mr. Hughes stated. "If the suffrage amendment is duly ratified so as to become a part of the Federal constitution, I am of the opinion that the amendment will be immediately self-executory and will render invalid, and therefore ineffective, any existing provision in any State constitution or statute establishing a suffrage disqualification solely upon the ground of sex."

Mr. Hughes said he believed that the provisions of the Federal Woman Suffrage Amendment would apply to all elections, and not simply to the election of Senators and Representatives in Congress.

HYLAN TALKS OF BUS SUIT.

Mayor Hylan, discussing yesterday the application for an injunction against the running of the buses, expressed confidence that the courts would not stop the operation of bus lines on thoroughfares where car service has been abandoned or where the fare rate has been increased to more than five cents.

"The manipulators of traction," said the Mayor, "are using every means possible to frustrate the efforts of the city administration to furnish the people with adequate and decent transportation. Now, just as the Department of Plant and Structure has finished the plans and specifications for the proposed new vehicles we are confronted with injunction proceedings designed to prevent the city from carrying out its bus program."

Joe E. Hedges, receiver of the New York Railways Company, said that the papers in the injunction suit which his counsel are preparing by direction of Federal Judge Mayer would be ready in a few days. He explained that the injunction proceedings instituted Monday by Edward Shafter, a taxpayer, had nothing to do with the action contemplated by his counsel.

JAZZ FOR SOLDIERS.

Two Bands Purchased for the Disabled in Two Communities.

John A. Wilbur, representing Community Service, in an interview printed in THE TIMES recently, asked the public to send any "unwanted" musical instruments to the Community Service office, at 15 East Fortieth Street. John Wiley of Ardsley-on-the-Hudson promptly sent a check for $100. The musical instruments are for ex-service men, crippled or otherwise incapacitated, who are studying under the supervision of the Federal Board for Vocational Education.

Mr. Wiley's check was spent yesterday on the tenth floor of Ditson's, in Thirty-fourth Street, with much enthusiasm and joy. The check bought two jazz bands. The Seward Park Rehabilitation Centre, at the Educational Alliance, got one of them, and the New York University School of Commerce, at Waverley Place, gets the other. Six crippled soldiers from each formed the purchasing committee, and emerged loaded with joy and the noise-making instruments necessary to the production of jazz—Mandolins, guitars, banjos, ukeleles and drums, sixteen pieces in all, were among the loot.

The boys insisted on making somewhat of a celebration of the occasion, the Seward Park aggregation photographing the New York University crowd with their musical instruments, and vice versa. Ditson's professional harpist gracefully submitted to being used "to get the focus right," and later played various "harp pieces" for the boys, when they begged for them. The ex-service men promised to return and give a concert for their friends some day.

Among those present were Mrs. Orlando Rouland, who is responsible for getting thousands of musical instruments into the hands of service men during the war; John A. Wilbur of Community Service, and Dr. E. J. Mayman, director of the Seward Park Rehabilitation Centre. There are more than 300 Federal students in each of the two establishments just endowed with jazz.

PORTER ARRAIGNED AGAIN.

Former Police Official Pleads Not Guilty to Superseding Indictment.

Augustus Drum Porter, former Third Deputy Police Commissioner, accused of neglect of duty, pleaded not guilty to a superseding indictment before Judge Malone in General Sessions yesterday. Frank Hendrick, counsel for Colonel Porter, said that in view of the fact that there were two indictments against his client, he wanted to make sure that the first one was completely quashed so that "after Colonel Porter is acquitted on the superseding indictment he cannot be tried on the original one."

Judge Malone said that the law fully protected the rights of a defendant in such cases. To this Mr. Hendrick replied: "I say my bitter experience with Assistant District Attorney Smith that has taught me a lesson. If there is an acquittal on this superseding indictment I want to make sure that my client will not have to stand trial again."

Mr. Hendrick asked for copies of the indictment and also for the papers in the case of the Adele Goodell trial which, he said, had been impounded by Mr. Smith for the Grand Jury. Mr. Hendrick asked the Court whether the District Attorney intended to try Patrolman John J. Gunson first or Colonel Porter. Judge Malone informed him he would have to confer with Mr. Smith.

Later the lawyer conferred with Mr. Smith and afterward stated that the District Attorney declined to say whether he would try Gunson or Porter first. Judge Malone denied the application for an inspection of the minutes of the Grand Jury which indicted Gunson on a charge of bribery and extortion. A similiar application in the case of Detective Thomas Dolan, indicted following a scene of disorder in the Unique restaurant, Lenox Avenue and 111th Street, also was denied.

WOULD INTERVENE IN SUIT.

Mrs. Hulen of This City Is Heard in Christian Science Case.

BOSTON, March 23.—The Supreme Court today heard arguments on the request of Mrs. Emilie B. Hulen of New York for the right to intervene in the litigation to which the directors of the Christian Science Church and the trustees of the Christian Science Publishing Society are the principal parties.

Mrs. Hulen brought the petition as one of the first members of the church. These first members were described by Charles F. Choate, Jr., her counsel, as a body which originally had certain authority and functions that were later transferred to the directors.

It was his contention that the report of the master in the suit between directors and trustees had shown that the directors had no standing, and, therefore, it had become necessary to have the first members come in to protect the rights of the church.

Many Christian Scientists from New York City and State attended the hearing in a group.

In opposition to the petition, the court heard Sherman L. Whipple, counsel for the trustees; William G. Thompson, representing John V. Dittemore, whose removal by the directors as a member of their board was held in the master's report to be illegal, and Edwin A. Krauthoff of Washington, who appeared as a first member.

ELEVEN HOURS IN CHIMNEY.

Mathias Hester, 10 years old, and his brother, Daniel, 7, of 82 Coles Street, Newark, were playing ball Monday afternoon when their ball fell on the roof of a house at 55 Newark Avenue and bounded into the chimney. The youngsters climbed to the roof, saw the ball on a ledge and climbed in after it.

They got the ball all right, but when they tried to get back they found they were wedged in tight. They called for help until they were exhausted. James Evans, a watchman at the Liberty Theatre, next door, was making his rounds at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, when he heard their cries from the roof of the theatre. He called policeman, who got a rope, by means of which the boys clambered out, tired and worn after their eleven hours' imprisonment, but otherwise unharmed.

Suicide Believed New York Man.

News reached the office of the Missing Persons Bureau yesterday that a man believed to have been Frank Albert Manley of this city committed suicide in the pine woods near Athens, Greece, on Dec. 23 last by shooting himself with a revolver. Beside his body was found fragments of paper which, when pieced together, bore his name, the name of a steamship, "Ireland," and also Twenty-second Street, but no house number was given. The information, according to Acting Captain John Ayers, will be forwarded to the State Department.

Apprenticeship Needed.

In the opinion of a representative of a large French manufacturer great benefits would follow the introduction in manufacturing plants of this country of more rigid apprenticeship rules. Much of the superiority attributed to the French, particularly along artistic lines, he said, can be traced to the training which the manufacturers in that country require of their employes. In some of the large plants the men must spend five and six years learning their craft before they are considered qualified for the work. The result is that the quality of goods turned out by these workmen is of the highest.

Want Pastors' Lowest Pay $1,500.

The Newark Methodist Conference recommended to the General Conference yesterday that the minimum salary for ministers in its district be $1,500 a year. It was suggested that where churches refused to pay the $1,500 the District Superintendents could refuse to assign pastors.

BRUSH SISTERS HELD INSANE BY BOARD

Hospital Commission Decides Commitment of Two Aged Women Was Legal.

COURT RELEASE ISSUED

Yonkers Attorney Says He Will Fight Attempt to Put Clients Back in Asylum.

The Misses Phoebe and Ada Brush, aged 68 and 56, respectively, the sisters who were released by Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins on Thursday from the Kings Park State Hospital, after they had spent nearly ten years in the asylum on a commitment alleged to be illegal, are hopeless paranoiacs, according to findings of the State Hospital Commission, which held an inquiry into the case yesterday at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

In the opinion of Dr. Charles W. Pilgrim, the Chairman, and Dr. Fred A. Higgins, a member of the commission, the women were "both legally and properly committed." The investigation, according to the commission, showed that the commitment was not faulty, and that every requirement of the law was complied with, and Dr. William C. Garvin, Superintendent of the hospital, was upheld for his view that the sisters were incurably insane. Dr. Andrew D. Morgan, the third member of the commission, was absent because of illness.

A final order by Justice Tompkins was filed at White Plains yesterday releasing the two sisters in the custody of Mrs. Florence Ferguson, of East View, who became interested in them while she was a nurse at the hospital and, believing them sane, engaged a lawyer in their behalf. The order stipulates the sisters must live in Westchester County with Florence Ferguson, that she provide them with a suitable home and that they should not go to Huntington, L. I. The two women had already been released, the order being a legal formality.

Clarence Alexander of Yonkers, counsel for the women, when told last night of the result of the State Hospital Commissioner's inquiry, said: "Those doctors don't know the difference between paranoia and greene beese. They showed that at the hearing. There is still a great deal to be said about the incarceration of those old ladies. They are disposed to drop the matter, but if the asylum people persist, I, as a lawyer, will take the matter a great deal further than it has gone. I should like to see the form of the commitment which the commission has decided was legal." Mr. Alexander declared that in communicating with them from the hospital the sisters had written on the back of the stamps in indelible ink.

The witnesses before the commission were Dr. Garvin, Deputy Attorney General Amsell of the New York City Bureau, Dr. Walter G. Ryon, Superintendent of the Hudson River State Hospital at Poughkeepsie, and Dr. Vandemark, the commission's medical inspector. Both of the latter physicians examined the two sisters while they were in the Kings Park State Hospital.

MRS. C. D. GIBSON SAILS.

The Cunarder Mauretania sailed at 5:30 P. M. yesterday with 470 first, 425 second and 700 third class passengers for Cherbourg and Southampton. One of the cabin passengers was Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, who is going to visit her sister, Lady Astor, in London. Mrs. Gibson is a Director of the National Symphony Orchestra, and intends to visit Amsterdam to hear the orchestra of that city.

Morris Gest, theatrical producer, sailed on the liner, to go to Constantinople and Odessa via London. His parents are still detained at the Russian port on the Black Sea, and Mr. Gest is going to try to bring them with him to New York.

The American liner New York arrived with 518 cabin passengers, including several booked by the Holland-America Line, who had been detained in Rotterdam b ythe dock strike. One of the passengers was Lord Pelham Clinton, who comes here on a visit. Another passenger was Miss Evelyn Beresford, an English actress, who comes to act in moving pictures.

FIND ARTIST IN CREEK.

Le Roy Barnett, an artist, who lived at 196 Washington Park, Brooklyn, and had a studio at 333 Fourth Avenue, Manhattan, was found dead yesterday in Little Neck Creek, Little Neck, Queens, his identification being made through articles in a valise nearby. Barnett had been ill with grip and had been delirious.

A member of his family said last night that Barnett did not commit suicide, but she refused further details. He exhibited with the independent artists at their exhibition at the Grand Central Palace in 1917, and studied about ten years ago under Robert Henri at the New York School of Art.

Gray Goods Prices Firm.

Gray goods prices continued steady to higher in this market yesterday. Buyers seemed willing enough to bid for some of the lower count printcloths, but there was a noticeable restriction of demand reported for the higher-count cloths of this construction. March sales of 39-inch 72-76s and 68-72s were reported at 28½ and 26 cents, respectively, but there was no apparent disposition to buy contract deliveries of those numbers. Spot lots of 35½-inch 60-65s appeared to be very difficult to get, bids of 23 cents for goods in the North having failed to bring them out. Sellers were firm in their demands for 24½ cents for nearby 35½-inch 64-60s, with buyers none too keen to pay that figure. They bought July-September deliveries of 64-60s, however, at 22½ cents. Spot business was done on 5 and 5.50-yard sheetings at 20 and 19 cents, respectively, with May-July shipments of the same goods traded in at 19½ and 17½ cents.

Germans Are Spoiling the Game.

Recent information from France tells of the reappearance of German cutlery in that country, and thereby hangs a tale. For a long time there has been a growing appreciation of the American safety razors in France. As is quite well known, the real profit in the safety razor business comes from the sale of the blades, and just here is where the Germans have started to spoil things. They are offering in the French market German-made blades that fit American-made razors, and are offering them at prices said to be much below those which the American cutlers have to ask for their wares. The Germans are helped in their quest for this business by the low exchange rate of the Mark, and a recent transaction in German blades in France is said to have been figured in thousands of dosens.

Bidding for Executives Also.

That the bidding for one another's employes on the part of the retail dry goods stores throughout the country, which was done when the labor shortage was greatest, was not confined to sales help is now coming to light. Buyers and other executives were also tempted away in many instances. For that matter, they still are, particularly by stores which do not make a practice of filling vacancies by promotion from their own ranks. A peculiar phase of the situation, it was said yesterday, is that most of the buyers who have been tempted into accepting new positions are willing to take a smaller percentage of the department's profits than heretofore as part of their remuneration. However, the percentage which these men insist on getting now is of the gross profit, rather than the net.

REFUSES TO GIVE UP NEGRO.

Kansas Governor Angers Arkansas Executive by Decision.

TOPEKA, Kan., March 23.—The extradition petition of Arkansas for the return of Robert Hill, negro, alleged leader in the Elaine insurrection last Fall, was refused by Governor H. J. Allen this morning. The long hearing was concluded shortly after midnight last night. Hill immediately was arrested by a United States Deputy Marshal on a charge of impersonating a United States officer in Arkansas.

Hill's removal to Little Rock now awaits formal order of extradition from United States Judge Pollock of the Kansas district.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 23.—Governor C. H. Brough when informed of Governor Allen's refusal to grant the extradition petition for Robert Hill said that he "felt outraged."

"In passing on an extradition case a Governor is not called upon to decide the guilt or innocence of the man indicted," he added, "but merely to decide whether he had been legally indicted. If Governor Allen attempted to decide Hill's innocence or guilt he could not have found him innocent in view of the absolute proof which was presented by Attorney General J. D. Arbuckle of Arkansas at the hearing."

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Monday—7 per cent. for the best names.
The quotations are for six month's paper.

French Glass Process.

In an exhibition of French manufactures being held at the Bush Terminal Sales Building there is included a line of vases and art lamps embodying what is a comparatively new process of coloring. Instead of merely painting the design on the object without regard to the number of colors, there is a separate layer of glass for each color. The process is comparable to the batik idea applied to glass, one color being put in at a time. The effect is one of depth that the ordinary colored glass and pottery does not produce.

Moving Out Cheap Goods.

While manufacturers in the ready to wear lines are not entirely in sympathy with the policy of continued sales now so popular in retail circles, one great advantage is seen in it. While production was at its low ebb and deliveries far short of the demand, the manufacturers did not take their accustomed care to insure the usual standards of quality. The result, they admit in many cases, was the production of cheap and inferior goods, with which the market became more or less glutted. If the sales now being held eliminate such merchandise the situation, they say, will be much improved for the stores as well as for them.

Rubber Demand Could Improve.

Although this is the time of the year when something ought to be doing, a dearth of manufacturers' inquiries is reported from the local market for crude rubber. There is a certain amount of dealers' business going on, but it is not large enough to give the market even a semblance of activity. Prices are steady on the basis of 43 cents a pound, spot, for first latex and smoked sheets, with forward deliveries to June held at 49 cents for both varieties. In the Brazilian rubbers up-river fine was quoted at 43 cents for spot and shipment to June, with similar lots of up-river coarse and upper Caucho ball held at 32 and 33 cents, respectively.

Easier to Get Machinery.

Although the leading manufacturers of silk machinery report being sold up for some time into the future, it is understood that needed machines are somewhat easier to get than they were a couple of months ago. At that time, unheard of prices were being asked for looms and other factory devices and the market seemed to be suffering from the same price hysteria that characterized the trade in silks. At present, some deliveries that were not promised for months in the future are being made, it is understood, though it is chiefly in the dealers' branch that conditions have become easier. Offerings will continue heavier from smaller manufacturers who are quitting the business.

An Economical Style.

Much interest has been aroused among clothiers over the return of the black coat worn with separate trousers as featured in the styles launched for Spring and Summer by an association of custom tailors. From the standpoint of the manufacturers, this style ought to find a good response from the economically inclined as it would once more establish separate trousers on a basis of popularity they have not enjoyed for years. As brought out by the custom tailors, the revival of the old style is intended merely for use in Summer when the coat is combined with lightweight trousers of shantung silk, mohairs, &c. In the fashion, it was explained, might be applied to year-round wear.

Are Hypothecating Accounts.

One effect of the tightening of money, it was said here yesterday, has been to increase the number of accounts receivable that are being hypothecated. This action, it was said, was being resorted to a great deal more by the smaller manufacturers and wholesalers than by the larger ones, although there is evidence that the latter are a bit more hard pushed for ready cash than they care to admit. Signs of an increasing amount of hypothecation are not very pleasing to the credit man, after a prolonged period during which everybody had plenty of money with which to pay bills, especially when accounts are cashed under the so-called non-notification system. This system, it is contended, makes the work of granting credit to certain types of buyers rather risky.

ARNSTEIN COUNSEL REBUKED IN COURT

CALLS S. S. MYERS 'SOLLY'

Clashes with U. S. Commissioner—Offers to Produce Client If Bail Is Made Available.

Eugene F. McGee, counsel for "Nicky" Arnstein, was an interesting witness before United States Commissioner Gilchrist at the resumption of his examination yesterday in the Federal Building in the bankruptcy proceedings instituted by the National Surety Company, which is an outgrowth of "Nicky's" alleged connection with thefts of securities in the financial district. Several times during his examination Mr. McGee became involved in verbal clashes with Commissioner Gilchrist when he refused to answer questions propounded by Saul S. Myers, counsel for the surety company, whom he familiarly addressed as "Solly." On each occasion he demanded in vain that the matter be settled by Judge Augustus N. Hand.

While his examination did not reveal the whereabouts of "Nicky," McGee said that if Mr. Myers or Assistant District Attorney John T. Dooling would arrange to have "Nicky" released on small bail, or would induce some surety company to offer bail in the amount desired by District Attorney Swann, he would produce the fugitive in seventy-two hours.

"How would you do that?" asked Myers.

"Oh, I'd just put a personal in a newspaper, and when 'Nick' saw that he'd come right back to town," replied the witness.

"Then he is seventy-two hours from this city," advanced Myers.

"What do you mean," rejoined the witness in a jolly mood, "by airplane or railroad?"

McGee revealed that Arnstein had given him the keys to deposit boxes in the Pacific Bank and the Ansonia Bank held in the name of Arnstein's wife, Fannie Brice, the actress, and which she testified at a previous hearing in the bankruptcy proceeding she had lost.

"Where are those keys now?" inquired Myers.

McGee fumbled in the pockets of his coat and trousers, and then said: "I don't know; they're gone."

Soon after he took the witness chair, McGee started to light a cigarette. Commissioner Gilchrist reminded him he was in the witness stand and that smoking was not permitted. "I just love to smoke, Mr. Commissioner," replied McGee, as he pleaded vainly to be permitted to smoke. When he started to light the cigarette later, Commissioner Gilchrist rebuked him.

"How did you get in touch with Arnstein before you went to Pittsburgh to see him with the detectives?" asked Myers.

Commissioner Gilchrist wanted to know how he came to go to Pittsburgh, but McGee replied: "Listen, Mr. Commissioner, I object to your comments."

"You are a witness here," interjected Commissioner Gilchrist, "and you have got to behave yourself."

Then McGee explained that before he met Arnstein in the Hotel Winton, Cleveland, on Feb. 23, he intended to go to the Iroquois Hotel, Buffalo, "and expected some one to come there and see me. I didn't know who."

"Did you intend to register under your own name?" asked Myers.

"Absolutely," replied McGee. He said he received word over the telephone from a mysterious source while he was in the Braddock Hotel in Harlem that he was to meet Arnstein in the Winton Hotel in Cleveland, and in Buffalo. "When I got to Cleveland," he continued, "I called up Ed Strong, a lawyer, and I found Arnstein could be found at the Winton Hotel at a certain time."

Myers asked him who told him to go to the Winton Hotel in Cleveland, instead of the hotel in Buffalo, and McGee said somebody "switched the plan."

"Don't you know who switched the plan?" persisted Myers.

"Absolutely no," replied the witness.

McGee related part of the conversation he had with Arnstein in the Winton Hotel. "'Nick' said to me," continued the witness, "'I've been greatly exalted in this world. They've put me down as a master mind.' I said: 'Well, aren't you?' and he said: 'No. That's the biggest joke in the world. Myers must be crazy. I never received a bond or a nickel.'"

McGee said "Nicky" told him he won $92,000 in a crap game from a Wall Street broker two nights preceding his disappearance from the city on Feb. 12 last, and how he lost the money again to the same broker. "Well, after poor 'Nick' got up to $92,000, and then got down to nothing again, the next day he won $18,000 from that fellow, which you found in those banks."

McGee said he had tried to get eight different surety companies to go on Arnstein's bail but that each of them refused.

"How were you employed in the case of David W. Sullivan?" asked Myers.

"Well, they wanted the best lawyer in town, and they got my partner, William J. Fallon."

Myers said to Commissioner Gilchrist: "It is contended that Arnstein and 'Nick' Cohen turned stolen securities over to Sullivan & Co."

McGee broke in with the statement that Sullivan, Bowles and Easterday, all of whom are alleged by Assistant District Attorney Dooling to have been connected with Sullivan & Co., told him (McGee) that they never knew "Nicky" Arnstein.

"Were the detectives with you all the time you were in Pittsburgh?" asked Myers.

"The detectives were with me in spirit, Solly, if not in body," replied the witness with a laugh. "You know how it is, Solly," continued McGee, leaning over toward his examiner, "they didn't know enough to do what you or I would have done in such a case."

Myers turned to Commissioner Gilchrist and said he believed there was no use trying to question the witness any further. He announced that if the circumstances warranted it he would call him later as a witness. The examination of other witnesses will take place in a few days, Myers said.

ROCKEFELLER WARNS NEIGHBORS OF BEARS

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., March 23.—John D. Rockefeller, through his superintendent, has issued warning to all persons traveling near the Pocantico Lake to beware of two black bears that were seen roaming in that vicinity yesterday by one of his workmen. The bears have been in Mr. Rockefeller's poultry farm looking for some of his ducks. It is presumed that these are the same bears that were seen on Mrs. Finley J. Shepard's estate a short time ago.

Mr. Rockefeller's neighbors at Pocantico Hills are living in fear of the animals and they do not go out at night unless there are three or four in the party. Mr. Rockefeller's estate, although it is surrounded by a high wire fence on top of which is barbed wire, is not bear proof, for the animals can climb it or they can get in by climbing trees.

Mr. Rockefeller, Sr., is still in Florida, but Mr. Rockefeller, Jr., and his family have been spending week-ends at Pocantico Hills. Every guard on the estate has been ordered out to look for the bears.

WILL MAKE MOVIE FIRST

Georges Carpentier (pronounced Jorge Car-pon-tee-ay), champion heavyweight of Europe, war hero of France and the most popular boxer to visit the United States in recent years, arrived here yesterday on the French liner Savoie with his bride and his manager, François Descamps. The boxer wore a blue serge suit, with the ribbons of the Croix de Guerre and six stars, and the Medaille Militaire, which were awarded to him by France for bravery as a Sergeant in the aviation service. He was twice wounded by shrapnel.

M. Carpentier is a tall, young man, about 26 years old, clean shaven, and brushes his long hair straight back over the forehead in pompadour fashion. His step suggests speed and strength rather than the heftiness usually associated with competitors for the world's heavyweight championship.

Carpentier said he weighed 172 pounds, was 5 feet and 10 inches tall, and 42 inches around the chest. He said his reach was not longer than that of most men of his build. His hands were large but there were no scars, flat nose, bent ear or other mark to indicate that he is a professional boxer.

Eager to Meet Dempsey.

"I am eager to box Jack Dempsey," he said, "for the world's heavyweight championship as soon as the match can be arranged, either in America or in Europe. I believe I could beat him in six rounds. This opinion is based on reports I have heard that Dempsey is a rusher—and that kind of a fighter is the easiest to beat—but I have never seen him myself."

"Would you defend the title if you won it?"

"Yes. If I should beat Dempsey, as I expect to do, I will defend the title once just to prove that I won it fairly, and then retire."

"And if you should lose the match, what will you do?"

"In that case," said the French boxer, speaking earnestly and looking at his bride, who stood beside him, "I will never enter the ring again, but will retire to my farm in the country and rear chickens." He added that he was ready to meet Jack Dempsey in the ring on two months' notice, as he never trained much more than a month for a fight.

In giving six rounds as the time in which he would beat Dempsey, Carpentier allowed three times the number he predicted it would take him to beat Beckett in London.

His Speed Called Amazing.

Americans on the Savoie who had witnessed the fight and watched Carpentier in his shadow boxing and morning exercise on the ship said his speed was amazing.

Carpentier, who wore a blue serge tailor-made dress, with a brown cloth coat trimmed with sable and a blue cloth hat with a veil of the same color, does not speak English, but she became voluble in her native tongue when asked if it was true that she had begged her husband to leave the ring.

"That is not true," she said. I would not have selected boxing as a profession for my husband to follow if the choice had been left to me, but as he had made a career for himself as a fighter and it was his living, then there is nothing better for him to do than to keep to it."

"Will you witness the match between your husband and Dempsey when it takes place?"

"Non, non," Madame replied, with a slight shudder, "I will not go to see him fight for the championship, but I go to the exhibition matches." She carried in her arm a bunch of carnations given to her before leaving Paris and preserved in the cooling room on the Savoie.

Impatient with Movie Men.

Carpentier showed impatience when the moving-picture men kept requesting his wife and himself to pose. He turned to one and said:

"That is enough for today. We are tired."

He admitted he had been seasick for three days when the Savoie ran into a heavy westerly gale in the Atlantic. His bride also suffered seasickness.

Carpentier's manager, François Descamps, did not speak much English, but his interpolations at times during the conversations around him showed he understood the language pretty well, especially in regard to money.

"Our plan, first of all," the manager said, "is to do a motion picture for Robertson-Cole, which will take a month, and then go on a sparring tour for ten weeks under the management of Jack Curley. Then we shall be free entirely."

When shown a cable dispatch from Charles Cochran to THE NEW YORK TIMES from Paris on March 15 stating that Descamps had signed a new contract binding Carpentier until the end of July, 1921, and to fight only in Europe, Descamps replied, "Yes. That is correct," and passed it on to Carpentier, who read the cable message and said "Oui, oui."

Would Stage Fight in Paris.

When asked about the match with Dempsey and where it would be held, Descamps said: "If Dempsey agrees, the match will take place in Paris in December in the Pershing Stadium, which will hold 50,000 persons."

"Do you believe that the purse would be as big in Paris as it would be if the fight was staged in London?"

"Oh, yes. Thousands of Frenchmen, who are real sports, would pay big money to see Carpentier fight Dempsey, and then, too, there would be thousands of sportsmen coming over to Paris from London to see the fight, so that we should have a very big gate."

When asked if there was likelihood of Carpentier fighting Dempsey in the United States, the manager smiled and said he did not know, but if it could be arranged with Cochran he would not object, and Carpentier was ready to fight any time at sixty days' notice.

On the way to the pier the fighter, his bride and manager were besieged by reporters, photographers and moving-picture men on the upper deck, where the Captain of the Savoie had erected a space roped off, so that the progress of the other passengers who wanted to view the harbor should not be interfered with. As he lounged against the rail, Carpentier looked like anything but the champion of Europe.

The Carpentier party consisted only of the boxer, his wife and his manager. Two lightweight boxers were to have accompanied the party from Paris, but were delayed at the last moment, it was said.

Charles Ledoux, Georges Papin and Jules Lassers, his three sparring partners, will arrive by the next French liner from Havre and join Carpentier in New York. It is not decided when Carpentier will return to France, Descamps said.

Carpentier appeared interested in the Statue of Liberty, which he pointed out to his wife, and the high tower of the Woolworth building, but he got tired of the moving picture men following him around the deck and finally went below to the main dining saloon, where the Immigration Inspectors questioned him.

At the French Line pier when the Savoie arrived at 10 o'clock, there was a big crowd of Frenchmen waiting outside on Eleventh Avenue and another detachment of fight fans lined up outside the pier in such close formation that the Customs officials had difficulty in keeping order. Several well-known Americans in the boxing game got on the pier but were ordered back to the barrier by Customs officers. While an argument was in progress enthusiastic Frenchmen dashed past the barrier and embraced their famous countryman.

Received With Ovation.

As he went down the gangway Carpentier was received with loud and continued cheering by his compatriots on the pier, who were aided and abetted by the French longshoremen. When he left the pier just before noon with his bride and manager Carpentier received an ovation outside, where a big automobile was waiting with Tex Rickard to drive him to the Hotel Biltmore. Carpentier stood up in the car and thanked the crowd for its welcome. He said he was glad that he had been able to realize one of his chief boyhood ambitions, to see America, and he looked forward to spending many happy days in this country.

American fight experts who looked Carpentier over on the pier expressed their opinion that even if he lost to Dempsey through being too light the French boxer would give the champion a good fight for the title.

FIGHT THIS YEAR POSSIBLE.

Georges Carpentier, European heavyweight boxing champion, may clash with Jack Dempsey in a bout for the world's championship title during the coming Summer or early Fall. This possibility was voiced, through an interpreter, by Francois Descamps, Carpentier's manager, during a short respite from the hustle and bustle of establishing the visiting party in a commodious suite at the Biltmore last evening. The shrewd little French manager, with the faintest traces of a smile over playing about the corners of his mouth, refused to be pinned down to a definite statement on the probability of the match eventualling as an immediate outcome of Carpentier's visit, but stated without hesitation that the match will be arranged, provided circumstances permit.

Charles B. Cochran, British promoter, has a contract on Carpentier's services for a bout against Dempsey, which runs until July, 1921. This contract, an extension of a previous arrangement between the British and French boxing representatives, was signed just prior to Carpentier's departure from France on March 13. By its terms Carpentier agrees to box Dempsey in Europe for Promoter Cochran only. According to Descamps's explanation last evening, Carpentier is bound to the British promoter only in the event that Cochran secures the signature of Dempsey to a set of articles before any rival promoter. If another promoter gets Dempsey's consent to a match, and it is manifestly impossible for Cochran to secure the world's champion, Descamps is free to arrange for Carpentier accordingly. This Manager Descamps said, is provided in a clause in the contract.

Rickard Wants Fight Here.

Tex Rickard, Western fight promoter, who was closeted with Descamps and Carpentier for the greater part of the afternoon, corroborated Descamps's statement when he emerged from his conference. Rickard is openly in the field for this greatest of boxing attractions. His plan is to conduct the bout here in this city. Rickard will not act independently in this proposed venture, but will collaborate with the International Sporting Club on the proposition. Already Rickard has a promise from Dempsey that he will box his first bout in defense of the title for the business-like Texan. Rickard received this promise when Dempsey gained the title from Jess Willard.

Negotiations for the proposed match must of necessity lie dormant for the time being. The precarious situation in which Dempsey finds himself with the Federal authorities now compels this course by Promoter Rickard and Manager Descamps. Neither wants to gamble on the outcome of the present trial of Dempsey for alleged violation of the selective service law during the time this country was at war. Manager Descamps is loath to agree to any terms whatever, with the probability looming large and threateningly that the champion overpower an automatic abandonment of the proposed bout through a decision which would lodge Dempsey in jail and deprive him of all prestige as the world's heavyweight boxing champion. By the same token Promoter Rickard hesitates to tie up his money or otherwise take unnecessary risk until the case against Dempsey is settled in court. A speedy trial for the champion is expected, and at its conclusion Promoter Rickard is prepared, provided that the champion is acquitted of the charges lodged against him, to enter into negotiations for a Dempsey-Carpentier match.

Promoter Cochran is anxious to hold the bout in London or Paris. Manager Descamps favors this plan, but is not opposed to America as the scene of the proposed battle. In fact, Manager Descamps declared himself ready to enter into negotiations with Promoter Rickard immediately the clouds were lifted from Dempsey's reputation. If such a happening is to occur, Rickard has already submitted terms which Descamps has accepted, and the latter has named conditions which Rickard has declared acceptable. The situation as regards a Dempsey-Carpentier bout here, therefore, hinges completely on the outcome of the Government's case against the world's champion.

Asked to name the terms offered by Promoter Rickard, Descamps, with a broad smile on his ruddy countenance, instructed his interpreter to tell the assembled newspaper men:

Bismarck Tomb Wreaths Stolen.

COPENHAGEN, March 23.—Prince Bismarck's mausoleum at Friedrichsruhe was entered by burglars on Saturday, the thieves carrying off silver wreaths attached to the casket. Two suspected persons, dressed in field-gray uniforms, have been arrested at Büchen, fifteen miles from Friedrichsruhe, according to advices.

Strike on All Spanish Roads; Government to Run Trains

MADRID, March 23.—A general strike on the railroads of Spain went into effect at noon today. The Cabinet Ministers have called into service the railroad regiments and, with the assistance of numbers of voluntary workers from other departments, hope to be able to maintain the full schedule of mail and express trains in every direction.

In Madrid the officers of the railway companies were besieged by disappointed passengers who had hoped to depart for the provinces.

King Alfonso returned to Madrid early in the forenoon, missing the strike on the line from France by only a few hours. No disorders have been reported, but many precautions have been taken in the vicinity of the stations and tracks.

FINANCIAL DISTRICT TO SAVE DAYLIGHT

EXCHANGE DECIDES TODAY

Stores Expected to Open Earlier—Traction Companies Probably Will Follow the Crowd.

The atmosphere was cleared of a great deal of the mugginess that has enveloped the plans for daylight saving in New York City, beginning next Sunday at 2 A. M., when it was learned yesterday that the financial district would comply with the local city ordinance, regardless of what action is taken by the Legislature. Banks which were already disposed to save daylight, but were waiting to see what the New York Clearing House was going to do, were cheered by a statement from the Clearing House, based on the advice of its counsel, that it would be entirely proper for them to set the clocks ahead an hour.

The New York Stock Exchange will reach a decision today, and probably will decide for daylight saving. The traction companies will announce their intentions this morning, and it was said they would have to "follow the crowd."

There is no doubt but that shoppers will find the department and other stores opened an hour earlier in accordance with the daylight saving system. Both Altman's and Lord & Taylor said yesterday that they had not considered doing otherwise, since the State law had not been repealed, and that the city ordinance would guide them.

The confusion over the daylight saving plan in this community has been due largely to the assumption that the State law would be repealed and that New York City time would conflict with standard time observed in other communities.

The situation was cleared for the banks late yesterday, when this announcement came from the Clearing House:

"Inquiry having been made by many of our members as to the necessity of any Clearing House action with respect to the inauguration of 'Daylight Saving' on the last Sunday in March, the Clearing House referred the matter to counsel and has received the following opinion:

"'The time for the opening and closing of banking business is a matter entirely of individual volition, but, for reasons of convenience only, the banks in any given community adopt a uniform course in this respect. If the existing "Daylight Saving" law so-called of the State of New York remains in force, it should be observed by both national and State banks located within the border of the State. If the law should be repealed and the city ordinance to the same effect should continue in operation, I see no reason why the banks of the City of New York should not adapt their time to the local time established for the ordinance. In fact, I should think it would be almost essential for them to do so in order to avoid confusion. In either case, it seems to me it might be well to have public announcement made in some way to the effect that banks of the city intend to adjust their clocks accordingly.'

"In view of the above opinion, and regardless of any change in the present State law, operations at the Clearing House will be transacted according to the city time, and it is expected that all Clearing House institutions will conform to such standards."

The announcement was signed by James A. Stillman, Chairman of the Clearing House Committee, and William J. Gilpin, Manager.

At the National City Bank it had been decided already to set the clocks ahead. The officials said that only one thing stood in the way of the observation of the new time. That was the attitude of the railroads serving the commuters from New Jersey.

It was believed, however, that the New Jersey railroads would have to make provisions for these commuters, as the banks would require employes to be at work at 8 o'clock instead of 9, by Eastern standard time, and would send them home at 4 instead of 5 o'clock by standard time.

Officials of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, the Pennsylvania, Lackawanna, and Erie said yesterday that they would do nothing until it was seen whether the New Jersey Legislature would pass a Statewide daylight saving bill.

William Fellowes Morgan, President of the Merchants' Association, sent an appeal yesterday to all members of that organization to observe the State law and the city ordinance for daylight saving by making such changes in the routine of their offices, factories, and commercial establishments as may be found necessary. He says:

"The people of New York City are reminded that the opponents of daylight saving naturally make the disadvantages of such confusion as may be caused by the change in the time schedule to urge the repeal of the law. Daylight saving is of much greater importance than any temporary inconvenience to which individuals of the city as a whole may be called upon to submit."

ASSEMBLY VOTE SAVES DAYLIGHT SAVING LAW

ALBANY, March 23.—The Assembly today defeated the Betts bill, designed to repeal the Daylight Saving law, failing to receive the necessary majority of 76 votes. The vote was 70 for and 64 against.

When the result was announced Assemblyman Charles H. Betts, the introducer, moved that the vote be reconsidered. The motion to strike out was made by Assemblyman Cuvillier, New York Democrat. The majority leader, Simon L. Adler, asserted that since there was a bill pending giving cities and villages the right to pass local ordinances providing for daylight saving, he could see no objection to the repeal of the State law.

Philadelphia Repeals Daylight Act.

PHILADELPHIA, March 23.—The City Council today repealed the daylight saving ordinance which was to have gone into effect in Philadelphia March 26, on the ground that it conflicts with a State law which makes Eastern standard time the legal time in Pennsylvania. The ordinance was passed by the old City Councils last Fall.

Italy to End Press Censorship.

ROME, March 22.—Press censorship will be abolished throughout Italy next Thursday, according to an announcement by Premier Nitti, made here tonight at a banquet of newspaper men. The banquet was in honor of André Torré, President of the Press Association, recently appointed Minister of Instruction. The censorship is being ended on the agreement of the newspapers not to publish false news or information needlessly alarming.

DOVER, Del., March 23.—It became known just before the afternoon adjournment of the Legislature today that the anti-suffragists had won another member, which would have made the vote in the House on the question of ratifying the proposed suffrage amendment to the Federal Constitution, had it been taken today, 25 against and 10 for.

The latest acquisition to the ranks of the antis is Representative Silas J. Warrington of Sussex County, who explained that while he was in favor of suffrage, the sentiment was so strong in his district that he was compelled to go with the other eight Republican Representatives, which, with Representative Hastings (Democrat), who is an avowed anti-suffragist, gives the antis the entire ten Representatives of Sussex County.

As to the Democratic members of the two houses no party influence is being exercised other than letters sent by leaders, notably Homer S. Cummings, Chairman of the National Democratic Committee, urging every Democratic Senator and Representative to vote for suffrage and not help defeat the amendment by referring it to a referendum, or by substituting a Statewide suffrage resolution.

Governor Townsend in his message which he read to the two houses in joint session at 11 o'clock made a fervent plea for suffrage.

"Those who would withhold franchise today," he said in part, "are descendants in thought, of those who refused woman the position in the school, in the office, in the hospital. All those campaigns for reform, civic advance and protection of the woman who earns her living, have been consummated by the votes of those who today are favoring political as well as social rights.

Thursday was set as the day for the public hearing before the two houses on the suffrage question. The advocates of suffrage will be heard at the morning session and the antis in the afternoon, although a monster anti-suffrage mass meeting is called for the afternoon of that day in Dover Opera House.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—The National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage gave out for publication today two letters said to have been written by women suffrage leaders, the intention of the publicity being to show that the suffragists were downcast over the situation, and were using much money to bring about a ratification of the amendment to the Constitution. The letters are signed by Miss Alice Paul, Chairman of the National Woman's Party, and Miss Betty Gram, National Organizer of that organization.

WOMEN JOIN WOOD CAMPAIGN UP STATE

OTHERS RALLY TO HOOVER

The movement to organize women in support of General Wood for the Republican nomination for President is growing rapidly in every section of New York State, according to a statement issued yesterday by Miss Juliana Cutting, Chairman of the Woman's Division of the Leonard Wood Campaign Committee. Miss Cutting stated that women in Jefferson, Lewis, Oswego, Erie and Kings Counties had organized for General Wood in the last week.

"One of General Wood's most enthusiastic supporters in Northern New York is Miss Marietta Holley, honorary Chairman of the Jefferson County organization," said Miss Cutting. "Miss Holley is the author of 'Samantha at Saratoga,' under the pen name of Josiah Allen's Wife,' and this is the first time she has ever been interested in politics."

Mrs. Carl H. Hanna of Watertown, Chairman of the Jefferson County organization, came here for a conference with Miss Cutting. Mrs. Philip Fowler of Lowville is Chairman of the Lewis County organization and Mrs. John C. Churchill of Oswego of the Oswego County organization.

The Wood women in Brooklyn have organized in three Assembly districts, under the leadership of Miss Mary Merwin in the Fifth District, Miss Estelle Bush in the Seventeenth and Miss Katherine Kerr in the Eighteenth.

A strong Wood women's organization has been formed in Buffalo, with Mrs. Frank W. Pinke, Jr., Mrs. Arthur E. Hedstrom, Mrs. I. B. Hope, Mrs. Allison K. Hume and Mrs. Langdon B. Wood as members of the Executive Committee, and headquarters have been opened in the Iroquois Hotel. Among the active Wood supporters in Buffalo is Mrs. Lewis O. Rogers, President of the Buffalo Federation of Women's Clubs.

Fifty public school teachers who are supporting General Wood met at the local Wood headquarters in the Hotel Imperial yesterday and were addressed by Mrs. Shephard De Forest, Chairman of the Hostess Room Committee.

Following the example of the Wood Committee, the Hoover National Republican Club announced a committee of ten to head its women's division, with headquarters at the Hotel Vanderbilt. The committee consists of Miss Sarah Louise Arnold, Simmons College, Boston; Miss Abby Marian, University of Wisconsin; Miss Isabel Bevier, University of Illinois; Mrs. Robert J. Burdette of California, Mrs. F. Louis Slade, Mrs. Oscar S. Straus, Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, Miss Edith Morgan, Miss Gertrude B. Lane, editor of the Woman's Home Companion, and Miss Sarah Field Splint of New York.

The Hiram W. Johnson Women's Committee, of which Miss Margaret M. Crumpacker is Chairman, will have a mass meeting for women at Carnegie Hall Wednesday evening, March 31. The committee has just opened headquarters at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

One hundred women attended the meeting of the Nicholas Murray Butler Women's League at the home of Mrs. Gardiner Gayley, 20 Washington Square North, and pledged support to Dr. Butler for the Republican nomination for President. The speakers were Judge John R. Davies, manager of the Butler campaign; Stephen Henry Olin, Gano Dunn and Mrs. Gayley. Those present included Mrs. Olin, Mrs. Stuart Duncan, Mrs. Jocelyn Evans, Mrs. Charles A. Whitman, Mrs. Charles Downer Hazen, Mrs. Franklin H. Giddings, Mrs. Cooper Hewitt, Mrs. Edmund Pendleton, Mrs. Henry H. Curran, Mrs. Howard Van Slingerland, Mrs. Francis Kelly, Mrs. Samuel Murphy, Mrs. Frederick Tams and Mrs. John D. Prince.

PANAMA, March 23.—The Panama Canal has been closed for two days, all ships being affected by the order, because of a landslide in the Cucaracha section of the waterway, according to an official announcement. Dredges are expected to clear away the débris and make the canal safe for ships by Thursday.

HOOVER OUT TO WIN AS REPUBLICAN ONLY

Friends, It Is Said, Abandon All Efforts to Obtain Democratic Nomination.

HOPE BASED ON DEADLOCK

Friends of Herbert C. Hoover are centreing their efforts to get him the Republican nomination for President. They have abandoned any intention of putting Mr. Hoover forward for the Democratic nomination, largely because of the belief that a Republican Congress will be elected this Fall, regardless of the result of the Presidential election, and that the election of Mr. Hoover as a Democrat would result in his having a politically hostile Congress, which would prevent the accomplishment of any constructive program.

This is the meaning of the establishment of the Hoover National Republican Club, which has recently opened extensive headquarters in the Hotel Vanderbilt, according to a person intimately concerned in its organization. It is in line with the recent announcement of Captain J. F. Lucey, its temporary Chairman, and M. L. Requa and Ralph Arnold that Hoover Clubs were being organized all through the country in an attempt to develop and crystalize sufficient sentiment to force the Republican National Convention to nominate Mr. Hoover.

Mr. Hoover, although not an active candidate, is said to have acquiesced in the suggestion that his friends confine their efforts to trying to get him the Republican nomination. His recent statement, urging ratification of the Peace Treaty with the Lodge reservation, was said by his friends to have aligned him definitely with the Republican party. It was also asserted now that neither Mr. Hoover nor any of his close friends ever had any intention of running him as a third party candidate.

Those promoting the Hoover campaign admitted yesterday that they were late in starting a nationwide movement, and said they did not expect to influence the election of any considerable number of delegates, most of whom will be chosen before the new Hoover movement is really under way. Reliance will be placed upon the organization of Hoover clubs in every State and Congressional district in the hope that they will develop enough sentiment to bring pressure on the individual delegates.

The Hoover leaders admitted that they based almost all their hopes of success on the expectation that a deadlock over candidates will result at the Chicago convention. Popular pressure would be of no use, they agreed, if General Wood or some other candidate should develop a commanding lead on the early ballots.

SEES MICHIGAN FOR WOOD.

CHICAGO, March 23.—Returning from Detroit today in optimistic mood, Frank H. Hitchcock expressed the opinion that General Leonard Wood would carry with ease the Michigan primary on April 5. Speaking of the situation throughout the country, he declared that General Wood's position in the Republican race was "very satisfactory."

Mr. Hitchcock met county leaders of the Wood organization in Michigan in Detroit Monday and received reports from them detailing the progress of the campaign. Referring to the conference after his arrival in Chicago, Mr. Hitchcock said:

"The reports brought in by county leaders are encouraging. There can be no doubting that the sentiment for Wood for President is very strong all over the State. I believe Michigan will declare for Wood April 5 by a large vote.

"As the leaders reported to the conference alphabetically by counties, it became apparent that in the very large majority of them the sentiment was overwhelmingly for Wood. In half a dozen counties where organization is but lately under way in earnest the present sentiment was reported as 'slightly more than half for Wood.' In only three was any other candidate conceded to have the lead.

"Some amusement and good-natured applause followed announcement by leaders that in three counties the forces of the Wood organization had been freely lent to Johnson or Lowden managers to assure them places to meet where meetings had been advertised. Presiding officers and speakers were provided, these leaders said, to help out the rivals.

"That's a better spirit to show our friends the enemy than to let them go away unmet," was Mr. Hitchcock's smiling comment.

Was the President Imposed On?

WAS President Wilson imposed on at Paris, as Keynes, the author of the Economic Consequences of the Peace, asserts? Or did he and Lloyd George and Clemenceau each get what he went there for? General Francis V. Greene will answer these questions in next Sunday's edition of The New York Times.

'BIG FOUR' IN JERSEY TO RUN FOR WOOD

LIVELY FIGHT PREDICTED

Senator Johnson Files Nominating Petition and Will Speak in State.

As both Senators J. S. Frelinghuysen and Walter E. Edge of New Jersey, candidates for delegates at large from that State to the National Republican Convention, refused to commit themselves for Major Gen. Wood before the primaries, declaring they preferred to receive their instructions from the voters, the Wood campaign managers decided yesterday to put a Wood "Big Four" ticket in the field. The Wood ticket is as follows:

John W. Griggs of Paterson, former Governor and former Attorney General under President McKinley; William E. Runyon of Plainfield, former Governor; Edward C. Stokes, former Governor and Chairman of the Republican State Committee, and Thomas L. Raymond, former Mayor and present City Commissioner of Newark. All are specifically pledged to General Wood and all have filed their petitions.

Ex-Mayor Ruford Franklin of Summit, N. J., State manager for New Jersey of the Leonard Wood League, asked both of Jersey's Senators to declare for General Wood as their preference for the Republican nomination and both declined to be committed to any candidate before the primary, Senator Frelinghuysen saying:

"For me to indicate a personal choice prior to the primaries would be to anticipate and forestall the wishes of the Republicans of New Jersey and rob them of the right and privilege conferred upon them by statute."

The separate Wood ticket means a fight within the Republican organization that is expected to have far-reaching consequences. The situation will be further complicated by the fight Senator Johnson will make in the State. The Senator's nominating petition was filed at Trenton Monday night. The New Jersey law requires that the candidate shall file with his petition a statement of what he represents, the statement being limited to six words, two less words than the limit set by the South Dakota requirements. Senator Johnson's statement was, "Americanism; law and order with justice."

Johnson's Brooklyn Schedule.

Senator Johnson's schedule for Brooklyn meetings includes a speech on the night of March 30 at Arcadia Hall and another the same night in Congress Hall, East New York. On April 1 he will speak at the Academy of Music, where Senator Borah of Idaho is also expected to speak. On April 2 Senator Johnson will speak at Schwabian Hall, Richmond Hill.

This announcement of the progress of General Wood's campaign was given out at the local headquarters:

"Following the South Dakota primary and the Connecticut convention, interest in the contest for Republican nomination shifts to Maine, where on Thursday twelve delegates will be selected in a convention in session at Bangor. Although Maine is rock-ribbed for Wood, the delegates will go uninstructed, but will be for General Wood at the polls.

"After Maine comes New Mexico, whose six delegates have been assured General Wood at Chicago, the New Mexico State Republican Committee having recently decided to instruct the six men for Wood. The New Mexico Convention will be held Friday of this week.

"General's Wood's name will be placed on the Presidential preferential primary ballot in Montana. The primary is to be held April 23. Wood's Northwest manager recently said Montana's eight delegates would vote for the General at Chicago."

New York City committee of the alumni of Columbia University is actively promoting the Presidential aspirations of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, it was announced yesterday.

GOVERNOR HOLCOMB URGED TO CALL SESSION

NEW HAVEN, March 23.—The Resolutions Committee of the Republican State Convention, which opened here today, at the end of an open meeting, voted 13 to 8 to submit to the convention tomorrow a resolution indorsing woman suffrage and calling upon Governor Holcomb to reconsider his position and call a special session of the Legislature to act on the suffrage amendment.

Colonel I. M. Ullman presided, and speeches were made by Miss Ludington and other suffrage advocates, both men and women.

Before the vote Miss Ludington said: "From the overwhelming vote by the committee we feel confident what the vote of the convention will be. We have also such confidence in the fairness of Governor Holcomb that we believe he will consider that a special emergency has arisen."

Criticism of President Wilson, in which the war, treaty making and Mexican policies of the Democratic Administration were severely arraigned, featured the address tonight of Senator Brandegee, acting as Temporary Chairman of the Convention. He asserted that "No President of the United States has ever been so shielded from just criticism by events as has President Wilson."

The condition of America's unpreparedness at the beginning of the war, Senator Brandegee said, was largely the fault of President Wilson. He declared that great extravagance characterized his governmental departments, that his efforts at treaty making in Paris resulted largely in fiasco and that his coercion of the Senate had resulted in a kicking in which the Senate is now coercing the President. He said if the people of this country want the Senate to abandon its matured judgment after due consideration and to say that they approve of a treaty when they do not approve of it."

He reiterated former statements that the Administration's Mexican attitude for the last six years has been "an impotent and imbecile drift," with a condition now in Mexico so "appalling" that the American people "have apparently abandoned all hope of relief as long as the present Administration is in power."

The State Department was denigrated as "a mere shell" and the operation of the Post Office Department was said to be a "huge national joke if it were not a scandal and a tragedy."

TEST FOR FREE SPEECH

PASSAIC, N. J., March 23.—Supported by a battery of speakers from the Civil Rights League of New York, the Amalgamated Textile Union of Passaic tonight laid the foundation for a civil action to test the validity of the police rule which prohibits meetings being held in this city without a permit issued by the Commissioner of Public Safety, Abram Preiskel.

National attention was attracted to the situation here by the recent publication of the report of Mrs. Alice Barrows Fernandes of the Federal Department of Education, who charged that a system of espionage was exerted over the workers by certain of the industries in Passaic.

This afternoon circulars were distributed throughout the city announcing a meeting of the Amalgamated Union to be held in President Hall. Commissioner Preiskel saw one of the circulars and immediately got in touch with President Matthew Pluhar of the Amalgamated, and informed him that the meeting could not be held without a permit, and that no permit would be issued this late date. Pluhar replied that the meeting would be held despite the orders of the police.

Refused One Hall, Get Another.

The police notified the owner of President Hall not to allow the meeting, and the owner refused to open the doors for the union. Anticipating this action, the union had arranged for another hall, and the crowd went to a meeting room at 46 Fourth Street, where the meeting was started.

It had been in progress about fifteen minutes and Dr. Norman Thomas, former assistant pastor of the Brick Church in New York, and now editor of The World Tomorrow, was reading the Constitution of the State of New Jersey when Captain of Detectives Benjamin Turner arrived at the head of a force of twelve detectives. Captain Turner asked if a permit had been secured for the meeting and was answered in the negative. He then said the meeting would have to stop. Dr. Thomas continued to read the Constitution of New Jersey.

Captain Turner found the owner of the hall and directed him to turn out the lights. This was done. The detectives then got behind the crowd and urged them outside. There was no violence. The officers of the union, visiting speakers and newspaper men who were up in front were not molested.

Read by Candle Light.

The speakers then produced candles, which were lighted. Holding a candle in one hand, Dr. Thomas continued until he had finished the reading of the State Constitution. The detectives looked on good-naturedly. Following Dr. Thomas, Albert De Silver, a New York lawyer, took over the Constitution and read it with all solemnity holding a candle in one hand and the State paper in the other. W. Lee Hustis, head of the Henry Street Settlement, went through the same formality, as did Louis Bodens, Secretary of the Civil Liberty Union. Captain Turner and his squad stood by and appeared interested in the organic law of the sovereign State of New Jersey.

It remained for Frank Laitovick, the Polish organizer of the amalgamated union, to bring the detectives to life. The last time Laitovick spoke he is alleged to have predicted the day when a red flag would float over the Passaic City Hall, and since that time no permits have been issued for him to speak, although they have often been requested.

As Laitovick reached for the constitution and the candle, Captain Turner gave a signal to his men and the would-be speaker was removed from the platform and deposited among the newspapermen. Waving the constitution in his hand, Laitovick again mounted the platform. Again he was removed. Four times this was repeated.

Truce Finally Arranged.

Finally the visiting speakers arranged a truce with the detectives whereby Laitovick was permitted to read the State constitution in Polish. One of Captain Turner's interpretors followed him closely, however, to see that between sections of the constitution Laitovick did not intersperse any of his doctrines to imperil the loyalty of the visiting speakers, detectives and newspapermen.

When Laitovick had finished the constitution of New Jersey—and a fearful thing it is in Polish—the detectives went back to work and the visiting speakers started for New York.

President Pluhar announced that Laitovick would institute a civil action against the Passaic police and in this manner obtain a judicial decision on the police rule against which the amalgamated union has consistently protested as an invasion of the right of free speech.

Republicans Form League to Gain New England Support.

BOSTON, March 23.—Men prominent in Bay State politics, together with many women war workers, met at the Bellevue tonight and organized the Hoover Republican League. Democrats also attended to aid the movement.

Among the Republicans present were J. Randolph Coolidge, Jr., Joseph Walker, Charles M. Cox, former President of the Boston Senate; Grafton D. Cushing, Courtney Crocker, General Francis Peabody, and others. Everett Morss presided.

The speakers included Huntley N. Spaulding, former Food Administrator for New Hampshire; Fred Cullen and Stanley King, who served with Hoover in war work, and Miss Sarah Louise Arnold, Dean of Simmons College.

"The politicians don't want Hoover," said Mr. Spaulding, "and it is our business to get the message to the politicians that they must nominate him at the Republican Convention."

The Hoover League is outlining a campaign of activity for all New England.

Outside of a few issues in which special influences were at work to cause forward swings, stocks in yesterday's dealings were inclined to hesitate and the final price list contained many recessions. Industrials and railroad shares stood in the same category in respect to irregular movements, which seemed to reflect little beside realizing sales and a considerable output of selling for the short account. A reason for professional pressure against quotations lay in the fact that the market had been advancing pretty steadily for more than a fortnight. In the opinion of more than a few observers of the March movement underlying conditions of credit and industry have hardly warranted so persistent an advance, and this feeling supplies incentives for short sales. Quite likely, the stiffening of call money to 9 per cent. on Monday, with its effect in slowing down trading in stocks, persuaded the professional speculators to feel out the short side and they had further opportunity in the uncertain dealings of yesterday morning.

There was not, however, any new development in call money yesterday to supply ammunition to the bears. The renewal rate was 7 per cent. and 8 per cent. was the maximum quotation of the afternoon. The Government drew down its deposits somewhat, according to banking comment, and there was supposed to have been a moderate amount of loans called in by the banks during the morning in preparation to offset the Federal withdrawals, but nothing in the way of a "squeeze" developed. Stock market borrowers late in the day had no difficulty in filling their demands at the higher interest rate. While it may have been that apprehension of a stiff rise of the call loan rate caused traders in stocks to act conservatively in the morning, it did not seem as though this was a continuing influence throughout the day. But it is to be said that speculators, as a whole, are studying credit factors more than they used to, and sight has not been lost in the fortnight's rise of prices that the Federal Reserve system has made practically no real progress in increasing the reserve ratio. Gold continues to move away in large volume while the only metal thus far received from London in the expected movement is $1,250,000, which arrived yesterday. This was bought at auction recently and is not part of any Government transfer.

Foreign exchange bankers have remarked for several days that relatively more French and Italian bills were being offered than were bills on London. The product was seen yesterday, and the day before, in extensive declines of franc and lire quotations at the same time that sterling was steady or firm. The diverse movements were not understood altogether. Great Britain has increased her balances here through sales of American securities, and her exports to the United States are expected to disclose a notable gain when detailed figures for the February commerce are issued. This may be having a supporting influence on rates, but bankers were inclined yesterday to stress the likelihood that sizable loans by England to France and Italy were coming due shortly and that sterling was being accumulated to meet them. If this is the case, a decline of francs and lire would be natural and of a temporary nature, and an explanation would be contained for the rise of sterling.

Sterling rose 3 cents to the pound, sight drafts being quoted at 3.80¼ at the close of business. Francs declined 31 points and lire 87 points, the latter at 20.72 recording a new low record.

OPPOSE VALUATIONS ON RAILROAD BOOKS

SHIPPERS ALSO URGE CHECK

Favor Commission's Established Grouping as Least Likely to Disturb Existing Rate Relations.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Solid alignment of State Railroad Commissioners, representing the public, against consideration of the "unreliable" investment accounts of the roads for valuation purposes, developed today before the Interstate Commerce Commission, which is holding hearings to determine the basis for payment of the standard dividend under the transportation act.

Insisting that the "book accounts" of the railroads were worthless as an index to the values of the properties, John E. Benton of the Association of State Railroad Commissioners sharply criticised the argument advanced by the carriers that any valuation of the roads found to be less than the aggregate accounts would be a blow to the financial centres of the world.

"Since when has this commission rendered its judgments with its face toward Wall Street?" he asked. "Since when has it disregarded the law and the facts to cover up the rottenness of any situation it came upon in the performance of its duty? It has heretofore discovered and exposed many shocking things, but the country still lives and the financial centres are still intact."

All the elements of value must be taken into consideration, Benton contended, but the investment accounts of the roads are not to be regarded as evidence.

"Congress has not given you discretion," he told the commission, "if you know the true investment cost of the Chicago & Alton from your valuation investigations and shut your eyes to that element to consider its wickedly watersoaked investment account."

Representatives of the shippers generally concurred in the proposals of the carriers that the "book accounts" be considered, but advised that they be checked in the light of the other information available to the commission. Expressing themselves as more concerned with the development of transportation facilities to meet the needs of the country than in the matter of rates, the shippers confine their recommendation mainly to the question of grouping of the roads for rate fixing purposes.

"Unless the railroads are deprived of the occasion to yell 'poverty,' as they have done in the past, the only solution is Government ownership," was the argument of Charles E. Cotterill, of the Southern Traffic League, in favor of giving the railroads returns sufficient to handle adequately the business of the country. Property investment accounts, he said, might come the closest to forming a basis for a preliminary valuation. He presented a request that the southern freight classification as now constituted be continued for the new rate adjustment.

The majority of the shippers favored the continuation of the commission's established grouping of the railroads on the ground that the adjustment should be effected with the least disturbance to existing rate relations. Smaller divisions, it was argued, made for less flexibility.

State Railroad Commissioner Stuart of Michigan advised against a subdivision of the freight classification groups, declaring that fourteen railroads of the Eastern classification are now earning a reasonable net operating return.

Commissioner Helm of Kansas said he believed it was better to maintain existing groups for the purpose of determining the aggregate value of the roads, but that there would be little opposition in Kansas to a subdivision of the Western group to establish a Southwestern division.

Asking the same treatment from the commission that is to be accorded the trunk lines, Bird M. Robinson, President of the American Short Line Railroads Association, concurred in the carriers' proposition that the property investment account be used as the basis for determining valuation. He asked that the electric lines be considered in the same status as the short lines.

HARBISON-WALKER PROFITS.

The Harbison-Walker Refractories Company in its annual report for last year shows net profits, after charges and Federal taxes, of $3,114,477. This was equivalent to $14.10 a share on the common stock after making provision for the preferred. The previous report was for a fifteen-month period and the earnings then announced were qual to $26.58 a share.

After dividends last year there was a surplus of $378,477, which, added to previous surplus increased the total surplus to $12,750,509.

PUBLIC SERVICE EARNINGS.

New Jersey Corporation's Profits Drop from $6.06 to $1.81 a Share.

The report of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey and its subsidiary companies for the year ended Dec. 31, 1919, shows net, after the deduction of charges and taxes, amounting to $1,013,902. This was equal after the deduction of preferred dividends to $1.81 a share earned on the $29,999,600 common stock. In the preceding year $6.06 a share was earned on the same stock.

Combined earnings of the corporation and its subsidiaries were $59,136,763 as compared with $52,997,838, while net after taxes was $15,511,673 as compared with $16,059,454 in the preceding year.

VOTE TO BE ASKED ON BANK MERGER

APPROVED BY DIRECTORS

Stockholders of the Bank of America and the Franklin Trust Company will be asked soon to approve a proposal to merge the two institutions. The Directors of both companies have recommended the merger, and it is said that special meetings of stockholders will be called to ratify. The consolidated bank will retain the name of the Bank of America. According to present plans, William H. Perkins, now President of the Bank of America, will be Chairman of the Board of Directors of the enlarged bank; Edward C. Delafield, now President of the Franklin Trust Company, will become President, and Walter M. Bennet, Vice President and cashier of the Bank of America, will become senior Vice President.

If the merger is consummated it is proposed that the institution shall have a capital of $5,500,000 and a surplus of similar amount. At present the Bank of America has a capital of $1,500,000, and at the date of its last report had surplus and undivided profits of approximately $7,200,00. The Franklin Trust Company has a capital of $1,000,000 and surplus and undivided profits of $1,900,000. Thus, the proposal to capitalize the consolidated bank at $5,000,000 indicates that there will be new stock to the extent of $3,000,000 issued. Whether this is to be given as a stock dividend, or is to be offered to shareholders on subscription, or is to be disposed of in some other manner could not be ascertained yesterday. At the Bank of America information on the subject was refused.

The Bank of America was organized in 1812 and the Franklin Trust Company in 1889. The latter has offices in Brooklyn and several branches in New York, its chief New York office is at 44 Wall Street, in the building of the Bank of America. After the merger, it was said, the trust business of the Franklin Trust Company will be carried on by the Bank of America.

True Diversification

Some years ago an investor who had an investment capital of $250,000 had it invested in no less than 500 distinct issues—about $500 in each issue. He thought his fund was well diversified, but it was not. All of his securities were railroad bonds and stocks, and when the railroads commenced to go to pieces during the war period all of his securities dropped more or less to the same extent.

The main thought in diversifying one's investments is to make selections of different types which are not affected in the same way by the same fundamental factors.

In a Special Letter on this subject we outline some suggestions for intelligent investment selection and diversification in several classes or groups of securities.

DEFICIT IS SHOWN IN WABASH INCOME

The pamphlet report of the Wabash Railway Company for last year shows a gross income of $6,114,942, as compared with $6,130,511 in 1918, with total deductions of $3,742,073, as compared with $3,495,226. Net income was $2,372,870. In the preceding year net income amounted to $2,635,285. After the deduction for further items, including settlement of accounts before January 1, 1918, made by the Railroad Administration, there was a balance transferred to profit and loss of $1,747,228. In the year before the balance was $632,705.

The report shows Federal compensation based on standard return as $5,796,352, but calls attention to the fact that this figure is subject to change when the contract between the company and the Railroad Administration is finally signed. The road's accounts are being examined by the Interstate Commerce Commission to certify the amount of compensation due.

"In the year 1918 the Director General of the United States Railroad Administration purchased 100,000 freight cars and 1,930 locomotives, which, subsequently, were assigned to various railroads. Of this number 2,800 40-ton steel underframe double sheathed box cars, 1,000 all-steel double hopper self-clearing 55-ton cars and 20 light Mikado locomotives have been allotted to the Wabash Railway Company, at prices to be determined after final settlement is made between the United States Railroad Administration and the manufacturers, but coming within the following ranges: For each 40-ton box car, from $2,725.00 to $2,932.40; for each 55-ton hopper car, from $2,505.00 to $2,829.32; for the light Mikado locomotives, from $49,400.00 to $53,556.00, involving a total charge to capital account of Wabash Railway Company of between $11,122,000 and $12,111,100, all of which said equipment will be placed under an equipment trust covered by an issue of notes, maturing in fifteen annual installments and bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent., said notes being taken over by the United States Railroad Administration at par."

"It was stated in the annual report of this company for last year, that application had been made to the Director General for an allowance of just compensation in excess of the standard return, in view of certain exceptional and abnormal conditions during the first sixteen months of the test period which were set forth with some fullness in that report. A further hearing, after an original disallowance of this claim, was granted by the Director General. The matter is now under review by the Director General, who signified his intention of handing down his decision as soon as he receives the certificate from the Interstate Commerce Commission as to the amount of the standard return."

A Comparison of French Government Loans

4% Loan of 1917 5% Victory Loan
5% Loan of 1920

IN view of the interest in French Government Internal Loans it has become necessary for bankers as well as investors to have at their disposal a comparison of the principal issues. We have therefore prepared a chart which gives for each issue the present income in francs and in dollars, with a 1c. change in the value of the franc from 7c. to 19c., the increase in income as the franc recovers its exchange value, and the comparative profits and income at current rates for each loan.

HOLLAND DEFENDS TWIN-TUBE TUNNEL

Engineer Says That Earnings from Proposed Plan May Far Exceed Estimates.

A special report designed to answer critics of the proposed twin-tube tunnel under the Hudson River, to finally dispose of discussion favoring the concrete block double-deck type of tunnel indorsed by Gen. George W. Goethals, and intended to clear the air of impressions created by alleged erroneous statements made at the public hearings, was submitted yesterday at a joint meeting of the New York and New Jersey Tunnel Commission by Clifford M. Holland, the commission's chief engineer, and was unanimously adopted. The report is believed to be the last word in the arguments which followed the efforts to have the Goethals-O'Rourke concrete six-line traffic tunnel built instead of the twin-tube, four-line type.

Mr. Holland's report says that it appears to be impossible to get before the public a true statement regarding the deficiencies of the concrete tunnel and that:

"Actually the interior dimensions of the Goethals' roadway are less than those proposed in the twin-tube plan as approved by the Commissions providing for two lines of traffic in each direction—not only is the width between side walls and the clear headroom less but also the space provided for the ventilating ducts is so small that the Goethals tunel could not be operated even as a two-way tunnel except with excessive charges for power required for ventilation. The capitalized cost of this power, which should properly be added to the estimated cost of the Goethals plan, would add many millions to this cost."

Mr. Holland says that the net earning capacity of the twin-tube tunnels over the amount necessary to pay for the redemption of the twenty-year bonds might amount to millions of dollars beyond the amount which has been estimated that would be available for the construction of additional tunnels. These figures are based on the estimate of the traffic which the tunnel will accomodate but this estimate, he says, may have been greatly underestimated.

Mr. Holland stated that the engineers of the commission were capable of building a bigger tunnel providing three roadways in each direction, if this was deemed the best for the public, but that careful study lead to a rejection of the plan and that upon close examination the three roadway tunnel "bubble bursts from every angle from which it is approached."

Lufkin Chairman of Texas Co.

E. C. Lufkin, who has been President of the Texas Company for some time, was elected Chairman of the Executive Committee and Chairman of the Board of Directors at a meeting yesterday. A. L. Beaty, who succeeds Mr. Lufkin as President, has been general counsel since 1913. His successor will be announced within a short time. C. N. Scott was elected Vice President and W. W. Bruce was elected Treasurer.

TO DEVELOP NEW YORK PORT

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 23.—Further steps were taken today to insure the development of the port of New York in bills introduced by Majority Leader Walters of the Senate, and Majority Leader Adler of the Assembly, empowering the New York members of the New York and New Jersey Port and Harbor Development Commission and Attorney General Newton to enter into a compact agreed upon.

The committee has reached an agreement to be submitted to the Legislatures of both States after fifteen months of deliberation. If executed, the plan would create a district to be known as the port of New York, which would extend north to Yonkers along the Hudson River, to be developed under a port authority consisting of three members from each State. It includes terminal and transportation facilities to be supervised by the port authority without cost to the City of New York.

The interests of the City of New York are protected by the stipulations that the Board of Estimate and Apportionment will name two members of the port authority who must be residents of New York City, and the affirmative vote of two members of each State will be necessary to project an improvement. The port authority cannot function until the Legislature approves a comprehensive plan for the development of the port.

Nothing contained in the compact impairs the power of the City of New York to develop or improve any port or terminal facilities. The city is, by expressed terms, not bound by the plan of development unless it approves and the plans cannot be supplemented or amended without the consent of the city.

CALL PANHANDLE MEETING.

Road Asks Stockholders to Vote $35,000,000 Bonds.

There will be a special meeting of stockholders of the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad Company in Pittsburgh on May 27, to authorize an issue of $35,000,000 5 per cent. general mortgage bonds. Of the total to be authorized it is proposed that $20,000,000 will be used to repay the Pennsylvania Company for advances made for additions and betterments on the Panhandle property.

The Pennsylvania Company will use the $20,000,000 in bonds to take over the minority Panhandle stock as announced earlier this month. It is understood that the new general mortgage will be written over the section of the Panhandle system between Pittsburgh and St. Louis.

ANTHRACITE MINERS MAY KEEP AT WORK

OWNERS TO REPLY TONIGHT

Whether the sub-committee of operators and miners is able to negotiate the new wage scale by April 1, as planned, there may be no strike in the anthracite coal region pending final settlement of the case. By an almost unanimous vote of the General Scale Committee representing the anthracite coal miners yesterday afternoon they decided to continue work. This is conditioned, however, on the mine owners agreeing to make any wage award retroactive to that date.

The decision of the committee was handed yesterday afternoon to the subcommittee of operators and miners. It was learned last night that the anthracite mine operators notified the mine workers late yesterday that they would reply tonight at 8 o'clock to the proposal of the miners regarding remaining at work after April 1. The employers are understood to have indicated opposition to the proposal on the ground that they would meet any wage increases by raising the price of coal, and that the prices could not be made retroactive.

Although the operators refused to discuss their plans last night, it was reported that a committee of mine owners would go to Washington today to confer with President Wilson in an effort to have the wartime restriction on anthracite coal prices removed. Should they succeed in getting assurance that they will be permitted to raise coal prices after April 1, it was said, the operators would probably accept the miners' proposal to make any wage award retroactive.

BRITISH MINERS MAY STRIKE

LONDON, March 23.—Another strike of miners appeared tonight to be in prospect.

After the recent Trades Union Congress rejected the proposal of direct action to attain nationalization of the mines, the miners made a demand for an increase of 15 shillings weekly in wages in order to bring independent pressure on the Government.

Negotiations with Premier Lloyd George and the Coal Controller have resulted in the demand of the miners being rejected.

The latter will meet in conference tomorrow to determine upon their future course of action.

Marine Meeting Routine.

After the postponed meeting of the Directors of the International Mercantile Marine Company, President P. A. S. Franklin set at rest recent rumors that there would be a change in the company's policy regarding accumulated preferred dividend payments. He said that it was still proposed to pay off back dividends on the preferred as earnings warranted such action, and he stated definitely that the board had no plan for paying the accumulation on the preferred through a new security issue. The annual report of the company, for 1919 will not be ready for stockholders before June. Mr. Franklin expressed the opinion that net earnings last year would show an increase of about 33 1-3 per cent. over those of 1918. Regarding present earnings, he said that they had been some falling off due to a decrease in return cargoes, although shipments from Europe have improved in recent weeks.

Coal and Oil Co. Plans Expansion.

Stockholders of the Texas Pacific Coal and Oil Company have been asked to approve a plan permitting the Directors to increase the capital stock from 600,000 shares with a par value of $10 a share, to an amount not to exceed 1,000,000 shares of similar par value. It is also proposed to give the board authority to issue the increased stock as they determine. Transfer books for the annual meeing will close on April 7.

SAYS CITY CAN BUY ALL MILK IT WANTS

ASK THEIR REGULAR PRICE

Expect Municipality to Pay Also Cost of Transportation — Agreement Near on New Contracts.

Roswell D. Cooper, President of the Dairymen's League, announced yesterday that the farmers' organization was ready to supply the city with all the milk it wants at the same price paid by the distributing companies, if the city would undertake to meet the expense of transporting the milk from the shipping points in the country to the city sales depots under municipal control.

"When John D. Miller, Vice President of the Dairymen's League, and myself conferred with District Attorney Swann, Monday," he said, "we informed him that we were ready to supply with milk anybody who wants to buy it. We also told him, however, that we had no facts regarding the alleged surplus of milk at the farms, but we promised to obtain such data for him. We have a man investigating that matter now and I expect he will report tomorrow.

"I have no idea what progress has been made by the District Attorney toward having the city undertake the sale of milk. Whether the city can sell milk at 10 or 12 cents a quart rests with the officials. We expect to have another conference with Mr. Swann in a few days."

Mr. Cooper and the other members of the Executive Committee of the Dairymen's League were in conference all day yesterday with the Milk Conference Board, composed of representatives of the milk distributors and manufacturers. The conference was one of a series which began in the headquarters of the Dairymen's League, 303 Fifth Avenue, last week, to reach an agreement on the price of milk for April.

Contracts for the year's supply of milk between the dairymen and the distributors and manufacturers expire at the beginning of next month, and it is understood difficulty is being experienced in making new contracts because of the decline in exports of milk by-products to Europe. Mr. Cooper said he expected an agreement would be reached today, but that the contracts probably would be for only three months.

District Attorney Swann said yesterday that nothing further had been done by him regarding the placing of the daily surplus of 2,500,000 quarts of milk on sale in the city, except to study details gathered by him and his assistants with a view to working out such a scheme.

It is expected that Mr. Swann's suggestion will be presented Friday at a meeting of Mayor Hyland's special Surplus Committee, of which City Chamberlain Philip Berolzheimer is Chairman, and which has custody of the funds obtained from the recent sale by the city of army and navy foodstuffs. The fund originally amounted to $300,000, but it has been reduced to $170,000 by appropriations for charitable purposes.

It was said yesterday that Mayor Hylan had expressed a desire to use the $170,000 for alleviating of suffering among the poor. Just what form of relief the Mayor had in view has not been stated by him. One official said he did not believe $170,000 would be sufficient to carry out Mr. Swann's milk scheme.

Valuation for Insurance Protection

ALL industrial, mercantile, utilities and shipping enterprises should carry adequate insurance. Unless from 80% to 90% insured, depending on the character of the risk, the assured is a co-insurer. With today's increased price level of 100% over five years ago, most commercial enterprises are not insured up to 80% of their value.

If you are the owner, do you know the real present value of your plant as a basis for proper insurance?

If you are the banker, is the enterprise to which you have loaned money adequately insured?

If you are a bond holder or a stock holder, is your investment protected by being fully insured.

Call the attention of those managing such properties to the Valuation and Report Department of this firm. It is a large organization of experts with exceptional facilities for making valuations in a minimum of time.

SENATORS CLASH ON FARM BUREAU

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Government expenditures were discussed in the Senate again today. Senators Lodge and Smoot attacked a proposal in the annual Agricultural bill for the creation of South Carolina and others defended of farm management. Senator Smith of South Carolina and other defended the provision.

"Never have I worried so over the future of my country as I have during the last six months," said Senator Smoot. "There has got to be an end to the wicked waste of public funds during the last two years, or there will be a smash."

Senator Lodge asked the committee members to abandon the bureau proposal, but Senator Smith said that the Government was having difficulty in keeping its scientifically trained men at present salaries and that "the honor of being a bureau head" would make up the difficulty in some cases.

Reading some estimates, Senator Smoot said that Congress was asked to appropriate $5,500,000,000 for the maintenance of the Government next year.

Senator Norris agreed that the sum was "impossible," but said that the Agricultural bill had been scrutenized as no other measure of legislation had been.

"The amounts granted," he said, "are less than the department ought to have. The reasons for this change are good ones. There has been almost criminal waste, I'll admit, but the necessities must be met."

Senator Smoot, predicting that the Federal Government's expenditures for the fiscal year ending next June would exceed receipts by at least $3,000,000, advocated the establishment of an efficiency bureau to make up appropriation estimates.

A reduction of "at least $450,000,000" below the War Department's estimates for the coming year was promised by Chairman Wadsworth of the Military Committee, who said that the committee had agreed to cut almost in half the figures submitted by department officials.

"Some indication of the way in which the farmers are getting away from the country is supplied by the United States Department of Agriculture from a recent survey of 3,775 farms in New York," Senator Capper said. "It was disclosed as a result of this investigation, which covered so many farms that it is certainly typical, that there had been a decrease in the number of people on the farms in the last year of 3 per cent., and that the number of hired men decreased 17 per cent.

"If this ratio holds good for the State, and there is every reason to believe that it does, it means that 35,000 men have left the farms in this one State to go to the cities. They are getting out of a business that has been the goat of lawmakers, middlemen and profit hogs in the last three years, and going toward the Great White Way, to add still more hungry mouths to the population which farms must feed."

Senator Capper declared that the farmer had been compelled to try to pull himself over the fence by his boot straps on the land problem, with the result that the percentage of tenancy had increased alarmingly. He argued for a curb on profiteering. Elimination of market manipulation and gambling, Federal supervision of the packing industry, closer co-operation with the farmer, and a constructive study of land questions.

SHOE MEN DECIDE ON PUBLICITY DRIVE

PRICES ARE NOT MENTIONED

Resolution to Test the Constitutionality of the Lever Act Is Defeated.

With 100 representatives of retail and wholesale shoe dealers in attendance at a meeting at the Astor Hotel yesterday, a resolution was adopted to take the public into their confidence through the medium of publicity. The expected announcement of the material reduction in prices of shoes was not made.

Various groups reported in favor of the proposal to institute at once an intensive publicity campaign. It was announced that details of the campaign would be threshed out in each of the allied branches and reports quickly made, giving views and submitting methods. Each group will name a member of the Ways and Means Committee, which will be charged with financing the campaign.

The members voted down a resolution to bring an action to test the constitutionality of the Lever act. The matter will again be taken up at the Tanners' Association in Atlantic City May 8, by the Executive Committee of the Shoe Manufacturers' Association and the National Shoe Dealers' Association in Chicago early in April.

Although the wholesale dealers were represented by men of power in their organization, who voted for the proposed campaign, it will be submitted to referendum by the four regional bodies which compose their organization. There is said to be little doubt that approval will be given. It is said that the Last Manufacturers' Association will also refer the matter to its constituent bodies.

BANK INCREASES CAPITAL.

Mechanics and Metals National Stockholders Approve Project.

Stockholders of the Mechanics and Metals National Bank yesterday authorized an increase in the bank's capital from $6,000,000 to $9,000,000. The new stock is to be offerd on subscription to shareholders of the present stock at par and is to be paid for in full on or before April 15. This increase, which was proposed several weeks ago by the bank's Directors, probably will be followed by a further increase to $10,000,000 capital later in the Spring.

The Mechanics and Metals National Bank is to absorb the Produce Exchange Bank, which has a capital of $1,000,000, and when this operation takes place, which it is expected will be some time in June, an additional $1,000,000 of Mechanics and Metals stock probably will be provided to take care of the stock of the Produce Exchange.

ASSAIL SOUTHERN STATES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 23.—The annual report of the Corporation of Foreign Bondholders refers to loans of eight Southern States of the United States, which have been in default for periods varying from forty to seventy years.

After pointing out that no progress has been made toward a settlement notwithstanding the unexampled prosperity of the United States, the report proceeds as follows:

"In it indeed regrettable that these States of a nation whose credit leads the world should allow their obligations to continue in default and refuse to listen to appeals from their creditors. The council would be glad to hear what arguments can possibly be adduced in extenuation of the conduct of Mississippi in repudiating the payment of its loans of 1831 and 1833, which were duly authorized by the State Legislature and were issued at a high price in this country.

"The State invested the proceeds in the establishment of two banks, and so long as they prospered Mississippi paid the bondholders, but when the banks ceased to be profitable the State not only suspended payment but actually repudiated its debt. Such a step has not been taken even by so backward a country as Honduras."

The corporation's "blacklist" shows the approximate principal outstanding to be £1,746,000,000, and the approximate interest in arrears £162,000,000. As regards back interest, if the Southern States of America are left out of account, Honduras comes second in arrears, being rather more than four times the principal of £5,396,000. Honduras has now entered on the forty-seventh year of uninterrupted default.

We call your attention to a letter from Mr. G. N. Allen, Chairman of the Company's Board of Directors, which is summarized as follows:

BUSINESS: The Oneida Community was established in 1848 and was incorporated as the Oneida Community, Limited, in 1880. The business of the company has shown continuous development. Its principal products today are silver plated tableware and animal traps.

As a result of nearly twenty years' intensive and very successful advertising and merchandising efforts, the Company's principal line of silverware, COMMUNITY PLATE, has become a household word throughout the country.

The manufacture of animal traps is the company's oldest business, and it has for years manufactured over three-quarters of all the game traps produced in America. The present high price of furs has greatly increased the demand for the company's traps.

PURPOSE OF THIS ISSUE: The proceeds will be used to provide additional working capital made necessary by the recent growth of the company.

PREFERENCES: This preferred Stock is entitled to receive regularly 7% cumulative dividends, payable quarterly in preference to any dividend on the Common Stock, and will pay additional dividends at the rate of 1% a year—making a total of 8%—whenever the profits for the preceding year, available for common dividends, equal or exceed 12% of the total par value of the outstanding Common Stock and the surplus. Because of last year's favorable showing, this Preferred Stock will bear the 8% rate for the balance of this year, and had it been outstanding, 8% dividends would have been paid on same for six of the past ten years.

If called for redemption, this stock is entitled to receive $30.00 per share, and on any distribution of capital assets, the stock shall be entitled to receive an amount equal to its par value and any unpaid dividends accumulated thereon before any distribution shall be made to the Common Stock.

ASSETS: Had the present financing been completed on the statement date, (January 31, 1920) the net current assets of the company would have been $4,162,070 and its net tangible assets would have been $6,587,530 which would show net current assets of $52.02 and net tangible assets of $82.34 for each $25.00 share of this Preferred Stock.

EARNINGS: During the last ten years, the average annual net earnings after the payment of dividends, taxes, interest and depreciation, were $337,347 or over 2 4-10 times the dividend requirements of this issue. The average annual net earnings for the past five years were $467,865 or over 3 1-3 times the dividend requirements on this issue. For the year 1919 net earnings were $851,073 or over 6 times the dividend.

MARCH COTTON'S RISE BREAKS ALL RECORDS

SPOTS QUOTED AT 43¼

Quotations Exceed Marks Since 1865 —Scanty Supply Here Aids Advance.

There was a further squeeze in both the March contract and in spots yesterday in the cotton market, and before the early advance had ended the contract had sold at 43.18c and spots had been quoted at 43¼c, both high records, the former a high record for a future contract on any American exchange and the latter the highest price for local spots since 1865. The May option, profiting by extensive switching from March, also went up to a new high record for any contract in its relative position, selling at 38.00c at the top.

The advance in spots and March was almost exclusively the result of the extremely scant supply of contract cotton here; an amount somewhat under 2,000 bales at most. The March option expires at noon tomorrow, and as the interest is still said to very large there is the possibility that some more fireworks may be set off today. The situation is extremely precarious.

The later months went up in sympathy with the near at the start but fell back sharply in the afternoon when the reaction set in. July, which had been up more than 50 points, sold off about 70 on the afternoon setback and the more distant months fared even worse. December and January, which had advanced 15 or 20 points in the forenoon, went down about 40 points under the previous day's closing, but came back about half way at the close.

The Liverpool market furnished little inspiration for any of our movements yesterday. The market there was rather quiet and without outstanding feature.

Exports for the day totaled only 14,091 bales, as against 56,507 bales on Sunday and Monday. Most of yesterday's exports were consigned to Great Britain, with about 5,000 going to the Continent.

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Previous Day.

Southern spot markets were: Galveston, 43.25c; New Orleans, 40.75c; Savannah, 40.75c; Augusta, 40.25c; Memphis, 40.50c; Houston, 42.25c; Little Rock, 41c.

Wheat Director Revokes License.

Julius H. Barnes, Wheat Director of the United States, announced yesterday that he has revoked until further notice, the license granted to Seth Barrett, of Frederick, Okla., as a warehouseman or elevator operator in wheat. According to the announcement the license was revoked because of violation of conditions under which Barrett obtained and held it, and particularly because he failed to appear when summoned to a hearing before D. F. Piazzek, Second Vice President of the United States Grain Corporation, who is special agent for the Wheat Director at Kansas City.

The annual report of the American Brake Shoe and Foundry co, for last year shows net income of $2,228,570 after all charges and Federal taxes. In the preceding report, which was for a period of fifteen months, the net income was $2,204,544, so that actually a big increase is shown by the 1919 figures. After dividends on subsidiary stocks, the earnings on the first preferred, which gets all profits above 7 per cent. on the common, were equal to $58.72 a share on the outstanding preferred. In the 1918 report the earnings available for the first preferred were equal to $57.74 a share.

The income account shows a charge off of $88,380 as the loss on the sale of Liberty bonds. Federal taxes are estimated to be $417,474. After dividends the surplus for the year was $1,169,387. The balance sheet shows the total surplus to be $10,868,159. This is greater than the present outstanding preferred and common capitalization.

Canadian Pacific Negotiating for Sale of Equipment Notes.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company is negotiating with American bankers for the sale of an issue of $12,000,000 of the company's equipment notes. The negotiations, it was said, are being carried on at Montreal.

Two syndicates of American bankers, it was learned, have submitted proposals to buy these equipment notes. One syndicate is composed of the Guaranty Trust Company and the Bankers Trust Company of this city, the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh and the Bank of Montreal. The other is composed of the National City Company and Harris, Forbes & Co. It was said in banking circles yesterday that other railroad equipment financing was under consideration, and the belief was expressed that formal announcement of the consummation of some financing of this kind would be forthcoming before the end of the current week.

Gen. McRoberts Elected to Board.

General Samuel McRoberts, who was formerly Executive Manager of the National City Bank and Chairman of the Board of the National City Company, has been elected a Director of the West Virginia Metal Products Corporation of Fairmont, W. Va.

MEREDITH PROUD OF HIS DEPARTMENT

NEW ONES ARE INTRODUCED

Development of Egyptian Cotton Alone Supports This Arm of the Government, He Says.

As a result of the activity of the United States Department of Agriculture $30,000,000 worth of long staple cotton was produced last year, which would not have been produced without its initiative and help, says E. T. Meredith, the newly-appointed head of that department of the Federal Government. He explains that this was made possible by the introduction of Egyptian cotton into Arizona and New Mexico and other parts of the Southwest where there were tens of thousands of acres that grew practically nothing. By careful selection and breeding this Egyptian cotton has been developed into one of the finest grades of long staple cotton, giving length of life to every garment made from it.

The promotion of this industry alone, according to Secretary Meredith, has more than repaid for the cost of maintaining the Department of Agriculture, which he estimates at $10,000,000 or $12,000,000. But this is only one of the constructive things that the department is doing, he says, and there are others which have resulted in equally remarkable results as shown in dollars and cents.

"Take Durum wheat," says the Secretary of Agriculture. "The same situation existed. In the great Northwest there were thousands of acres of semi-arid land which would not grow crops. So the department went out and found a hardy drought-enduring wheat, bred it up and developed it. What does it mean to the United States to have produced each year from 20,000,000 to 45,000,000 bushels of what on ground where there would not have been any wheat? A quarter of a million dollars was all that was spent to produce a crop which year after year, provides $50,000,000 more, and directly or indirectly every individual and business is benefited.

"Take the grain and forage sorghums. The Southwest could not grow Indian corn satisfactorily, so these men in the department searched the world for other crops that could be grown there. Last year there were 125,000,000 bushels of Kaffir corn and other grain sorghums produced where before there was none, and a few thousand dollars in the hands of earnest and capable men was responsible for this much.

"Out in California the department found cull oranges and cull lemons selling at $5 a ton. It established a citrus fruit laboratory to discover uses for the culls. As a result, the by-products of lemons last year were 1,500,000 pounds of citric acid, 500,000 pounds of citrate of lime and 50,000 pounds of lemon oil. Twenty concerns are now engaged in the manufacture of products from cull oranges. The total products last year were 6,000,000 pounds of marmalades, jellies and so forth. Isn't that cutting waste?

"In Northern California there were thousands of acres of land growing nothing. The land was worth $5 to $10 an acre. For less than $500,000 the department introduced and developed a rice, by foreign exploration, research and careful breeding, and today a rice crop valued at $21,000,000 is produced in that territory.

"You might not have a navel orange today if it were not for the Department of Agriculture. The oldest tree among the descendants of the Washington navel orange which the department introduced from Brazil is still growing in the greenhouse on the grounds in Washington. Last year 13,000,000 boxes of California-grown navel oranges were distributed among the people of this country.

"Another thing the department has introduced is the Smyrna fig, but the first would not bear fruit. By careful observation it was found that certain small wasps were the fertilizing agents. The wasps were brought over and still the fig trees were infertile. Then it was discovered that beside the Smyrna fig the wasp required the Capri fig to breed in. The Capri was brought. With the wasp and the Capri fig and the Smyrna fig together it is all settled and soon America will be producing her own high quality figs.

"There is an interesting story about dates. There is a date industry in America, and it is producing a better date than you can find in any other place in the world. Some of the best dates have been a few offshoots each year through which the trees can be multiplied. The inferior dates have twenty or thirty offshoots a year. To prevent the planting of inferior trees, the department sends to Egypt for offshoots of the choice varieties. Four thousand dollars spent now means tens of thousands saved in the future."

MEMORY TREES ALL OVER.

War Has Given a Great Impetus to Tree Planting.

Schools of the country are writing the names of their heroes on the honor roll of memorial trees being compiled by the American Forestry Association at Washington. Such has been the impetus given tree planting by the association that in hundreds of schools tree planting associations are being organized for the Spring work.

The most unique organization of this kind is the Force School in Washington, which Quentin Roosevelt attended when living at the White House. The pupils planted a tree in memory of the former pupil, the only one to lose his life in the World War. Miss Janet McWilliam appointed a member of each class on a committee to care for the tree. Each one of these twelve pupils, upon graduating from his class, appoints for the incoming class a member of the Quentin Roosevelt Memorial Tree Committee. Thus there will be at Force School forever a committee to care for this tree for the son of the former President.

Reports to the American Forestry Association, which is sending free tree planting instruction and tree day programs to any who ask, show the schools of Louisville to have taken the lead thus far in tree planting. Under the direction of Emilie Yunker, more than a thousand trees have been planted by the victory gardeners. At Indianapolis the Technical High School planted 223 memorial trees in honor of her boys in the service. A remarkable tree planting service was held. All these trees have been registered on the honor roll of the American Forestry Association. If you know of memorial tree planting the association at Washington is anxious for you to report it. In York County, Pa., the teachers have organized for tree planting.

The Women's Clubs of the country have organized for Statewide tree planting this Spring. In California each district of the Federated Clubs has been supplied with tree planting data from the association. In Georgia the tree planting was done in the Winter by the Georgia federation, when thirty-one memorial groves were planted under the direction of Julia Lester Dillon.

"This is one of the biggest programs before any State," says Charles Lathrop Pack, President of the American Forestry Association. "Every State should watch what General du Pont and the State of Delaware does. Samuel C. Lancaster, the highway engineer, who built the Columbia River Highway, has submitted a comprehensive plan to General du Pont. This includes tree planting on an intelligent scale."

AUTO ZONE DEALS.

In a deal which will result in the transformation of a big apartment house into a commercial building, John H. Scheier, the architect has acquired two valuable properties in the heart of a Broadway automobile section. Mr. Scheier has purchased from clients of Wechsler & Kohn, attorneys, who had previously acquired them from the Euryanthe Realty Company and the 240 West Fifty-fifth Street Realty Company, respectively, the seven-story Kenwood apartment house at 235 and 238 West Fifty-fifth Street, on a plot 40 by 100, and the four-story business building at 240 West Fifty-fifth Street, on a lot of 20 by 100, occupied by the Empire Tire and Rubber Company. The properties were held at $300,000. The broker in the transaction was Moses Goodmann.

Mr. Sheier will practically rebuild the apartment house at a cost of about $100,000 into a modern store, office and loft building specially designed for the occupancy of the automobile trade. Practically the entire Fifty-fifth Street block front between Broadway and Eighth Avenue has been taken over by large firms interested in various branches of the automobile business among them, the Buick Motor Company at the northwest corner of Broadway and Fifty-fifth Street, the Michelin Tire Company, the Hewitt Rubber Company, the Lobelhorn Auto Company, the Sterling Tire Company, Charles E. Reiss & Co., and the Lowe Motor Supply Company. Diagonally opposite Mr. Schier's newly acquired frontage which is only 100 feet west of Broadway, will be the new Hotel Commonwealth planned for the entire block front on the east side of Broadway from Fifty-fifth Street to Fifty-sixth Street.

The Kenwood was one of the properties held under lease by Joseph Shenk but the lease contained a cancellation clause that terminated it in the event of a sale. An unusually interesting feature of the contract whereby Mr. Scheier acquired the property is the agreement of the owners to turn the buildings over clear of tenants so that the buyer takes over a practically vacant building. The tenants in the apartment house have been notified to vacate, and it is probable that the building operation will be started at an early date.

"This block has outlived its usefulness as a residential neighborhood," said Mr. Scheier yesterday, "on account of the steady expansion of the automobile centre. The possibilities which the Kenwood offered in the way of meeting the tremendous demand for business space largely influenced the purchase."

Other Manhattan Deals.

The Middleboro Realty Company purchased from Abner T. Bowen, the banker, the eight-story fireproof loft building 50 by 100, located at 155 and 157 Wooster Street, near Houston Street. It rents for $20,000 and was held at $170,000.

Harris, Vought & Co. sold for the estate of H. C. Fahnestock to a client the three-story building at 73 East Fifty-second Street, on a lot 25 by 100.5.

Frederick Brown sold to John Kunst & Co. for occupancy 43 Murray Street, near Church, a six-story elevator building, 22.5 by 100.4, held at $70,000. The broker was Roger P. Doyle.

The six-story office building, 20 by 70, at 792 and 794 Greenwich Street, near Jane Street, is to be taken over by the 792 Washington Street Holding Company, T. Begis, A. L. Gellich and F. Thorn, Directors. The owner of record is Miriam Galloway.

Charles P. Cohn sold the four-story dwelling at 41 St. Mark's Place to Jacob Hutterer, who will alter it for his business.

Commercial Leases.

Henry Shapiro & Co. leased for S. Meri & Brother the store and basement at the northeast corner of Broadway and Seventy-sixth Street to Sharp's Restaurant. The lease is for a term of years at an aggregate rental of $150,000.

Samuel M. Reiss, attorney, representing Michael, ladies' tailor, of Fifth Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street, leased for ten years the building 23 West Fifty-sixth Street, at an aggregate net rental of over $100,000. Extensive improvements will be made.

OPENS LINE FROM SINGAPORE

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Far Eastern advices today stated that the Japanese steamship company, Osaka Shosen Kaisha, has inaugurated a long distance steamship service between Singapore and New York, via Hongkong, Shanghai, Tsingtao, Japan, San Francisco and Cuba. The Hague Maru, the first vessel on the new line, has sailed from Singapore with a cargo of about 4,000 tons of rice for Japan.

The principal object of the new line, the advices say, is to give facilities for the transportation of wheat straw, eggs, skins, hides and other goods exported from Tsingtao to America. Before the war these goods, it is said, were exported from Tsingtao to Germany, and after being manufactured or remanufactured they were re-exported to the United States. At present, it is stated, the bulk of these goods is exported from Tsingtao to America.

The Toyo Kissen Kaisha has had a freight service from Nagasaki, Kobe and Yokahama to New York via the Panama Canal since before the war, and the Cunard Company is the agent for the United States. The Nippon Yusen Kaisha has a regular line from Japan to the West Coast ports of South America.

The extension of the Osaka Shosen Kaisha to Chinese ports and as far as Singapore is no doubt due, shipping men said yesterday, to the fact that the leading British lines lost so many vessels in the war that they have few to put on the Indo-Chinese and Japanese service. Singapore warehouses are jammed with merchandise, there being no ships to take it away.

Passenger traffic in the East Indies, China and Japan is even in worse condition than the freight trade. A number of American travelers are marooned in Singapore, unable to get away because of the lack of steamships.

WILL OF JUSTICE PHILBIN.

The will, filed yesterday, of the late Supreme Court Justice Eugene A. Philbin, who died ten days ago at his residence, 63 West Fifty-second Street, leaves $500 to the Marquette League for Indian Welfare, of which he was once President. To his sons, Stephen H. of Lawrence, L. I.; Ewing R., and Jesse H., both of Woodmere, L. I., $5,000 each is given. Two trust funds of $5,000 each are created for his son Gerald Griffith and his daughter, Eugenie Ambrose Wetmore. The personal property and the residuary estate are bequeathed to the widow, Mrs. Jessie Holloday Philbin of 63 West Fifty-second Street.

NEW TIMES SQUARE PLAYHOUSE PLANNED

A $2,500,000 PROJECT

Part of Site Will Be Utilized for Sixteen-Story Theatrical Managers' Clubhouse.

A new Times Square theatre operation will be started in a short time which will add another high grade structure to the fine group now under construction in the theatrical district. William Vincent Astor has leased for a sixty-three year term, to Max Spiegel, vice president of the Strand Theatre Company, at a rental aggregating more than $1,500,000, the two apartment houses and the five dwellings at 246 to 256 West Forty-fourth Street, on a plot 125 by 100, located directly opposite the Broadhurst Theatre and immediately adjoining the Little Theatre on the west. The lease was negotiated through the H. H. Gibson Realty Company.

Mr. Spiegel will be given possession of this property on May 1, when the present building, will be demolished and replaced by a new theatre with a seating capacity of 1,000, of which 1,000 will be located on the the lower floor. It is Mr. Spiegel's intention to devote the theatre to the production of musical productions exclusively. It will be known as the House of Melody.

Interesting construction details will be incorporated in the project.

The lobby will be twenty feet deep, and this portion of the site will be improved with a sixteen-story structure to be used in part as a club house for theatrical managers. Eventually the total outlay on the building, including the rental to be paid, will approximate $2,500,000.

Mr. Spiegel recently secured a long term lease on the Fitzgerald Building at the southeast corner of Broadway and Forty-third Street, in which the George M. Cohan Theatre is located. He has taken possession of the entire building with the exception of the theatre, on which the lease does not expire until 1922.

THERE ARE HOMES

to be had at pre-war prices if you will drop the subway habit. Within easy commuting distance, with frequent and comfortable train service, I have homes at $4,200, $5,000, $6,800, $7,500 and $11,000, built a few years ago, that would cost at least a half more to construct now. They are the real bargains today and call for decision and prompt action. We have already done the "shopping" to find them; they are for you to act upon; they sell because they are worth more than their present price. See me about them. Howard Goldsmith, 65 Park Row. A GENTLEMAN'S HOME
AND 16-ACRE ESTATE.

The beautiful colonial house was erected only four years ago; 16 rooms, 4 beautiful baths; its splendid construction and perfection of detail would please the most discriminating. The site commands a wonderful view of the Hudson; fertile, productive land; a large modern garage and barns; farmer's cottage; 25 miles out via motor boulevard and convenient to two stations. It cost over $160,000 at pre-war construction prices and is going to sell for $90,000 because the owner cannot now use it. It is an opportunity for either an active or retired business man. Howard Goldsmith, 65 Park Row. Telephone 2590 Beekman.

Miscellaneous.

A HOME FOR A BRIDE—Not a large house, but cozy, artistic and complete in every detail; just the place to keep up the romance; not a doll's house, either, for it has a 20-foot living room, with a big fireplace and a large bay window, opening on a glass-inclosed porch; a dining room large enough for years to come, and the prettiest little kitchen you ever saw, all in Delft blue, with a built-in Dutch table with high backed benches, where you can have breakfast, if you do your own work; upstairs nothing has been forgotten, even to the sewing room; every bedroom, there are three, has lots of light and nice closets, and the bathroom is all very dainty and white; the entrance vestibule, with its cozy seat, is particularly artistic; every room has polished oak floors, and all the doors and windows have screens; the grounds just suit the house, with evergreens and flowering shrubs in front, and plenty of room for a flower garden, vegetable garden and garage in the rear; this charming home is within seven minutes' walk of the station, 29 minutes from the heart of Manhattan; Long Island Sound is only a few minutes away, and two golf clubs are in the vicinity; what more do you want? The price ought to be $15,000, but I can sell it for $12,500 and make easy terms for payment. B. Knowles, Jr., Room 1309, 52 Vanderbilt Av. Telephone Vanderbilt 7367.

MICHIGAN RECOUNT PLAN IS ADOPTED

COUNTING TO TAKE 3 WEEKS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Plans were adopted today by the sub-committeee of the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections appointed to investigate the Ford-Newberry election contest for gathering and recounting the ballots. The recount is to be made to determine whether Truman H. Newberry or Henry Ford got a majority of the votes legally cast in the Michigan Senatorial election of 1918.

Alfred Lucking, counsel for Mr. Ford, said he thought the cost would be between $20,000 and $25,000. Stewart Hanley, counsel for Mr. Newberry, estimated it at $25,000. David S. Barry, Senate Sergeant at Arms, who helped draw up the plan adopted, put the figure at $50,000. Senator Townsend of Michigan recently said in the Senate that $250,000 would be the ultimate cost.

The plan contemplates the delivery of the ballots at the eighty-two county seats in Michigan by their present custodians, who are 1,700 city and township clerks. At the county seats Deputy Senate Sergeants at Arms, of whom twenty are to be specially appointed, are to receive the ballots, pool books, tally sheets and other documents and put them in registered mail bags to be sent to Washington.

When they arrive in Washington ten boards of "counters," consisting of two men each, one a Ford man, the other a Newberry man, are to count them, and an expert tabulator is to check up the count and keep it in order. All these proceedings are to be under the eyes of watchers, supervisors and counsel for Mr. Ford and Mr. Newberry.

First, it will be necessary to get court orders permitting the township and city clerks to surrender the ballots. The next steps, counsel thought, might take from one to three weeks. The counting of the ballots will require at least three weeks, it was estimated, without allowing for time spent in deciding disputes.

The plan suggested by counsel included not only fees for the actual workers but $5 each to the eighty-two county clerks as a "gratuity to put them in good humor," it was stated.

"Has it become necessary to tip officials in Michigan to get them to do their duty?" asked Senator Watson. Counsel withdrew the suggestion about the gratuity.

The 1,700 clerks who transport the ballots from their homes to the county seats are to get $5 a day each and 10 cents a mile traveling expenses to the county seat, and committee members estimated that $17,000 would be required to pay the per diem and travel allowances of these men.

Borton Made Jersey Rail Director.

MERCANTILE TRUST COMPANY

Thinking that the care of these securities would take but little of his time, he decided to look after them himself. He soon discovered his mistake.

For instance, he had purchased First Liberty Loan 3½ per cent. Bonds, paid for them in full and placed them in a safe deposit box.

When the Second Liberty Loan Bonds, bearing interest at 4 per cent., were offered, he took his bonds out of the safe deposit box, presented them at his bank and had them exchanged for bonds bearing the new rate of interest, which he again placed in the safe deposit box.

Next came the Third Liberty Loan, with bonds bearing interest at 4¼ per cent. Our customer once again moved his bonds from the safe deposit box and exchanged them for bonds carrying 4¼ per cent. interest, which bonds were delivered to him and placed in the aforesaid safe deposit box.

These later bonds bore coupons running for two years from the date of issue, and in December, 1920, this investor would again have been under the necessity of taking his bonds from the safe deposit box to the bank, to have them exchanged for permanent bonds bearing coupons payable every six months up to the maturity of the bonds.

But in the meantime the man turned his Liberty Bonds over to the Mercantile Trust Company for safekeeping. The plan worked so well that now the Mercantile has taken charge of all his securities.

The details which formerly entailed worry and loss of time and money are now being looked after by people who attend to these matters as a regular part of the day's business.

By a "tickler" system which cannot make mistakes or "forget," coupons are clipped regularly, as they fall due. Ownership certificates, based on correct data, are filled out. Dividend checks and mortgage interest are promptly deposited to his credit. And he need no longer give these matters a moment's concern. With their transfer to our custody, the responsibility that was his, became ours.

Our Trust Department will be glad to explain any details.
